HOOVER URGES EARLY VOTE ON WORLD COURT

Asks Action as Soon as Relief and Money Bills Pass.

BORAH WILL PRESS ISSUE IN COMMITTEE

Other Foreign Relations Members Opposed to Debate Now.

SENATE'S OBJECTIONS MET, SAYS MESSAGE

President Holds Protocols Free America From Any Entanglement.

(Associated Press.)

The protocols for American adherence to the World Court were sent to the Senate yesterday by President Hoover with a message asking consideration as soon as the emergency relief and appropriation legislation has been enacted.

Friend and foe in the Senate immediately expressed the view there was little hope for consideration at this session and Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, proposed that the court issue be put aside completely lest it cause an extra session in the spring.

The subject reached the Senate in the midst of a bitter speech against Mr. Hoover for his criticism of those seeking relief legislation above that recommended by him and as it went to the foreign relations committee the ranking Republican of that organization, Senator Johnson, of California, denounced the injection of the issue at this time.

Borah Announces Action.

Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee announced he would call the protocols up at the next regular meeting, on Wednesday. He believed the committee would report the question to the Senate shortly after the holidays.

Mr. Hoover took the opportunity in his message to the Senate to indorse the revised protocols which were modified to meet one of the Senate's reservations, which never was accepted by the other powers.

"The provisions of the protocols free us from any entanglement in the diplomacy of other nations," he said. "We can not be summoned before this court. We can, from time to time, seek its services by agreement with other nations. These protocols permit our withdrawal from the court at any time without reproach or ill will.

"The movement for establishment of such a court originated with our country. It has been supported by Presidents Wilson, Harding and Coolidge; by Secretaries of State Hughes, Kellogg and Stimson; it springs from the earnest seeking of our people for justice in international relations and to strengthen the foundations of peace."

Johnson Cites Peril.

Senator Johnson in a statement later asked "What kind of a 'court' is this thus characterized by the President?"

"If ever we have the misfortune to join," he continued, "an attempted withdrawal would be met by such an avalanche of abuse abroad and such a storm of criticism from our internationalists at home that withdrawal would be well nigh impossible.

"One thing has been accomplished by sending at this particular time the League of Nations court to the Senate. Some people may be distracted by it and public attention may be diverted from our pressing domestic problems and our lack of leadership in solving them. We have unfortunately in this country some whose thoughts are ever abroad, whose hearts throb with sympathy for the distress of other nations, and who are blind to the suffering of our own people."

Senator Johnson said he was opposed to giving the "slightest heed" to the court at this session. Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, another member of the foreign relations committee, urged that it not be considered at this time.

Swanson for Action.

Senator Swanson, of Virginia, the ranking Democrat on the committee, has advocated that it be taken up next session, but he is disposed to have the committee report it favorably now.

This is the second time the world court issue has been before the Senate. American adherence was voted by a margin well over the necessary two-thirds five years ago.

The Senate reservation which was never accepted by the other powers stipulated the world court should render no advisory opinion in which this country has, or claims to have, an interest, without the consent of this nation.

After their refusal to accept this reservation, a committee of International jurists, including Elihu Root, former Secretary of State, revised the court rules in an attempt to reach this reservation on a basis acceptable to all parties. The revised rules are now before the Senate.

Foes of the court claim at least twenty votes, but there is no prediction from their ranks that they can defeat American adherence.

Calvin Coolidge

Says: Nothing has occurred for some time so completely demonstrating the weakened moral position which the present regime in Russia holds in the public estimation of the world as the recent treason trial in that distressed country. The significant point of the whole transaction is the almost universal expression that no one knows what to believe about it. To such an extent has confidence in the good faith of the Soviet officials been weakened. Whether such suspicion of them is justified or not, it is apparent that it exists.

Human relationships that are of any value rest on faith and confidence. When those disappear, the whole fabric of governmental, social and business intercourse disappears with them. At times the Russians are no doubt right in feeling that they are misrepresented, but in the treason trial such is not the case. The impression is of their own making. Whatever may be the effect at home it has revealed and aggravated the distrust abroad. In spite of the desire of humanity because of past friendships or present relations to help the Russian people, this spectacle has increased the feeling of bewildered hopelessness in nearly every quarter of the world.

LAVAL QUITS EFFORT TO SELECT CABINET

Second French Senator Fails to Form Government in Three Days.

MET WITH SUSPICION

Paris, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Caught in a no man's land between bitter warfare of the right and left parties, the youthful Senator Pierre Laval today gave up his efforts to form a government.

He called on President Doumergue and informed the president that he, like his veteran colleague, Louis Barthou, must renounce the task assigned him.

"I have sought conciliation, yet I have been confronted with nothing but conflict," Laval told President Doumergue, who announced he would call no other statesmen this evening.

For three days, with infinite patience, Laval had caused no fewer than 200 senators and deputies to call on him at the ministry of labor and offer suggestions. He consulted not only the leaders of groups and parties, but nearly every senator and deputy of France.

Finally, discouraged by an air of distrust and suspicion that permeates the halls of parliament since the Oustric Bank failure controversy he abandoned the attempt.

"I wished to achieve a large concentration of all republicans in conformity with the vote of the senate and the general desire of the country," he said. "I have made an effort with tenacity and patience; I have sought peace, and have met nothing but conflict." The senate vote to which he referred was that of last Thursday when the Tardieu government was overthrown.

"I can only repeat," M. Laval added, "what I said yesterday, namely, that France needs a government and needs it at the quickest possible moment."

M. Laval's consultations were carried on today in an atmosphere heavy with the Oustric affair. Charges and countercharges were hurled about, and the insinuation was made that the magnitude of the scandal is not yet brought out.

Not since the hectic days of the separation of church and state has the feeling between the right and left parties been so bitter. The radicals are incensed at what they term attempts of the right parties to ignore the French laws that the schools of France must be free of religious teaching.

The chasm between the radical Socialists and the parties of the right has never been wider, close followers of the French political situation say, and many tonight suggested dissolu-

CUBAN STUDENT DIES IN RENEWED RIOTING

Many Youths Are Injured as Disturbances Spread in Interior.

HAVANA AGAIN ANXIOUS

Havana, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Fresh rioting between the students and police was reported to have broken out in several parts of Cuba late today, resulting in the death of one youth and the wounding of an undetermined number.

The Spanish language newspaper El Pais, received reports tonight that Felix Berez, 18, of Sagua La Grande, in Santa Clara Province, had been killed and six others were injured in a clash at that town. The fighting developed as the police were taking sixteen young men, arrested last night, to a railroad station for transportation to Havana.

El Pais also reported several students wounded in a clash between youths enrolled at the Camaguey Normal School and the rural guard, a branch of the army.

Another battle occurred at the railroad terminal here tonight while police were unloading several students, arrested during the past few days in the interior, to police patrol wagons for transfer to Havana jails. Some apprehension was felt here tonight that Havana would see further disturbances and reserves of police were ordered stationed at precinct stations.

Additional measures were taken today to reach a compromise with student demands following upon announcement by the faculty at the National University that they were in sympathy with student requests for autonomy.

Carlos Miguel de Cespedes, former secretary of public works, who two days ago was named secretary of education to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Octavio Averhoff, was given an indefinite leave of absence from his new post by President Machado, the Spanish newspaper Diario de la Martina was informed.

Dr. Eugenio Molinet, former secretary of agriculture, was reported to have been named provisional minister of education to fill the temporary absence.

Virginia Boy's Mother Asks Police to Find Son

Washington police have been asked to aid in a search for Robert F. Todd, 16 years old, who has been missing from his home in Cherrydale, Va., since Monday morning. His mother, Mrs. Lucy L. Todd, made the request.

The boy is described as 5 feet 6 inches in height, weighing 118 pounds, and has black hair and black eyes. He was said to have been wearing a dark blue suit and a leather helmet when he left his home.

THRONG AT BAY 45 MINUTES AS FOUR ROB BANK

27 Workers Held While Bandits Wait for Vault to Open.

LOSS IN KANSAS CITY IS FIXED AT $45,000

Unmasked Thieves Joke as Timing Device Delays Activity.

ROBBERS MAKE HAUL OF $11,236 IN TEXAS

Four Wounded as Officers and Holdup Men Fight; Suspects Escape.

Kansas City, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Four unmasked robbers took charge of the Interstate National Bank for more than an hour today, awaited the opening hour of a time lock on the vault and then escaped with loot estimated at $45,000.

Officers and employes of the bank were held at bay with pistols while the holdup was in progress.

One of the robbers followed Austin Young, Negro janitor, into the bank, located on the second floor of the Livestock Exchange Building, in the stockyards and packing house district. He drew an automatic pistol and ordered Young to proceed with the morning cleaning as though nothing unusual was happening. Three companions of the robber then appeared.

Studied for Weeks.

One by one the bank's employes and officers came in to begin the day's work. Each was compelled to "step right over here" or "go over in the corner and sit down with the crowd."

Twenty-seven persons had gathered before the vault could be opened. The bandits revealed they had studied the bank's methods for two or three weeks in planning the holdup.

While the time lock clicked away the minutes some of the women engaged in repartee with the bandits.

"Well," one robber remarked, "It is getting around Christmas time and we have to have some money."

"But what will we do about Christmas?" a girl clerk asked.

"Give us your address," he replied, "and we'll see that you get some presents."

Motor Cars Waiting.

The quartet escaped down a back stairway and entered two motor cars attended by two men. One car bore a Missouri license reported stolen November 2 from Dr. Ray B. Horton, of Kansas City. Descriptions of the robbers were given to the police by bank officers. The men appeared to be between 30 and 40 years old.

The excitement recalled the $90,000 robbery several years ago of the Drovers National Bank, situated across the street from the Live Stock Ex-

FEDERAL CHIEF PLEDGES DRYS SURE VICTORY

Woodcock Says War on Commercial Offenders Will Succeed.

GARLIC DENATURANT GETS STRONG BACKING

National Leaders Favor Stuff Doran Links Also With Bad Eggs.

PLEA FOR 500 MORE AGENTS INTRODUCED

Conference Is Told "Intent" Is Factor in Grape Concentrate Cases.

(Associated Press.)

A picture of prohibition successfully enforced was unfolded yesterday by Prohibition Director Woodcock before the representatives of a majority of the Nation's dry organizations, meeting in executive session.

Coming before the National Association of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment, after the dry leaders had approved his request for 500 additional dry agents, commended the new nonpoisonous alcohol denaturant and urged the speeding of prohibition prosecutions, Woodcock answered the questions heaped upon him for more than an hour.

"I told them," he said as he emerged, "that our efforts will be successful against the commercial violations of the national prohibition act, and asked them to cooperate in meeting the noncommercial violations through education.

To Pursue Two Courses.

"We propose to use the courts and the law against commercial violators and education for the noncommercial breakings of the law."

Among the questions with which the dry advocates plied the prohibition director were those concerning actual enforcement measures in various parts of the country and the attitude of the bureau toward the sale of grape concentrates.

Concerning the latter, Woodcock said the question hinged upon "intent" to violate, and that if this was proved against grape concentrate manufacturers they would be prosecuted.

Almost immediately on learning of the announcement of Dr. James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol, that a new nonpoisonous alcohol denaturant had been discovered, known as alcotate, which, he said, "leaves a taste and smell about the same as spoiled eggs and garlic," the dry leaders adopted a motion of indorsement.

Denaturant Approved.

It said:

"The conference records its approval of the new nonpoisonous prohibition denaturant to replace the wood alco-

DEMOCRATIC LEADER MOVES TO PRESERVE PROGRAM OF HOOVER

U. S. Navy Far Behind Treaty Limit, Says Pratt

Admiral Doubts Full Strength Will Come in Six Years.

(Associated Press.)

The highest naval officer in the service doubts that the limited United States Navy six years from now will be even as large as the London treaty allows.

Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, told the House naval committee yesterday, however, that the Navy has not completed its London treaty construction program.

Testifying on a bill to enable the Navy to build $134,000,000 worth of new ships, Pratt said a 13,800-ton aircraft carrier to cost $27,650,000 and a $20,780,000 combination cruiser-carrier were the most important items and should be authorized soon because of the increasing importance of airplanes in battle.

The admiral said treaty limitations had not been entirely responsible for a reduction in the size of carriers from the 33,000-ton Saratoga and Lexington, but that space-saving developments had been partially responsible.

Chairman Britten reopened the controverted question of 8-inch gun,

10,000-ton cruisers against 6-inch gun ships. Before the London conference the Navy general board said 21 of the larger ships would be necessary for adequate defense. The treaty limited the United States to eighteen with more 6-inch gun ships. Britten said the willingness of other nations for President Lost Temper, Robinson Says, but He Will Not.

DEFENDS HIMSELF FROM OWN PARTY

Plea for Harmony Comes After Bitter Abuse of Executive.

BLAINE AND M'KELLAR LEADERS IN ATTACK

Minority Chieftain Is Praised by G. O. P. Senators at Close of Speech.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

A round of such personal abuse of the President as the Senate has seldom if ever before heard, was climaxed yesterday with the spectacle of the Democratic leader, Senator Joe Robinson, moving to preserve the harmony which Mr. Hoover's statement of Tuesday had seriously threatened.

The President "lost his temper," Senator Robinson declared, but he did not propose "to follow the bad example that has been set."

The minority leader's speech, lasting more than an hour, was a mixture of pleading for harmony and a defense against the charge in his own party that he has become a "tool of the White House," and was in such measured and indirect terms, seeming to reflect the conservatism that has come over him, that his theme was almost as hard to follow as a diplomatic document.

McKellar Wants Apology.

It came after Senators McKellar, of Tennessee, and Blaine of Wisconsin, throwing off any semblance of restraint, had referred to the President in such terms as one might hear on the street.

"If he is worthy of his office he will apologize to the Senate. If he is unworthy he will not apologize to the Senate," Senator McKellar shouted.

"We have learned that his capacity is not that of a great engineer, a great hydraulic engineer, or a great engineer of any kind. His engineering ability has been limited to that of a gas engineer," declared Senator Blaine.

And the indications were that this sort of stuff was attaining epidemic form. It kept flaring up in the consideration of the $110,000,000 public works bill which incidentally went over until tomorrow. Republican leaders had conferred and there is reason to believe that they had suggested that Senator Robinson say something. Certainly his friends on his own side had been pressing him to do something to extricate himself from the position in which the President's unexpected attack had placed him.

No Time for Partisan Politics.

In doing so he went back over the ground covered since he and six other Democratic leaders issued that famous cooperation statement. He painted a most graphic picture of economic conditions in the country, of hungry men and women and children to justify the change that had come over him, and to explain why he had made up his mind that this was no time for partisan politics, such as the Republicans resorted to in 1918 to break down Woodrow Wilson's policies.

While there might be basis for argument as to the responsibility of the seven men who signed the cooperation statement, he said, there could be no questioning the propositions laid down as he interpreted them. They were:

"First, nonpartisan cooperation in the Congress on every measure conducive to the welfare of the country.

"Of course, that is a general statement, and inevitably questions will arise as to what measures are conducive to the general welfare, but the

37 MILL STRIKERS GO ON TRIAL TODAY

Sixteen, Arrested Outside of Danville, Will Face Court Tuesday.

EVICTIONS START SOON

Danville, Va., Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Thirty-seven men and women, arrested Monday by Danville police, who dispersed a group attempting mass picketing at textile mills where a strike is in progress, will be tried tomorrow on charges of unlawful assembly. Sixteen others, arrested on the same day at Schoolfield, outside the city limits, will be tried Tuesday.

In the city 41 arrests were made, but two juvenile cases and two others disorderly conduct cases were dismissed.

Military patrols, doubled in size, guarded an extended area in the city and county, but no disorder was reported other than the hurling of rocks at houses. The area guarded included a section of woodland where a nonunion worker said he was attacked Monday while going to work.

It was reported to military authorities a stone thrown through a window pane in one of the houses fell near a baby's crib, but no one was hurt.

Ninety policemen on duty continued patrol work until three hours after plants had started operations this morning. A company of State troops was kept in readiness to reinforce them, but no crowds assembled and there was no disorder. Picketing was continued by the strikers in numbers somewhat smaller than the maximum allowed by city authorities or the tentative number of six suggested by military authorities at Schoolfield.

Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers of America, left early in the day for Washington and the East to confer with labor organizations on the Danville strike. Before leaving he said

POSTAL HOURS CUT BY HOUSE MEASURE

44-Hour Week Is Prescribed for 160,000 Employes in Federal Service.

NEW JOBS ARE CREATED

A 44-hour week was prescribed by the House yesterday for the employes of the Federal postal service.

The measure affects 160,000 postal employes throughout the country, now required to work 48 hours and, according to an estimate by Thomas F. Flaherty, secretary-treasurer of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, will mean creation of between 8,000 and 10,000 new jobs in the postal service.

Postal employes in the District who would be affected are those in the service of the Washington City Postoffice. Mr. Flaherty estimated about 1,000 of these would be given shorter hours and this would provide about 50 additional jobs in the service in the District.

The measure would not affect clerks in the Postoffice Department inasmuch as they have a different classification in the law and already are working under a 7-hour day, with a 42-hour work week.

The measure was adopted by the House yesterday without opposition, although several members took the floor to voice their support. Representative LaGuardia (Republican), of New York, declared that the bill was the "first genuinely constructive" measure the House has approved to improve conditions and the measure should have become law many months ago.

Senator Robert M. La Follette (Republican), of Wisconsin, has introduced a similar bill in the Senate and supporters of the legislation are confident that the Senate will follow the House lead soon.

Opposition to the measure was expressed by Postmaster General Brown. Mr. Brown said the shortened hours

Christmas Gift Fund Passes $1,000 Mark

Santa Claus Wears Smile as Capital Residents Aid in Work.

POST TOY FUND

Many new names were added to the list of contributors to The Post Christmas cheer fund yesterday. Donations ranged from $20 down and contributions of $132.26 for the day sent the grand total up to $1,008.39. Now let's double that.

Santa Claus was wearing one of his biggest smiles last night after he had received word of the marvelous success of The Post's Toy Fund for this Christmas. The fund passed the $1,000 mark yesterday, and there is every indication that between now and December 21, when it closes, twice that amount, and possibly more, will be contributed by the good residents of Washington to make Christmas a really happy occasion for the children.

Santa had been worried this year. Even with his enormous resources he was afraid that he would not be able to furnish toys and Christmas goodies for some children whose parents were unable to do their share to aid him at his difficult task.

But when The Post began its campaign to raise funds to see that each child in Washington, whose parents were unable to give it the things which make boys and girls happy, would really enjoy the holiday, old Santa just beamed. He knew that the residents of Washington, always generous, would respond to this call for help for a worthy cause and his faith has been justified.

Merchants, manufacturers, clerks, Federal workers, business and professional men and women of all classes are included in The Post's long list of contributors. Even the children have responded to the appeal in a way that gladdens the hearts of other children not so fortunate. True, there are a lot of folks who have not made

Frozen Wilderness Forced To Release Missing Fliers

Bob Marten and Prospector Emil Kading Found Alive by Rescue Plane Through Signal Fire; Exposure Killed Pilot Burke November 20.

White Horse, Y. T., Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Two months after they disappeared in a seaplane in the frozen Yukon wilderness, Bob Martin, Wrangell, Alaska, prospector, and Emil Kading, German plane mechanic, were found alive today, but their pilot, Capt. E. J. A. Burke, was dead.

After three other fliers were presumed to have lost their lives in the search, Pilot Everett Wasson flew back here today with Marten and Dading, both in the last stages of exhaustion.

They said Burke died from exposure November 20. The plane will be flown back to bring in Burke's body.

The men were located by their signal fire, 40 miles from where the three had abandoned their plane in the headwaters of the Liard River.

The rescue, one of the most spectacular in aviation annals, was accomplished through the heroism of Wasson and his guide, Joe Walsh, veteran prospector.

Burke and the rescued men landed in the Liard River without damaging the plane and headed for Wolf Lake, 50 miles away. Wasson discovered the plane, which had been forced down, after an aerial scout. He was unable to land nearby because of the rough country, but grounded his plane miles away and mushed into the country and brought the two survivors to safety.

Two United States Navy and seven other American and Canadian planes had been withdrawn from the search

Policeman, Leg Fractured, Fires Pistol to Summon Aid

Injured Man Lies for More Than Two Hours in Fairlawn Park Before Help Arrives; Whistle and Shouts Disregarded.

Emptying his revolver in a last desperate attempt to summon aid, a park policeman yesterday brought rescuers to an obscure section of Fairlawn Park, where he had lain for two and one-half hours with a broken leg. Bullets succeeded, after shouts and blasts from his whistle had failed, and the helpless policeman finally was discovered and removed to Emergency Hospital.

Andrew Tickford, the victim, who is 27 years old and lives in Cottage City, Md., is assigned to patrol Fairlawn Park, in the Southeast section of Washington. Yesterday afternoon, around 5 o'clock, he was making his rounds when, while walking around a field house in the park, he tripped heavily over a large pipe. He fell, helpless, breaking his leg.

Tickford shouted and blew long and often on his police whistle, but not no answer. Finally, after an hour had passed, he fired a shot into the air. No response. Then another and another, until he had emptied his gun.

The last shot was heard by Arthur Garden, who conducts a florist shop at Minnesota Avenue and Eighteenth street southeast, at about 7:30 o'clock. Garden telephoned Eleventh Precinct police who sent Policeman Smith and Wright to the place from which Garden said the shots seemed to come.

They found Tickford nearly unconscious from his injuries, and his desperate efforts to bring help. He was taken to Emergency Hospital.

thought is that there are some measures which by their very nature are not of a partisan character, and these measures are well illustrated by the relief bills which have been presented to the Congress of the United States. The second proposition was—and I quote from the statement itself:

"Cooperation in any sound legislation to remedy the evils that are afflicting the Nation.

Spirit of Declaration.

"Third, that obstructive methods will not be resorted to to embarrass the President, or to defeat necessary appropriations; and that qualified appointees will not be rejected merely because the appointments are made by a President of the opposite party."

"I think if it were possible to carry on the work of this session of Congress in the spirit of that declaration," he said, "the country would be better off and our work would be more effectively done."

This is the policy he had been proceeding under, he said, and he did not intend to be diverted because the "President lost his temper and made a statement that of course is to be condemned."

Urges Greater Cooperation.

"My purpose is to try to do my duty to my party, to my people, and most of all to my country," he declared. "I recognize that my standards of duty may be perverted or inferior, and that they are subject to criticism; but I should like to see this Congress now act in a spirit of greater cooperation—and by 'cooperation' I do not mean that one man shall walk away and another follow. I mean that if they are separated by a distance they shall advance to a common point and get together and work together. That is cooperation. I cooperate and intend to continue to cooperate in the enactment of measures which I believe will promote the welfare of the country. I intend to cooperate in the confirmation of nominees whom I believe to be fitted for office. That does not mean, and no sane man can construe it to mean, cooperation in the passage of unjust or unwholesome measures or in the confirmation of unfitted nominees to office.

"Congress has a great task before it. The Nation is facing a crisis. Our responsibility is the greatest we have ever encountered. Let us bear it in the spirit of true patriots. We shall not find it necessary to abandon the policies or the principles which we believe should prevail in the administration of this Government."

Senators Smoot, Jones and other Republicans came over to congratulate him at the conclusion of his remarks, while Senators Sheppard, of Texas, and Brock, of Tennessee, were the only Democrats seen doing so.

Called Fair Statement.

A Republican leader commented to newspapermen later:

"I think he made a very fair statement."

A Democrat, who is outstanding in the move against Senator Robinson, observed:

"You didn't see the Democrats congratulating him."

Senator Robinson recounted that after the issuance of the cooperation statement the President telegraphed him and thanked him, but said it needed clarification, asked him if the statement meant he would not filibuster against the supply bills. Senator Robinson said he replied that he had never filibustered against a supply bill and never would, "but there was certain legislation which it was my intention to secure the passage of if possible. The legislation enumerated included emergency relief measures.

"I thought the correspondence should have been published in view of the fact that its occurrence was taken as an occasion on the part of some to indicate that I had made myself a mere tool of the White House and had pledged the President support of his political policies.

Believes Judgment Confirmed.

"It was my judgment the country needed cooperation on the part of politicians whether Democrats, Republicans or Progressives in the working out and in the enactment of relief measures and that judgment has been confirmed by the action of the President in his statement of yesterday and by the reaction to that statement which has taken place in the Senate of the United States."

When he came back to Washington, he said, he advocated in addition to the $60,000,000 drought relief bill, a farm to market road aid bill, by which $5,000,000 would be advanced to each State for lateral road construction as differentiated from Federal road aid now in effect, and also legislation authorizing the Agricultural Secretary to continue to contribute to State extension units which were not in position to match Federal funds. And being in accord with the President that a tax increase would not be helpful at this time, he recommended a bond issue to carry out these projects.

"I would prefer to do that to seeing an increase in Federal taxes under present conditions," he said, "but I would increase taxes rather than refuse to meet the obligation which is primary upon the Congress to provide relief for our own people in a time of emergency and danger.

Recalls European Relief.

"Senators did not characterize it as a raid on the Treasury when we appropriated $20,000,000 to feed Russian women and children," he declared, recalling the fund which Mr. Hoover administered. "No one characterized it as a raid on the Treasury when we appropriated $100,000,000 to feed everybody in Europe except those living within the territory of our recent enemies."

Asserting that if the senators agreed with him that "it is our duty to deal with this problem liberally, while having a proper regard for the general revenues, to place above the consideration of possible embarrassment to the Treasury, the duty of providing adequate funds to relieve distress, they can not characterize the McNary resolution carrying $60,000,000 which we passed yesterday as a 'raid upon the Treasury.'"

Earlier in the day Senator Blaine had said that the $110,000,000 public works program would be pure hypocrisy, that, of course, it would not make a dent in unemployment, that it was simply in order that Mr. Hoover could say what he had "done for the unemployed."

Tries to Amend Bill.

He tried to amend the House bill to provide that the States would not have to pay back the $80,000,000 allocated for road building but was voted down. At the instance of Senator Robinson, the provision that the money must be expended in six months was stricken out.

In the meantime, the explanation going around as to why Mr. Hoover issued his statement was that he has come to the conclusion that he has no defenders at the Capitol and that he must fight his own battles, that he is tired of remaining silent under such attacks as that by Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, on Monday.

Senator Bingham explained the reason for the silence of administration senators yesterday when arising after Senator McKellar's attack, he said he would be glad to answer it lengthily but it would consume valuable time and instead he put a newspaper editorial friendly to Mr. Hoover in the record.

TESTIMONY OPENED AT TRIAL OF SHAPIRO

Man and Wife Say That They Found Hidden Trust After Buying Property.

NOT ADVISED OF PAPER

Beginning testimony yesterday in the trial of Jacob Shapiro, president of the Joseph Shapiro Realty Co., on a charge of false pretenses, the Government placed Dr. W. Calhoun Furr and his wife on the stand to testify in regard to their purchase of premises 1716 Hobart street, northwest from Shapiro.

Under direct examination by John W. Fihelly, first assistant United States attorney, both Dr. Furr and his wife declared they were personally assured by Shapiro when they bought the property several months ago that there was only one deed of trust to the premises.

They further testified that they learned much later of a "hidden trust" of $2,500 on the property of which they had not been advised. This information came, they said, not from Shapiro, but from a real estate guarantee company.

During the trial, which is expected to last for about a week, Fihelly has announced he will attempt to prove that Shapiro placed hidden mortgages totaling $100,000 on 24 different pieces of property. Though the real estate man has been indicted on a dozen different allegations of false pretenses in connection with the sale of houses burdened with hidden mortgages, the charge preferred by Dr. and Mrs. Furr is the only one on which he is being brought to trial at present.

FISH URGES METHOD TO HELP VETERANS

Suggests to Mellon Way of Paying $800,000,000 in Compensation.

SAYS HASTE IS NEEDED

(Associated Press.)

Immediate cash payments to World War veterans of ope-fourth the face value of their compensation certificates was urged yesterday by Representative Fish, Republican, New York, in a letter to Secretary Mellon.

Fish estimated one-fourth the value of the certificates at $800,000,000. Mellon has opposed payment of the certificates in full as of doubtful benefit to veterans.

"Would not your objections be complied with by the payment, in cash or negotiable Government bonds with 3 per cent interest, of one-fourth of the face value of the certificates without deductions for loans already made, which would continue to constitute a debt against the remaining amount of the service certificates?" Fish wrote.

Asks About Reserve Fund.

The New Yorker asked if the Treasury would not have a reserve fund of $750,000,000 on January 1, to retire the certificates which, he said, was an "ample" amount to pay one-fourth the face value.

Fish said he believed there were hardship and suffering among unemployed veterans and that an average cash payment of $250 would be helpful.

In addition, he said, the placing in immediate circulation of between $500,000,000 and $700,000,000 would tend to stimulate business.

Patman Gets 50 Signers.

His plan, Fish said, would leave 75 per cent of the policies for insurance of the wives and children.

Meanwhile, the petition of Representative Patman, Democrat, Texas, to get consideration of his bill for payment in full of the certificates had accumulated about 50 signatures. A majority of the 435 members is required to take the $3,500,000,000 measure out of the ways and means committee and bring it before the house.

Text of Message Urging Action on World Court

(Associated Press.)

The text of President Hoover's message transmitting to the Senate yesterday the protocols for American adherence to the world court is as follows:

"To the Senate: I have the honor to transmit to the Senate for its consideration and action, three documents concerning adherence of the United States to the court of international justice. I inclose also a report of November 18, 1929, by the Secretary of State. I trust the protocols may have consideration as soon as possible after the emergency relief and appropriation legislation has been disposed of.

"It will be recalled that on January 27, 1926, following extended consideration, the Senate advised and gave consent to adherence to the court with five reservations; and it gave authorization to effect their acceptance by an exchange of notes.

"Consent to four of these reservations was promptly expressed at a meeting of the nations members of the court, and after negotiations undertaken with the approval of President Coolidge, two protocols were drawn to revise the statutes of the court in order to embody this consent and also to meet the fifth reservation. The protocol of accession of the United States and the protocol of revision have now been signed by practically all the nations which are members of the court and have also already been ratified by a large majority of these nations.

"The provisions of the protocols free us from any entanglement in the diplomacy of other nations. We can not be summoned before this court; we can from time to time seek its services by agreement with other nations. These protocols permit our withdrawal from the court at any time without reproach or ill will.

"The movement for the establishment of such a court originated with our country. It has been supported by Presidents Wilson, Harding and Coolidge; by Secretaries of State Hughes, Kellogg and Stimson; it springs from the earnest seeking of our people for justice in international relations and to strengthen the foundations of peace.

"Through the Kellogg-Briand pact we have pledged ourselves to the use a pacific means in settlement of all controversies. Our great Nation, so devoted to peace and justice, should lend its cooperation in this effort of the nations to establish a great agency for such pacific settlements."

ACT WOULD ABOLISH DIRECTOR OF TRAFFIC

Revised Draft of Measure Is Introduced; Bill Defines Official Powers.

EARLIER PLAN DROPPED

The revised draft of proposed amendments to the existing traffic act, which was announced yesterday following the amicable settlement of a controversy between the District Commissioners and the Public Utilities Commission, contained an unexpected provision, calling for abolishment of the office of traffic director. This bill was introduced at once by Senator Capper to replace a former bill.

Under the original measure, sent to Congress last week, most of the authority of the traffic director was transferred from the director to the Commissioners, but the office was retained. While making no prediction as to the future policy of the Commissioners in this regard, Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, commissioner in charge of the police and fire departments, said yesterday that the office might easily be continued under the new bill by municipal regulation, if the Commissioners saw fit.

Powers Made Definite.

The amendment draft was clarified and reworded, in several sections, so as to make the powers of the Commissioners and the Utilities Commission more definite.

As predicted, the bill gives the commission authority to route and regulate the equipment, stops and similar phases of common carrier or bus operation, both interstate and operating entirely in the District. Also, the joint Board of Commissioners and members of the commission, of which the Engineer Commissioner will act as chairman, is to be retained.

It will b ethe duty of this board to settle all controversial matters arising from conflicting orders of the two bodies, particularly when they relate to "the movement of traffic." This provision, it is believed, will give the Commissioners the power to drive the interstate buses outside the congested area of the aCpital and possibly force them to obtain a terminal or terminals in the outlying sections of the city.

Urge Early Acation.

The revised section which provides for the abolishment of the office of traffic director reads in part as follows:

"The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby authorized and empowered to make, modify and efforce usual and reasonable laws and regulations relating to the regulation of vehicles, the control of traffic, the registration of motor vehicles, and the issuance of and revocation of operators' permits and to exercise any p er or perform any duty imposed on the director of traffic, which is hereby abolished."

The amendment further provides that wherever the word "director" appears in the act the word "Commissioners" will be substituted.

In a letter accompanying the reworded measure, the Commissioners say:

"If your committee desires to hold public hearings on this proposal we urge that such hearings be at the earliest possible date. In view of the agreement of the administrative agencies most affected by traffic problems, and the absence of controversial matter in the proposed bill, we respectfully solicit its early indorsement and enactment by Congress."

Virginia to Employ New Car Tag Plan

Cards Issued in 1931 to Include Permits for Two-Year Term.

Beginning with issuance of automobile license plates in Virginia for the year 1931, the State motor vehicle commissioner is inaugurating a new system, according to an announcement made last night by J. V. Turner, of East Falls Church, who is in charge of the distribution of license plates in Arlington County.

Explaining the system, Mr. Turner said: "Motorists will find that the card this year will include the permit for both 1931 and 1932. The 1931 card will be used for the tags for the coming year while the card for the following year must be retained. No cards will be sent out by the motor vehicle commissioner next year."

Mr. Turner stated that he will be in the office of Sheriff Howard B. Fields beginning Monday, December 15, to begin the distribution of tags. According to the State law the 1930 tags will be honored to January 15 but not later.

FISCAL ARGUMENTS TO CONTINUE TODAY

Business and Civic Groups to Lay Ideas Before the House Committee.

HEARINGS ARE LETHARGIC

Washington business and civic organizations will begin today presentation of their ideas of fiscal relations before the special House fiscal relations committee headed by Representative Carl Mapes (Republican), of Michigan.

The committee yesterday heard Thomas F. Murphy, assistant chief of the United States Bureau of Efficiency, conclude his testimony in connection with the bureau's report on fiscal relations between the Federal and District governments.

Obviously members of the committee found Mr. Murphy's conclusions unpalatable. Mr. Mapes and Representative James A. Frear (Republican), Wisconsin, questioned him at length seeking to upset his statement that to arrive at a fair comparison of the per capita tax burden here and in other comparable cities the amount and value of Federal property here must be considered.

Neither Mr. Mapes nor Mr. Frear would agree to this. They insisted that if the District taxpayer is not now paying as much as the taxpayer in other cities then the District residents' taxes should be increased. Mr. Murphy agreed that the District resident should pay as much as was paid elsewhere, but clung to his basis of comparison.

The committee hearings, incidentally, have not been especially exciting even to committe emembers. Yesterday, for example, only Representatives Mapes, Frear and Holaday (Republican), Illinois, and Beers (Republican), Pennsylvania, attended the hearing. Only the first three have been present at some of the sessions.

GO BACK FOR RELIEF, ARCHBISHOP ADVISES

Curley Says History Holds Solution of Depression, at Catholic Session.

LABOR PROBLEMS TOPIC

Declaring that there is something radically wrong with the American economic system, the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore, last night told the Catholic conference on industrial problems that unemployment would not be solved "until we go backward instead of forward." The meeting was held in the Hamilton Hotel.

"We must return to the recognition of the dignity of man," he explained. "There is something wrong with a country where abject poverty and unemployment exist side by side with enormous wealth, held by a few people."

The archbishop's address followed a session devoted largely to a consideration of labor conditions and problems facing Federal employes in the District. At the morning session Arthur Woods, chairman of the President's emergency committee for unemployment, explained the governmental set-up for expanding construction work and placing the jobless during the winter.

Secretary Doak Attends.

Other speakers at the closing session last night included Dr. James E. Hagerty, of Ohio State University, and the Rev. John J. Burke, executive Welfare Conference. The meetive secretary of the National Cathing was attended by William N. Doak, newly appointed Secretary of Labor, who briefly praised the conference's program for economic relief.

Dr. Hagerty traced the unemployment problem back to Pope Leo's Encyclical on Labor in 1891, declaring that the doctrines then expounded were perhaps more applicable today than in the year they were originated.

"More wealth has been produced in the last fifty years in the world than in all the ages in the history of the world preceding fifty years ago," he said, "and isn't it the irony of fate that at the end of this fifty year period there is more unemployment perhaps than at any time in the history of the world.

Against Dole System.

"We have gone production mad in this country. We must develop new and more efficient methods of distributing that which we manufacture. Low wages and unemployment should not be met with the dole or allowance system such as exists in Great Britain, the continent of Europe and in Australia. Wit hour extraordinary productive system, every ablebodied worker in the United States should be employed at reasonable wages, and would be if one-half the interest and attention that is now given to productive processes were given to the distribution of the wealth that is produced."

At the afternoon session problems of Federal workers in Washington were discussed by Frank A. Birgfeld, chief clerk of the Treasury Department; Gertrude McNally, secretary and treasurer of the National Federation of Federal Employes, and Lewis E. Meriam, of the Institute of Government Research.

No resolutions were adopted by the conference, which met merely to exchange suggestions and ideas concerning economic betterment. Edward Keating presided at last night's session, and introduced Mr. Doak.

Dog Yelps Until Man in Coma Is Rescued, Then Falls Dead

Little Fox Terrier Succumbs to Effects of Exposure Suffered as He Stood in Cold Rain Yelping for Aid for Helpless.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Dec. 10.—Yelping and pawing at his master's door late last night in a cold, drizzling rain, a fox terrier attracted the attention of his owners and several other men and led them to an intoxicated man he had found lying in a muddy alley some distance away. The man was carried to a nearby house, refreshed with hot coffee and a warming fire, and saved. However, fate was not so kind to the little dog, for in a short time he dropped dead from the effects of exposure and prolonged watching and crying for some one to aid the stranger who was down and out.

The story was related by Walter E. Huntaberry, prominent business man, who said his dog, "Trixie" yelped, barked and pawed so incessantly at the door of his home about 3 a. m. that he finally got up to investigate. Leading his master down through the back yard to the alley, the terrier disclosed the cause of his apparent worry. Mr. Huntaberry, with the aid of neighbors took the man to a nearby building, where he was revived and then put to bed after his mud and rain-soaked clothing had been removed.

"Trixie," shivering from cold and drenched with rain, tripped along lightly with his master to the Huntaberry home, and lay down as if to rest. A moment later he gasped and expired just as his master was praising him.

WOODCOCK PREDICTS VICTORY IN DRY WAR

hol and other poisonous denaturants used in European countries and adopted in the United States about 50 years ago.

"The conference emphasizes again that prohibition carries with it no mandate to drink, and even if the new denaturant has all the effects of a sea voyage, it is taken at the option of the drinker."

Earlier Dr. Doran had explained alcotate was made from California and Mexican petroleum, and that orders would be issued in about three weeks to put it into use.

Referendum Move Opposed.

Among the resolutions adopted by the conference was one condemning any proposal to change the eighteenth amendment or to hold a referendum upon it. The dry leaders indorsed all the appropriation bills touching on prohibition enforcement, and asked that the two $10,000 requests for educational purposes in the industrial alcohol and narcotic bureaus be returned.

They also asked "the enactment of the series of bills recommended by the President on January 13, 1930, for the expeditious trial of cases."

NAVY LAGS BEHIND TREATY, SAYS PRATT

the United States to build 73,000 tons of 6-inch gun ships was "good evidence" to him they are not the best.

Admiral Pratt answered he would want only a limited number of 6-inch vessels for functions which could not be performed satisfactorily by the larger ships, such as "close in work under the guns of the battleships." He said he favored appropriation of $16,605,000 for a 6-inch gun cruiser.

"If the London treaty were not in effect would you have recommended two 6-inch gun cruisers to add to the ten we already have?" Britten asked.

"I still would ask for two and possibly more," Admiral Pratt replied.

Admiral Pratt expressed the opinion that the 6-inch cruiser with a complement of airplanes would be a "match" for the 8-inch vessel, since it could take the offensive first and participate in a more versatile action.

He said the department "quite probably" would ask money next year to build another carrier, and that the one the bill would provide could be laid down in 1932 and completed in about three years. He indicated development of combination cruiser-carriers might affect "our position" at future naval conferences because of efforts to modify types so all vessels can carry airplanes.

Snakes Loosed in Theater As Germans Protest Film

One Girl Horror-Stricken on Discovery of Reptile Curled About Leg of Chair, But Audience is Soon Soothed at Showing of "All Quiet."

Berlin, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Snakes were found crawling about among the audience for tonight's performance of "All Quiet on the Western Front" at the Nollendorf Platz Picture House.

At the same time it was learned from an authoritative source that the movie, which has been violently protested by Fascists, probably will be forbidden throughout Germany tomorrow by the Supreme Film Censorship Board.

A panic which began to take form at discovery of the snakes subsided when it was found they were of the harmless garden variety.

One girl was horror-stricken when she discovered a reptile curling around the leg of her chair. A policeman in a nearby seat grabbed it and assured her it was harmless.

Two more garden snakes were caught in different parts of the house. How they got there nobody explained. The police had made only a random search of those who came and apparently somebody slipped through with the snakes in his pockets. More or less quiet had attended the showing of the films since the first protests which included the loosing of white mice.

Outside the theater a good-sized crowd was kept moving and remained orderly.

As a result of the numerous demonstrations, the president of the police today forbade public manifestations but at the same time designated four open places for speech making.

One is the Lustgarten, in the center of the city, opposite the former palace of the former kaiser, always a popular meeting place. The others are the Humbold Thain, Jungfernheide and Treptow playing fields, on the ouskirts.

It was made clear by the police order that these may be used for demonstrations only so long as the gatherings are peaceful and do not endanger public safety.

Fascists charge that the film, which was made by Americans from a German book, is pacifistic and gives an unfair impression of the German private's life in the war.

ISSUE NOT SETTLED IN REALTY QUIZ TILT

General Investigation Is On by Blaine as Tydings Makes Objection.

PLANS HELD UNCHANGED

A tilt between Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, chairman, and Senator Millard Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, over procedure of the Blaine real estate subcommittee of the Senate District committee, was not brought to issue at the second session of the subcommittee held in the Capitol yesterday.

Senator Tydings objected to the committee going on "fishing expeditions," and urged that only those concerns against which a prima facie case of fraud was had should be subjected to the publicity incident to being summoned before the committee for questioning.

Senator Blaine declared that, if the committee adopted such a program, it might as well abandon the investigation, and referred to the action which had been taken as a result of the questioning of Jacob Shapiro. He proposed that Senator Tydings put his proposal in the form of a motion for a vote, but this was not done, and Senator Blaine declared the committee would proceed with the investigation as it had been planned.

Witnesses Heard.

Methods followed by the Country Club Properties Co., Inc., as described by witnesses, were believed to have had a share in causing the disagreement.

Maj. E. Brook Lee, Democratic leader of Montgomery County, Md., in which the Country Club property is located, is counsel for one of the owners of the property.

Mrs. Clara Carr, a widow, 58 years old, who resides on Rittenhouse street, near Second street northwest, told the committee of the promises of immediate and rich returns on her investment, which had been made to her by salesmen of the Country Club properties. She thought there must have been gold in the lots, she said.

Says Promises Broken.

William L. Abernethy, a radio announcer and formerly a salesman for the company, told the committee of how the salesmen were instructed to work on prospects and how promised improvements had not been made. He said he resigned because these promises had not been fulfilled.

J. Henry Oehmann, a certified public accountant, was another witness. He told of auditing the books of the company and was examined by counsel for the committee.

Senator Blaine announced that the committee would wait until the decks are cleared before proceeding further against Harry Wardman, who last week refused to produce for the committee books and records of his companies. Records of one Wardman company, Senator Blaine pointed out, would be required in Alexandria, Va., court this morning and said it was evident that Mr. Wardman intended to obstruct the efforts of the committee.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

BARRING the manner in which he beat around the bush, his adoption of the cloudy terminology of the Diplomatic Corps, which after all may be appropriate to one in his high state, Senator Joe Robinson's remarks yesterday leaves the critics in his party without a peg to stand on. After all, we have seldom had anything so abused or magnified around here as that cooperation statement which he signed and the word "harmony" which grew out of it.

And we have gotten the very distinct impression that those abusing them and magnifying them, both on the Democratic and Republican side, have been motivated far more by politics, mischief and downright selfishness than the signers of the statement ever dreamed of.

* * * *

ROBINSON'S statement yesterday holds out no hope for those Democrats who want to go along trailing the Progressives with their debenture, Muscle Shoals bill and whatnot, which will never get anywhere or amount to anything if they do.

It does not seem to imply that he will withdraw his forces from these fights if they come up in the due processes of the Senate after the unemployment and other relief bills and appropriation measures are out of the way and there is time, so to speak, to play but he does seem very definitely to lay down a proposition that he will not pursue a course simply to obstruct the administration which manifestly and with reasonable political justice has been the Democratic policy heretofore.

BUT that he and the administration are walking hand in hand develops to be utterly ridiculous when he enunciates his program.

On the matter of the $60,000,000 drought relief bill passed Tuesday he and Mr. Hoover were just exactly $35,000,000 apart and Mr. Hoover felt very strongly about it, too.

Mr. Robinson has also a bill pending to give $5,000,000 to each State for farm-to-market road construction and the flotation of a bond issue to provide the funds, or if necessary, he is willing to increase taxes to get the funds.

An unbridgeable gulf separates Mr. Hoover and Mr. Robinson on that.

* * * *

It becomes very evident, in fact, that Mr. Hoover and Mr. Robinson are about as far apart as two men could possibly be and the split is over proposals advanced from the Democratic side, not from the Progressives. Furthermore, they are over admittedly constructive proposals, or something from which the country would admittedly benefit.

The clash is over how far the two men are willing to go to get the funds with which to carry the proposals out.

Those who are gunning for Robinson probably feel that he should use stronger language in referring to the President, but that has been the trouble with the party—strong language is all it has had. Robinson has a very definite program.

We are coming to believe the man is really big; in fact, big enough for those spats which some of his fellow Democrats seem to resent.

RUTH NICHOLS SETS PLANE SPEED MARK

Uses 13 Hours 21 Minutes on Flight to New York From Los Angeles.

SEVERE STORMS STRUCK

New York, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Ruth Nichols flew her fleet monoplane, The New Cincinnati, past all the transcontinental records of her own sex and took her place right up among the best of the masculine fliers today by completing a two-day one-stop flight from coast to coast in 13 hours 21 minutes and 43 seconds.

In a borrowed ship, a stock model from the Lockheed Vega factory, loaned to her for the trip by a radio company of Cincinnati, she came in from Wichita, Kans., in 6 hours 21 minutes and 43 seconds, which was believed to be the fastest journey of its length ever made by man or women in unbroken flight. The distance is 1,300 miles.

The actual flying time bettered the previous marks of Charles A. Lindbergh and Capt. Roscoe Turner by upward of an hour, although her elapsed time was greater by virtue of an overnight stop in Wichita to rest. The only faster flying time on record tonight for the 2,300-mile coast to coast journey was that of Capt. Frank Hawks.

Close to Lindbergh's Time.

Taking off from Los Angeles yesterday morning the society girl flier set her plant down at Wichita 7 hours 1 minute later, an hour behind the record-breaking time of Capt. Hawks and 5 minutes behind that of Lindbergh last Easter Sunday. Starting from Wichita at 7:41 (E. S. T.).

This morning she rode a tail wind into New York to finish a journey from the Pacific's shores almost 9 hours ahead of the best previous time of a woman—21 hours 47 minutes, the mark made last October by Mrs. Keith-Miller.

The young woman from Rye, N. Y., who flies because she enjoys it, climbed from her plane at Roosevelt Field, wiped the smudge of oil and dirt from her face and told how yesterday she battled a Rocky Mountain storm for 2 hours and today she flew blind for the same length of time.

Severe Rain Squalls Hit.

Between Wichita and St. Louis, she said, rain squalls beat against her windshield in such fury she often had to lean out the side window of her cabin to look ahead and gauge her height above the ground.

"It began to clear up when I crossed the Mississippi at St. Louis," she said smiling, "and I rode a tail wind almost all the way in."

She found her radio valuable in getting weather reports, especially the direction and velocity of the wind at various altitudes. As far as St. Louis she flew very low, but she came on from there at an altitude of 7,000 to 10,000 feet.

FUND FOR CHILDREN PASSES $1,000 MARK their donations to the fund as yet, but they will soon be in line, some of them with checks for large amounts, others with smaller contributions, but each welcome in the funds because the gifts, no matter how small, help make some child happy on Christmas Day.

There'll be no empty stockings in the homes of the needy if The Post fund continues as it has started. And with Christmas spirit rapidly spreading throughout the city, it doubtless will grow more rapidly than before. Every dollar means a smile on some boyish or girlish face Christmas morning and no worthier cause can be found.

Presents for the children, picked because the youngsters have expressed a desire for these particular articles, will be delivered to the children through their parents wherever possible, The Post, believing that parents are entitled to share in the joy of their children, even if circumstances prevent them from furnishing most of that joy.

Mail or bring your check to the toy fund editor of The Washington Post. If your children want to contribute their pennies, nickels and dimes, a gift box is maintained in the lobby of The Post Building. You'll feel better with your own presents Christmas morning if you've helped make some tot believe in Santa Claus.

Extra cost of relief work, which will be brought about when eviction notices on strikers' families now occupying mill-owned homes take effect in less than two weeks, is engaging attention of the Danville strike relief board. Each central labor union in the country has been appealed to for financial aid. Eviction proceedings will start Saturday noon, if rent arrears are not paid, and occupants must vacate during Christmas week, whether the rent is paid or not.

KELLOGG PRESENTED NOBEL PEACE AWARD

Fifth American to Receive Prize Denounces Talk of Another War.

KING HAAKON IS PRESENT

Oslo, Norway, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Sounding a confident note on world peace, but at the same time warning that western civilization could not withstand a new war, Frank B. Kellogg, whose efforts toward world peace resulted in the Kellogg-Briand pact, today received the Nobel peace prize for 1929.

An orchestra played the Star-Spangled Banner as the former American Secretary of State, fifth of his countrymen to win the award, received a diploma and medal from Prof. Frederick Stang, president of the Nobel committee.

King Haakon was present with Crown Prince Olav and a distinguished gathering of cabinet members and other Norwegian notables.

In an address preceding the presentation, Premier Johan Mowinckel described Mr. Kellogg as "the man of practical politics," contrasting him with Dr. Nathan Soederblom, winner of the 1930 award, whom the premier termed "a man of the church and a spiritual warrior."

In acknowledging the award Mr. Kellogg asserted there was no indication of war in the world, but rather the prospect was for continued peace.

"General unrest," he said, "is a natural expression of hard times everywhere, but there has been no war and we should be thankful to take it as a good omen that peace prevails today on the earth.

"I feel sorry that so many people, among them many of my own countrymen, constantly predict a new war. I have said it before, and will emphasize it as strongly as possible, that Western culture will never outlive a new war, but will perish in a general chaos.

"I know of no nobler work for humanity than promoting peace. Men must adopt higher and greater goals than that of settling international quarrels by arms.

Present Peace Efforts Cited.

"Leading statesmen have taken steps to prevent a new catastrophe, and while these measures are no absolute guaranty of peace, they are the most secure arrangements hitherto adopted by the nations."

Mr. Kellogg said he regarded the award not only as an honor to himself but to his countrry as well, and as a recognition of America's efforts toward peace and a higher civilization.

The audience applauded when he arose to receive the prize from Prof. Stang while the "Star-Spangled Banner" was played. The playing of the Swedish national anthem that followed was the signal for Dr. Soederblom to receive the 1930 peace award.

Other Americans who have won the Nobel prize for peace were Theodore Roosevelt in 1906, Elihu Root in 1912, Woodrow Wilson in 1919 and Ambassador Charles G. Dawes in 1925.

SHOALS OPERATION BY FARMERS URGED

ASKS REVOLVING FUND

Boston, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—The American Farm Bureau Federation today adopted a resolution seeking operation of Muscle Shoals by a cooperative organization of farmers. The federation also voiced its opposition to amending the agricultural marketing act at this time.

Among other resolutions adopted were:

Recommendation for stricter regulation of the grain and cotton exchanges.

Recommendation that funds to be used as loans to farmers in the purchase of feed for foundation animals, fertilizer and seeds, in the drought-stricken areas, be made available immediately.

Urge Appropriations.

That the present session of Congress appropriate money to insure the immediate carrying out of the development projects authorized in the rivers and harbors act of 1930.

Advocation of a revolving fund in the Federal Treasury to be used exclusively to stabilize Federal Land Bank bonds.

The resolution pertaining to Muscle Shoals authorized and instructed the board of directors of the federation to move to set up and organize a corporation, which would be truly representative of agriculture, with the view toward leasing and operating Muscle Shoals on a cooperative basis. The federation intends to present a bill in Congress to carry out the plan, Everett A. O'Neill, of Alabama, chairman of the resolutions committee, said during the discussion.

Program Approved.

The agricultural marketing act resolution, in addition to opposing any amendment of the act, aproved the stabilization activities of the Federal Farm Board in wheat and cotton, and asked that these activities be extended to other crops. Under the resolution the Government would be asked to establish a revolving fund, of whatever amount was deemed necessary, for the stabilization and other activities.

The federation recommended that the grain and cotton exchanges be licensed by the Secretary of Agriculture, and that he should have the power to close or suspend them if he deemed it necessary.

New Air Servivce To Capital Opens

18-Passenger Plane Lands in Washington After Atlanta Hop.

Inaugurating the opening of a new air line between Washington and Atlanta, an eighteen-passenger biplane landed at Hoover Field at 4:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon carrying Postmaster General Walter E. Brown, Capt. Thomas B. Doe, president of the new line—the Eastern Air Transport—and other aviation officials and passengers.

The plane was greeted by a delegation from the Washington Chamber of Commerce, headed by Harry King, first vice president. Mr. King and Capt. Doe exchanged greetings as they stood beside the plane. Capt. Doe drew attention to the lack of an adequate municipal airport in Washington, and he was told by Mr. King of the movement of the Chamber of Commerce to eliminate Mility road between Hoover Field and Washington Airport.

The plane took off for New York a few minutes after landing here. Several young women guests of the Eastern Air Transport were aboard.

LAVAL RENOUNCES CABINET EFFORTS

tion as the only weapon to bring the warring parties to an armistice, an absolute peace being regarded as impossible.

Because Andre Tardieu's defeat was on a question of straight out-and-out policy and not on a catch vote, as is often the case in the French Parliament, it is said to be impossible for President Doumergue to call him again at this time.

In addition, M. Tardieu was a "prosperity premier," and came into political power on the crest of the greatest gold wave France has ever known. While the pinch of unemployment misery is yet unfelt in France, the country is being affected more with each passing week. Many manufacturers and shops are working part time, and the hour for retrenchment of expenses in mode of living has struck in France. The man in the street is inclined to blame M. Tardieu.

M. Briand tonight eliminated himself from the ranks of possible organizers of a cabinet on the ground of indifferent health.

The men who M. Laval had recruited for his ministry, including Tardieu, Barthou, Painleve, Cheron and Maginot, who approved M. Laval's decision to abandon his attempt, appealed to M. Briand as the man best qualified by a long career and eminent ability to form a cabinet under existing circumstances. But M. Briand said that, while touched by the tribute paid him, he nevertheless would be obliged to decline if the premiership were offered him.

Towels said that he was insured against fire loss last April 17 for one year, and alleges that the company has refused to pay the loss on the basis that he had not filed a written notice concerning the fire within 30 days. Attorneys Fred J. Rice and W. Cameron Burton appear for the plaintiff.

ALEXANDRIANS URGE HOME MODERNIZING

Chamber of Commerce Makes Plea to Provide More Jobs.

CAMPAIGN IS IN OFFING

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Alexandria Chamber of Commerce yesterday issued an appeal to property owners to help in the unemployment situation by modernizing their homes and making necessary repairs, thus giving work to men who are in need of it, and also tending to stimulate business conditions.

The letter, addressed to property owners, states that the chamber of commerce is convinced that many homes now vacant in Alexandria could be rented if such conveniences as bathrooms, hot and cold water, and heating plants were installed and electric lights provided for every room.

"At no time," the appeal continues, "has there been a better opportunity to purchase building material at reasonable prices, and such purchases made now may be looked upon as investments rather than expenditures, because as soon as the demand increases, prices will go up accordingly.

"Improvements and repairs made now will provide work for common labor, electricians, brick masons, painters and others and will bring more money in circulation from which the citizens will benefit greatly. There are many things that can be done in a large number of homes and buildings in Alexandria, and instead of postponing action on such things, the chamber of commerce believes that they should be done now.

"The business manager of the chamber of commerce has called the matter to the attention of Mr. L. H. Dudley, chairman of the civic development committee, with the request that his committee initiate a campaign for immediate improvement of the homes and buildings in Alexandria.

"People in Alexandria who have odd jobs to give out or regular work will confer a favor upon the Chamber of Commerce by requesting it to supply the labor. There are still a number of men and women looking for work and it is the plan of the Chamber of Commerce to supply as much work as possible before Christmas so that everybody may be happy in the city."

The Washington Society of Alexandria will stage a benefit for the United Charities, to be given on January 14, in connection with the celebration of the 131st anniversary of the founding of the society. The celebration will be held in the old Presbyterian Meeting House on South Fairfax street, and Representative James H. Beck, of Pennsylvania, has accepted an invitation to deliver the principal address. One of the features of the celebration will be the display of a number of battle flags, including those of the Revolutionary War.

The society has named these chairmen of committees to handle the arrangements: W. L. Norford, tickets; Arthur K. Warfield, ushers and seating; Frank W. Noxon, music; Robert B. Murphy, advertising and posters; Frank W. Noxon, C. C. Carlin, jr., and John B. Gordon, publicity.

A committee consisting of Joseph H. Newell, Mauchlin Nivin and Virgil Davis has been appointed for the purpose of preparing a communication to be presented to the city council urging the appropriation of funds for a public library.

Dr. Robert South Barrett, who has visited practically every city of size in the world, addressed the Business and Professional Women's Club Tuesday night at the meeting held at the George Mason Hotel, on the most interesting city he had ever seen—Bethlehem. He referred to many of th interesting points in London, Paris, New York, San Francisco and Petrograd, and many cities of South America, China and Japan, then going into details of the Holy City. He described the stable, or more correctly, grotto, in which the Saviour was born, and how it now is under a beautiful church building, with a silver star marking the spot on which the manger stood, lighted by gold, silver and jeweled lamps, with this inscription by the star, "Hhere was born Jesus of Nazareth."

The meting was opened with the singing of Chirstmas carols by a group of children of the third and fifth grades of Lee School, in charge of two of the teachers of that school., Miss Florence Miller, who directed the singing, and Miss Josephine Berger, at the piano.

Mrs. Mary W. Troth, the president, introduced the guests of the club members. Miss Minnie Herndon had with her Miss Whitestone, of Washington; Miss Lelia Thompson, Miss Bennett, of Clarendon, and Miss Buckingham, of Louisiana; Mrs. Annie Demaine, Mrs. Joseph L. Reynolds; Mrs. Charles M. Shepperson, Mrs. Ethan Allen Jones, and Mrs. Fletcher Dyson, accompanied by Miss Williamson.

Miss Corinne T. Reardon, program chairman, presented Stephen H. Field, tenor soloiste in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, who sang two Christmas songs, with Mrs. D. C. Book at the piano.

Miss Bertha K. Allison, corresponding secretary, read letters from the board of managers of the Anne Lee Memorial Home for the Aged asking a Christmas contribution, and the secretary of the Washington Society of Alexandria, asking the cooperation of the club in a charity benefit performance on January 14. Miss Alice H. Whitton, finance chairman, asked the club members to continue in first place in the State federation in contributions to the fund to entertain the national convention in July, 1931, the obligation to be fulfilled by April 1.

The club voted to hold the January supper meeting on January 23, when Miss Newbold, a National Federation representative, will be in the city and may address the club on the convention plans. Mrs. Joseph H. Newell, from the Alexandria Library Board, asked that the club indorse a movement of that board to establish a public library in the city, and Miss Margaret Germond, a past president of the local club, and vice president of the State body, stated the club had started such a movement in 1922, and she felt the action taken at this time should be simply to reaffirm the stand of that date. The present Alexandria Library is a subscription affair and holds the second oldest charter in the United States, being ranked only by Harvard University.

The city council, at an informal meeting today, will have for consideration the report of a special committee of the chamber of commerce named to investigate the proposed increase in rates by the Alexandria Water Co., effective February 1. The report will be submitted to the council by a delegation including Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the chamber; J. William May, Irvin Diener, Howard T. Colvin and Francis H. Fannon. Mr. May and others will address the council.

The report was submitted by a committee headed by Harry Hammond, and asks that the proposed rate increase be resisted by the city council.

Canon J. W. Gummere will be the principal speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club in the George Mason Hotel today, his subject being "The National Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul in Washington." The address will be illustrated with lantern slides. The speaker will be introduced by the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and "sky pilot" of the Kiwanis, who is chairman of the program committee for this week.

The health report for November, submitted by Dr. W. Lewis Schaffer, city health officer, shows 40 births and 26 deaths recorded during the month. There were 360 persons treated at the city poor clinic, and the report of Miss Marguerite Davis, visiting nurse, shows, 210 visits, 14 new patients, 9 homes posted and 24 days devoted to the health clinic.

Relief Truck and Engine Company of the Alexandria Fire Department has elected these officers for the ensuing year: Henry Baader, president, eighth consecutive term; Conrad Schwab, first vice president; J. POSTAL CLERKS SHOW GRATITUDE would increase the cost of running the service. There was plenty of labor available without improved conditions, he contended.

Harris & Ewing.

Representative Samuel A. Kendall, of Pennsylvania (left), being congratulated by Thomas F. Flaherty, legislative representative of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, after his bill reducing postal working hours from 48 to 44 weekly passed the House.

HOUSE WOULD CUT POSTAL WORK HOURS

Those affected by the measure include clerks and other employes in first and second class postoffices, letter carriers in the city delivery service and the railway mail clerks. Some of these, Mr. Flaherty said, have been given time off in the past under permissive departmental regulations. Enactment of the bill passed by the House will make the working hours equal as a matter of law.

The bill was introduced in the House by Representative William Kendall (Republican), of Pennsylvania, and will, Mr. Flaherty said, mean, in addition to additional leisure for postal workers, "more than $1,000,000 monthly in circulation throughout 5,000 cities and towns in the purchase of necessities by 10,000 wage earners."

"It is a practical application, as I see it, of the Hoover idea for unemployment relief and business stimulation," Mr. Flaherty said.

MAN PLEADS GUILTY TO DESTROYING MILK

Sentence Held in Abeyance as Probation Officer Gets Case.

ACTION WAS SURPRISE

Harry Maynard Rothgeb pleaded guilty in District Supreme Court yesterday to two indictments charging him with destroying private property in connection with the recent destruction of two truckloads of milk belonging to Thompson's and the Chestnut Farms dairies.

Justice Peyton Gordon, before whom the plea was made, listened to a recommendation for clemency and referred the matter to Probation Officer Amos A. Steel. Pending the report of Mr. Steel, Justice Gordon stated that the matter of sentence would be held in abeyance.

Rothgeb's plea of guilty came as a complete surprise, since he was expected to go to trial within the next few weeks.

Rothgeb is jointly indicted with Elmer Carr Rayford and Richard Conte. All three men are alleged to have poured a liquid over bottles of milk belonging to the Chompson and Chestnut Farms dairies. All were charged with destroying and attempting to destroy the contents of two milk wagons which were parked near Connecticut and Cathedral avenues.

The maximum penalty faced by each man is twenty years. All have been indicted separately in connection with the destruction of the property of each dairy.

Inventor to Address Association.

C. Francis Jenkins, well-known inventor, will be the principal speaker at a meeting of the Home and School Association to be held at the Paul Junior High School tonight at 8 o'clock. Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools, will be the guest of honor.

Dr. Abram Simon to Speak.

Dr. Abram Simon, of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, will speak on "Why Am I a Jew?" at the Eighth Street Temple tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. This subject was taken by Dr. Simon in the recent religious forum at the Washington Auditorium in which Clarence Darrow participated.

F. H. SMITH DEFENSE WITNESSES GRILLED

Prosecution Claims Stories Vary From Those Told to Grand Jury.

FORGET MANY POINTS

Apparent discrepancies between testimony given yesterday by defense witnesses in the F. H. Smith conspiracy trial and that given by them before the grand jury last April were brought out by the Government in District Supreme Court. Armed with a transcript of the record of the grand jury proceedings prosecution attorneys, on cross-examination, vigorously attacked statements of witnesses which they declared were at variance with their previous testimony.

One defense witness who proved unusually forgetful was Charles F. Marvin, former assistant treasurer of the F. H. Smith Co. Mr. Marvin, on direct examination, told of the bookkeeping system of the company and stated that canceled checks were taken by the auditor, reconciled with the cash account and then filed.

On cross-examination, conducted by Nugent Dodds, Assistant Attorney General, Marvin told of an occasion, about midnight of May 9, 1929, when he helped load a truck with trunks at the Smith Building. The truck, he said, left for an unknown destination and he went home. At a later time, he testified, he drove an automobile belonging to John H. Edwards, jr., former Smith company officer and a defendant in the trial, behind a truckload of trunks to an unknown farm in Maryland. Mr. Edwards, he said, was in the car.

Says He Burned Books.

Asked if he had been requested by Mr. Edwards or C. Elbert Anadale, former vice president of the Smith company and another defendant, to remove canceled checks from the company's files, he said he didn't remember. He declared that he had burned some books and records in the furnace of the building, but that he remembered no canceled checks among them.

Turning to the grand jury record, Mr. Dodds then read his reported answers to questions at that time. According to the record, Mr. Marvin had answered that at Mr. Anadale's direction he had removed "many" canceled checks and that he had seen bundles of checks among the records burned. Asked if he remembered this testimony, he replied that he did not.

Questioned concerning the companys loan account record, he said he had seen this ledger last in November, 1929. His testimony before the grand jury, Mr. Dodds declared, was that he had last seen this record before he had been appointed assistant treasurer of the company. Mr. Dodds then read further alleged testimony before the grand jury which indicated that he had been appointed to the post in December 1928. He said he could not remember his testimony before the grand jury.

Auditor Says Vaults Untidy.

Another witness, Clyde F. Miller, auditor of the Hamilton Hotel and former traveling auditor of the Smith company, testified that the company's vaults were in an "untidy" condition when he was put in charge of them in June, 1928. He testified that he bundled up some old papers and left them there when he was sent to New York on company business.

He also testified that he took charge of the petty cash during the regular cashier's vacation and that the funds were handled in a regular and orderly manner. The amount of the petty cash fund, he said, averaged $25,000, this amount being kept on hand to pay matured coupons and bonds and for other large disbursements.

On cross-examination by Mr. Dodds, the witness testified that when he returned from New York all of the old records he had bundled up were gone, the shelves of the vault were "cleaned out," and there were several trunks on the floor. He said, however, that the records for 1927, 1928 and 1929 were in their places.

Denies Jury Testimony.

When Mr. Dodds read his reported testimony before the April grand jury, to the effect that he had said that "everything of any practical consequence" was gone from the vault, Mr. Miller denied that he had said it. He later modified this denial to say he didn't recall having made that statement.

Testimony of Samuel J. Henry, turbulent prosecution witness of Tuesday, to the effect that he had removed ledger sheets from accounts at the Southern Maryland Trust Co., and delivered them to G. Bryan Pitts, the third defendant, was contradicted by Mrs. Verona Rouse, former employe. Mrs. Rouse testified that she not only did not take any such records, but that she never told Mr. Henry that she had.

On cross-examination by Mr. Dodds, she said that she had taken bank statements to Mr. Henry and also letters from the bank concerning the statements. She said that she took the ledger sheets from their file and gave them to Joe Howard, colored janitor.

Wrangle Over Evidence.

A lawyer's wrangle occurred during the afternoon over admissibility in evidence of a letter offered by the defense. It was overruled by Justice William Hitz, presiding. The defense then offered several documents, including an alleged receipt from Leo A. Rover, United States attorney, for certain Smith company records, which were shown to the jury.

At the request of defense attorneys, Justice Hitz read from the record testimony of Mr. Henry that Mr. Pitts had "stolen $200,000," and told the jury that it had been stricken from the record and that they must disregard it.

Yesterday's session was opened by the introductory statement of the defense, made by Wilton J. Lambert, defense attorney. The burden of Mr. Lambert's statement was that his client had used only funds rightfully earned by him and belonging to him, and that no records were destroyed except those which would be disposed of in the normal course of business.

"A conspiracy," he said, "is only an agreement to commit an unlawful act. We will show that there was never an agreement on the part of any of the defendants to take anything that didn't belong to them. We will show that the deposits made to the credit of the defendant Pitts in the Southern Maryland Trust Co., at Seat Pleasant, Md., were moneys belonging to him or funds from which he was entitled to draw.

"The Smith company followed a system of building operations which is in common use. They would acquire a piece of property and then plan to erect thereon a building at a cost, let us say, of $1,000,000. A corporation would be formed to finance this enterprise, and stock in the corporation would be sold to various individuals."

He pointed out that substantially all of the stock in such corporations was sometimes owned by Mr. Pitts. When a building was erected under the estimated cost of construction, there would be a surplus, most of which would belong to Mr. Pitts, virtually the owner of the corporation.

HUGHES IS ELECTED RED CROSS OFFICIAL

Chief Justice Wills Vacancy as Vice President, Caused by Death of Taft.

OTHER OFFICERS NAMED

The central committee of the American National Red Cross yesterday elected Charles Evans Hughes, Chief Justice of the United States, to succeed the late William Howard Taft as vice president of the organization.

Mr. Hughes afterward presided at the presentation of a bust of Henri Dunant, founder of the Red Cross of the world. The bust was presented in the name of Americans of Swiss descent by Marc Peter, the Swiss Minister, and accepted for the Red Cross by Chairman John Barton Payne. Ernest Durig, the sculptor, was present.

The following additional officers were elected by the board of incorporators yesterday: John D. Ryan, of Butte, Mont., and George E. Scott, of Chicago, to succeed themselves on the central committee; Howard Benton, of Chicago, to succeed the late Frank O. Wetmore as a member of the board of trustees of the endowment fund; John B. Miller, of Los Angeles; James Parmelee, of this city, and Felx M. Warburg, of New York, to succeed themselves as members of the board of the endowment fund.

Those elected to the board of incorporators included Mrs. George Drexel, of Philadelphia, to succeed the late Mrs. Arthur Lea, of Philadelphia; John L. Merrill, of New York, to succeed the late Judge Robert W. Miers, of Bloomington, Ind., and Mrs. Charles Brown to succeed the late Mrs. Charles Scott, jr., of Philadelphia.

Afterward the delegates of chapters met and elected two members of the central committee for three years, Mrs. Henry P. Davison, of Long Island, and Henry Upson Sims, of Birmingham.

Resolutions were adopted on the death of former Chief Justice Taft. He had served the Red Cross in various capacities for 25 years, first as president when he became chief executive and later as vice president.

THRONG HELD AT BAY WHILE FOUR ROB BANK

change. A messenger for the Interstate National Bank was held up in December, 1922, and robbed of canceled checks for $2,000,000. The checks were recovered.

Four Wounded.

Frankston, Tex., Dec. 10 (A.P.).—A gun fight which resulted in the wounding of two officers and two of four men believed to be the quartet who looted the First State Bank of Frankston of $11,236.90 tonight had failed to halt the flight of the bandits.

Deputy Sheriffs Charles Curry, of Frankston, and Charles Emmerson, of Poyner, and Constable Charles Slaughter, of Frankston, overtook the men, in a mud-stalled automobile, 12 miles from Frankston. Both groups, Slaughter reported, began firing. Two of the suspected bandits were wounded, as was Emmerson, who received a bullet through the chest, and Slaughter, who was struck in the hand.

The two suspects untouched by bullets aided their wounded companions in a dash through the roadside brush. Then they stole a truck from a passing driver, placed their wounded in the machine, and sped away to the west.

Pursue in Truck.

Curry, seeing his fellow officers had been given a ride by a passing motorist, recruited a Negro farm hand, entered the officers' machine and gave chase to the truck. Possemen joined the officer.

The bank was robbed just after noon today. Cashier Ray Perry said two men remained at the front, while their companions compelled Perry and Mrs. Carrie Watkins, assistant cashier, to enter the vault. The robbers took all the money in sight—the $11,236.90—and backed out, closing the vault door and throwing the bolt.

They failed, however, to force the combination lock shut, Perry said, and in consequence, persons who entered the bank when news first spread of the holdup, were able to release the cashier and his assistant. The loss was covered by insurance and would occasion the bank no financial embarrassment, Perry said.

Rockefeller, Jr., Allowed Reduction.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Dec. 10 (A.P.).—John D. Rockefeller, jr., today won tax reductions totaling $100,000 on his North Tarrytown estate by action of the town board of trustees. The Rockefeller assessment was about $700,000 and the oil millionaire protested the levy on about 65 pieces of property whose value was $150,000.

NOISE OF YEGGMEN LANDS TRIO IN JAIL

Man, Arrested With Waiting Women at Keedysville, Admits Robbery.

COMPTNION GETS AWAY

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 10.—With the arrest of one man and two women early today at Keedysville, and the confession of the man that he and a companion, who escaped, had cracked the safe in the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad station at Keedysville, authorities here believe they have broken up the gang of yeggmen who have been operating in Washington County for some months.

Guy R. Rotz, former convict, under arrest, confessed and implicatde Walter Baker, also a former convict, who escaped with the loot, about $45 in cash. Rotz's wife and Sylvia Cook, of Martinsburg, W. Va., arrested in the Baker car, were waiting for the pair when Deputy Sheriff Richard Renner surprised them.

George Line, living opposite the station, heard the yeggmen at work, and notified the authorities. Renner, in approaching Keedysville, observed the darkened parked car with the two women sitting in it. He questioned them, and became suspicious and waited beside the car. Soon Rotz appeared alone and was placed under arrest, but his companion did not appear.

The trio declined to reveal their identity until the license of the automobile was identified as that of Baker's mother, living here. Rotz then confessed to State's Attorney Lloyd Harshman. The women are being held in jail as material witnesses.

ROWDIES, WITH AX, WRECK ROADHOUSE

Interior of Green Gables Is Smashed Following the Beating of Pair.

DOOR IS BROKEN OPEN

Entering Green Gables, a well-known roadhouse near Suitland, which has been closed since Sunday night, when one man was shot and another one badly beaten in a fight in the place, rowdies wrecked the interior with an ax. Entrance was gained by smashing in a door.

Furniture was broken and the weapon used in the destruction was left buried in the cash register. Police are without clews to the identity of the wreckers. The destruction was reported to Prince Georges County officials by Edward Tipton, who claimed to be manager of the resort.

Green Gables, the name of which was recently changed to the Iron Lantern, has been the scene of a series of fights, and two men have been killed in brawls in the place. Early last year a gun battle between Philadelphia gangsters and Capital gunmen resulted in the death of two men.

The most recent disturbance in the place was a riot in which a Washington policeman, Private Lauritz Christiansen, and his broher Yens, a Coast guardsman, were badly beaten. Yens was also shot in the knee. Patrons of the place attacked the pair when Christiansen was identified as being a policeman.

Negro Actor Killed by Taxi.

New York, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Wesley Hill, Negro actor, who portrayed the Angel Gabriel in Marc Connelly's Biblical fable, "The Green Pastures," was killed by a taxicab today as he stepped from behind an elevated line pillar in Harlem. He was 55 years old.

TWO MISSING FLIERS SAVED FROM NORTH

for the Burke party and a missing rescue plane. The missing ship carried Pilot Robin Renahan and two Seattle men. It is believed to have plunged into the sea near Prince Rupert, B. C.

Wasson and Walsh sighted the Burke plane from the air late in November. They returned three days later, alighted 15 miles from where they had seen the plane and mushed in to inspect it.

Upon reaching Burke's ship Wasson found this message carved in a tree:

"October 17, leaving for Wolf Lake. Need food badly."

Wasson and Walsh, convinced an experienced woodsman like Marten would seek shelter in some cabin until lakes and rivers were frozen before trying to reach a settlement, pursued the search on foot through snow waist deep in some places.

Today they found Kading and Marten alive about 40 miles from the deserted plane. They had lived frugally on what wild game they could kill after their provisions ran out. The bitter cold, however, had taken the life of Burke.

The pilot, whose home is in Vancouver, B. C., is survived by a widow and two sons.

The Burke plane disappeared October 11, just before the winter freeze-up began. They were seen flying back to Atlin, B. C., after Burke had delivered sluice boxes to a mining camp at Lower Liard Post in which Marten was interested.

The plane, a Junkers, built in Germany, bore the same propeller that pulled the Bremen across the Atlantic.

Anti-Semitic Crowds Stage Roumanian Riots

Bucharest, Roumania, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Several disorders were reported in Roumania today, the anniversary of the establishment of an anti-semitic movement by students. In the town of Cluj, 30 persons broke into the local synagogue, smashing the furniture and removing the sacred rolls. Six were arrested.

Anti-semitic crowds in Bucharest smashed the windows of numerous other Jewish stores.

CHASTENED RAIDERS.

President Hoover's castigation of politicians in Congress who are intent upon raiding the Treasury for their States and districts, in the name of unemployment and drought relief, has had a good effect. Some of them entered a protest against the charge that they were playing politics at the expense of human misery. Perhaps they felt that the public expected them to say something in answer to the charge, although Mr. Hoover did not single out any individual politicians or any political party. His denunciation of political Treasury-looting was strictly nonpartisan.

The country has given immediate support to the President in his determination to guard the Treasury and the national finances while proposing liberal appropriations for unemployment and drought relief. The people see only too clearly that extravagant appropriations would do more harm than good, by imposing unnecessary taxes and thereby putting a clog upon all business that is trying to recover. If Congress will cut the cloth to the pattern proposed by the President there will be no need of increased taxation. The Treasury will find a way to bridge over a comparatively small deficit, but it can not be expected to meet enormous charges.

The would-be pork-grabbers are in a chastened mood, now that they discover that the country stands behind President Hoover in resisting foolish and extravagant raids disguised as "relief" measures.

The Senate yesterday took a step back toward sanity when it rejected the Blaine amendment, which proposed that the Government should donate $80,000,000 toward highways, without requiring the States to put up an equal amount. The unemployment emergency is primarily a matter with which the States should deal. They can manifest their independence and self-reliance best by attending to their own unemployed. They do not need encouragement in extravagance, in view of their enormous taxes and debts as compared with Federal finance.

In putting his foot down firmly upon schemes to exploit the Treasury and the taxpayers President Hoover acted as a faithful agent of the whole people. The attempts of politicians to pile on the agony by exaggerating public distress as a prelude to extracting enormous sums to be squandered in favored States and districts are so transparent that they fool nobody. Reckless and foolish proposals to spend vast sums of the taxpayers' money will now be scrutinized by the public more carefully than ever, and politicians who attempt to make political capital out of the situation will merely subject themselves to public rebuke.

NO WAGE REDUCTIONS.

Elimination of funds for adjustment of underpaid Government workers' salaries is not the Senate appropriations committee's idea of economy. The committee promptly struck out of the Treasury-Postoffice supply bill the amendment which would deprive low-pay workers of their just dues. The bill is scheduled to come up on the floor of the Senate today, and there is every indication that the appropriations committee will be sustained.

The budget contemplated appropriation of only 30 per cent of the money needed to bring the underaverage salaries up to standard. In view of the financial situation it was decided to extend this expenditure over a period of three or four years. To ask Government workers to wait three years for the full benefits of a law that is already on the statute books is sacrifice enough. The attempt of the House to deprive them of all increases within grades under the classification act is a deliberate injustice.

If the Senate insists upon restoration of funds for these increases to all the appropriation bills it will have support of public opinion and the House will have to yield. The appropriations committee has done well to take a firm stand on the first supply bill, so that the controversy can be disposed of without jeopardizing the enactment of these essential measures.

It is absurd for the House to favor a virtual reduction in salaries for Federal employes when the Government is doing its utmost to induce private industry to maintain wages at the 1929 level. The country wants no wage reductions. The House should make a graceful exit from its unsound position by passing the remainder of the supply bills without the Wood amendment.

RAILROADS HARD PRESSED.

The meeting of the Association of Railway Labor Union executives for the specific purpose of evolving a plan for the relief of unemployment in the brotherhoods focuses attention again upon the desperate situation in which the railroads find themselves. The unions propose that the hours of the 1,600,000 men in railway service be reduced by from 10 to 25 per cent, that hourly wages be increased proportionately, and that schedules be readjusted to prevent the reduction in hours from being used other than to provide additional jobs. Under this plan, says David B. Robertson, chairman of the executive committee of the association, "there will be no reduction in the earnings of the men now employed and no increase in such earnings through overtime. There will be an increase in the number of men employed and in the total pay rolls."

It is questionable whether the railroads can afford to expand their employe lists and increase their pay rolls at this time. In the last decade their revenue has fallen off, while their expenses have increased. As far back as 1926, Alfred P. Thom, general counsel of the Association of Railway Executives, told the Interstate Commerce Commission:

> We are confronting problems created by the introduction of new agencies of transportation, such as the motor vehicle on the highway, the airplane, and greatly expanded and improved systems of waterways. While the future and the consequences of none of these can as yet be forecast with certainty or with accuracy, they all possess possibilities which can not be ignored. At least one of them—the motor vehicle on the highway—has already made a demonstration which entitles it to rank as a permanent and useful addition to our transportation facilities. It has even now become a substantial competitor in the transportation field for the carrying of passengers and commodities. This competition could not be of moment unless it had been found that the new agency meets in some way a public want.

Since 1926 the economic position of the railroads has become even less favorable. From 1920 to 1929 revenue ton miles increased but 8.8 per cent, whereas between 1890 and 1900 they had increased 85.8 per cent. Passenger miles from 1920 to 1929 decreased 34.2 per cent. Meanwhile, motor vehicle registrations for passenger cars and buses increased 181.1 per cent from 1920 to 1929, truck registrations increased 235.9 per cent and the number of buses increased 825 per cent. Between 1921 and 1929 transcontinental tonnage handled through the Panama Canal increased 637.3 per cent, and traffic handled over inland waterways, excluding the Great Lakes, increased 93.5 per cent.

Other factors contributing to the decline in rail traffic, according to a declaration of policy recently adopted by the Association of Railway Executives, are pipe lines, high power electric lines, and the newest development of the piping of natural gas from the wells to large centers, which is destined to reduce still further the coal traffic. In comment, the association said:

> Insofar as any form of the above service is legitimate and a natural economic development, the railroads have no right to complain. The public is entitled to the best transportation at the lowest reasonable cost. However, where the rail carriers are prevented through legislation or regulation from fairly competing with new or old forms of transportation, or where the service rendered by the competitor is a subsidized one, such unfair handicaps should be removed.

Congress will be the arbiter of the questions of regulating the railroads' competitors and liberalizing the restrictions under which the railroads operate. While these questions are under discussion it is difficult to see how the railroads can stand the strain of augmented personnel and increased pay rolls.

FARM BOARD SHOULD CARRY ON.

It is not unlikely that the request for an additional appropriation of $150,000,000 for the Farm Board will become the focal point around which will center the fight for the equalization fee or the debenture. The Farm Board already has been granted $250,000,000 of the $500,000,000 revolving fund set up for the relief of agriculture. Of this appropriation the board retains a balance of $48,000,000, but a large part of this is earmarked, and additional funds will be required to "carry out projects now planned." In his letter transmitting the estimate President Hoover points out that the sum requested is included in the budget already submitted to Congress and that the appropriation will not increase the prospective deficit for 1931.

In the light of the annual report of the Farm Board, there may be a tendency to criticize its request for additional funds. It has never been divulged how much wheat the board bought in its effort to peg prices, or at what prices the purchases were made, but it is known that the board has a large sum tied up in wheat, and it is no secret that most of the funds that have been placed in its hands by Congress have been "invested" in the course of the price-pegging campaign. The annual report was a unique document in that it admitted without equivocation that this major undertaking of the board had not been "all that had been hoped for." The board admitted that to peg prices large quantities of wheat had to be purchased, and that the accumulation of and by itself had a somewhat depressing effect on prices; that purchases in the cash market alone were inadequate to sustain prices, and that stabilization, therefore, must involve purchases for future delivery; that it is difficult to cease operating once transactions in the futures market have been entered into, and that stabilization means principally buying, not selling.

Many persons believe that stabilization will prove to be one of the most costly experiments the Government has ever undertaken. But the whole method of attacking the farm problem was admitted to be experimental when the farm act was approved. In this light, it would be a mistake to cut off the Farm Board's sources of revenue before the experiment had been carried through, no matter what the outcome may be. When the farm marketing act was approved it authorized ultimate appropriations for the revolving fund totaling $500,000,000. This sum was fixed upon as the minimum that would be required to give the experiment a full trial; enactment of the bill constituted in effect a gentleman's agreement that $500,000,000 would be made available to the board to be used as it saw fit, restricted only by the provisions of the law, and that if no good came of the expenditure of this huge sum it would be charged off to profit and loss.

The request for an additional $150,000,000 for the revolving fund should not be made the occasion for a fight on the Farm Board and its policies by the debenture and equalization fee blocs. The Farm Board should not be charged with failure when it is only in the middle of its program.

NATIONAL DEFENSE ROADS

By GEORGE H. FAIR.

In order "to provide for the common defense" by the protection of our coast line in the event of war, "to promote the general welfare" by providing a system of good roads and to relieve unemployment in the present industrial depression we suggest the following:

Construct from St. Croix River to the Rio Grande a good military road. This road should be, say, 15 or 20 miles from the coast in most instances, out of the range of the guns of a hostile fleet. There are places where the swampy character of country might make it necessary to build farther away. From this road laterals should be built to all strategic points on the coast and to every town. The more important of these roads should be connected by cross roads. Let us designate this road as No. 1.

Back of this, say, from 30 to 50 miles, construct another road, No. 2, of a similar character, but of greater width and capable of carrying the heaviest traffic at all seasons. From points on this road carry connecting roads of the same character to the one nearest the coast, or No. 1; one nearly perpendicular to it and the others at such angles as will produce the best results. At each intersection with No. 1 let there be some fortifications commanding the roads in all directions. They may be made as elaborate as the case demands. All bridges, too, should be protected in the same manner.

At points on No. 2 where the roads intersect there should be a site selected for a permanent camp, and this site strongly fortified. These camps should be located with reference to railroad connections, good water supply and good climate, and in them could be placed the field hospitals, magazines, garages, hangars, supplies, &c., for a division or more. These camps would be far enough from the coast to be secure from attack unless the landing party assumed the proportions of an attack in force. From such camps troops could be hurried to any threatened point.

Inside of this line, say, at some point near the Maine-New Hampshire line, at Albany, Harrisburg, Charlottesville, Atlanta, Jackson, Shreveport and San Antonio there may be permanent camps corresponding to our present "corps area." These should be connected with road No. 2 and with each other by roads of similar character. From the first named post the coast could be protected from the eastern point of Maine to Boston. From Albany the protection would extend from Boston to New York. Harrisburg would protect the coast line from New York to Washington, and so on. These places would be reserve camps with permanent fixtures of all kinds. They could also serve as training camps for State troops in their annual reviews. The present Army posts could be used sometimes, as Fort McPherson, at Atlanta.

From such camps and over such roads men could be moved in motor cars at 20 or more miles per hour, and faster than that as motorcycle brigades. Over such roads armored cars and tanks can move rapidly to places where they are needed, and artillery, with motor power, can be hurried to the front. From the supply camps ammunition and supplies of all kinds can be carried at all times in all kinds of weather. The machinery and tools used in road construction would be available in case of war and there would be a corps of skilled operators. A commissary department would always be functioning, a much more desirable arrangement than the service of such a department hastily organized upon the breaking out of a war. If it be considered desirable to do so, every man engaged in road construction can be trained in the duties of a soldier for a portion of each week, and schools of instruction can be maintained. Discipline may be varied to suit the various units of the force.

If carried into early effect this plan would give employment to many men now out of work. The wages need not be high enough to compete with private employers of skilled labor, but the matter of employment would have a steadying effect upon the labor supply and demand at all times. The same plan of operation can be extended indefinitely to all parts of the country, if deemed necessary. If war should come the transformation of this body of men into a military force, inured to camp life and to some extent trained as soldiers, would be quickly and easily made, and some of the difficulties attending the formation of a volunteer army would disappear.

She still remembers that he smiled
And seemed so happy as a child.
She still recalls his curly hair,
His footfall sounding on the stair
And how she thought the while he dreamed
How wonderful her baby seemed.

Men sneer at him and think him base,
Who see the harsh lines in his face.
By him at various times betrayed
Friends send him on, refusing aid,
But she, however oft she weeps,
Enduring faith in him still keeps.

Others who meet him see no more
Than what he seems. The years before
Lie buried in the dust and grime
Which made the rubbish heap of time;
But she remembers as a child
He looked into her eyes and smiled.

What matters if the charm be gone,
He once was fair to look upon.
Strangers lose hope and toss aside
The stuff which fails when once 'tis tried,
But faithful still the mother stays,
Remembering his happier days.

They Never Find a Suicide With a Letter of Praise in His Pocket.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

NEVER yet has a man pleased with himself taken his own life. Men kill themselves after losing their fortunes, after stealing from their employers, after being rejected by the woman they love—but in no case is misfortune the immediate cause of suicide.

Other men lose fortunes or betray trusts or fail in their wooing and yet continue to find life worth while. They live on because their misfortune or fault, whatever its nature, left them a saving quantity of self-respect.

The man who finds life so bitter that he is willing to sacrifice it without purpose is a man who scorns himself.

With the possible exception of the insane, and this, of course, includes those unbalanced by self-pity, every suicide is a person by some means robbed of self-respect.

Self-respect is not only the foundation and inspiration of all accomplishment, but it is also the one quality necessary to make life supportable in time of trouble.

No matter how poor or despised or broken a man may be, if he still thinks well of himself, he will take heart of hope and carry on.

It is only when his faults or his sins or his failures have filled him with unbearable shame and despair that death seems more desirable than life.

How, then, shall he find this thing so essential to life in a world where misfortunes are many?

The answer will depend upon his temperament, talents, training, and all the influences that make up the fabric of his character.

One man, by nature or training equipped with invulnerable vanity, will retain his complacent sense of perfection in spite of sin and shame, fault and failure.

Another, less stupid but equally individualistic, may keep his self-respect in spite of his own failures or the world's opinion merely by keeping his honor unstained and his conscience clear.

But the ordinary man can not stand alone. He doubts himself too much. He is too sensitive to criticism and reproach. His fate is determined by the opinions of his associates.

Without praise or the good opinion of somebody he is lost. But so long as he seems wise or good or capable to some living creature—his wife or his child, a friend, a fellow workman or even his dog—he will retain enough self-respect to avoid surrender.

No man loses heart while all that he does seems right to some fellow creature; no man can keep heart while all that he does seems wrong to those whose good opinion he covets.

Here, then, is an alms the most humble can bestow: a good word in season. It is of all philanthropies the most generous and the most essential.

PRO AND CON

Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great Show, "Politics," Staged in Congress.

Irresponsibles in Congress.

New York Times.

President Hoover's sharp protest against the extravagant projects with which Congress is already flooded should serve to remind the country of a distinction between his office and theirs. He is at the head of the Government. He is bound by oath to see to it, so far as he is able, that the republic take no harm. What could be more harmful than laws which would at once bankrupt the Treasury and impose heavy and cruel burdens of taxation upon all citizens? This is the point of the timely warning and rebuke which Mr. Hoover addressed yesterday to those senators and representatives who are piling up bills to appropriate a total of $4,500,000,000 from the Treasury, under the guise of giving relief to people out of work or suffering from last summer's drought. Probably the total proposed would be even larger if all the items were added up. If it is not already, it soon will be. There is a perfect rush of members of Congress to see who can put forward the wildest and most expensive scheme. The President is simply doing his duty in calling a halt.

After Repeal, What?

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Of more practical import, from the wet viewpoint, than any referendum projects is the present meeting in Washington of seven antiprohibition organizations with the object of agreeing upon a substitute for the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act. Many wet leaders believe that if their contention is ultimately to succeed it must embrace more than repeal of the present system. And there has been a lack of unanimity among the representative wets in answering the question, "After prohibition—what?" Gov. Roosevelt, Gov. Ritchie, Representative Beck and Senator Morrow hold varying views on this subject. The formulation of a definite wet program would meet the oft-repeated challenge from the drys.

It Can't Let Go.

New York World.

Economically, the Farm Board's use of the taxpayers' money for the professed purpose of stabilizing the price of wheat and cotton has been a complete failure. When it stabilized cotton a year ago the price was 18 cents a pound; it is now 10 cents. Wheat likewise was selling a year ago at $1.22; it is now selling for 76 cents. The losses from these pegging operations which did not peg anything are estimated at approximately $70,000,000. The board is now in a position where it dare not let go, and where by holding on it becomes involved deeper and deeper in transactions which must ultimately defeat their own purpose. It is merely duplicating the unfortunate experiments of Brazil with coffee and of the British East Indies with rubber.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Does Not State, War, Navy Building Furnish a Note of Contrast That Will Relieve the Monotony of Classic Piles?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In discussion of the ornamental worth of the State, War and Navy Building those who offer esthetic objections to it seem somewhat at fault, missing the eclectic point of view.

Classic architecture, with whose stately charm we are familiar in Washington, is not the only style suitable for the beautifying of a great metropolis, and the fact that the State, War and Navy Building has the approval of many normal individuals is conclusive against the word of any one who says it is tawdry or lacking in distinction. It is beautiful of its kind, and, possibly, in the closely built location where it stands, it has a not less striking aspect and is more pleasing to the eye than if it belonged to what those who give scant consideration to the proper setting of a building might call a more desirable type.

The advisability of the plan to remodel the State, War, Navy Building in conformity with the White House and the Treasury depends on whether in its present aspect it seems likely to mar the developing architectural ensemble of the city. As to that there is room for difference of opinion.

Although often quoted, the word of former Ambassador James Bryce, expressing the opinion of one familiar with the architecture of other capital cities in regard to the beautification of Washington, is worth repeating in this connection.

"It is hardly necessary to observe," he says, "that there ought to be some method of securing a measure of symmetry and harmony in building. The public buildings to be erected should not be planted haphazard."

He then adds:

"I am far from suggesting that you should try to attain uniformity in your buildings, because uniformity usually ends in monotony. That can be seen in the buildings of Paris. When the city was largely rebuilt by Haussmann in Louis Napoleon's day, that error was committed. While many of the boulevards of that time are very handsome, one gets tired of the repetition of the same designs and structures over and over again."

There can be no doubt regarding the spectacular public appeal of the Government's present building plan. Its columned mass of masonry assures us of grandeur. But in the additional development of the future, it may be well to heed Lord Bryce's warning against uniformity.

Notwithstanding the awe-inspiring general effect of unmodified classic uniformity, there is reason to believe that it would be sadly offset by sameness in the beauty of our official workshops studied one at a time.

The Federal building plan will fall short of perfection if, in years to come, there is not contrast and variety as well as mere magnitude and cost. WILLIAM TIPTON TALBOTT.

Nations Have Not Accepted Senate World Court Reservations, Notwithstanding Statements to the Contrary.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: You have drawn attention to the campaign, waging now and formerly, by which the country is to be misled into the belief that the pending protocol of adherence to the world court embodies an acceptance of the Senate's fifth reservation which only a captious senator could question. This campaign of suppressing the text of the protocol (and of the Root formula, its progenitor), while misrepresenting the contents, shows no sign of flagging. I take the following from the editorial columns of the New York World of December 5: "The reservations which the Senate attached to its resolution in 1926 have been accepted by the nations represented in the court." If this be true, we are already in the court except for the formalities, and the Senate has no office to perform. Under its resolution, it has only to await the individual acceptances of the nations concerned.

Now Is a Good Time to Paper and Paint, as Aid to the Unemployed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Would you please give a little space in your paper to let the people of Washington know of the unemployment among painters and paperhangers.

As new painting and papering is sanitary, and also preserves and beautifies, I believe the people would wake up at this time and fix up their property. Not only residential property needs looking after, but there are many schools, churches and restaurants which are sadly in need of going over with paint.

To fix these places would give a great deal of work at this time to the unemployed in these lines.

The widely known manufacturer from Detroit and his wife have been "on the list" for a visit to the White House for some time. Response to the invitation extended them indicated that they would arrive in the Capital before the end of the week. Mr. Ford is now in Chicago and Mrs. Ford "somewhere" in the East.

Foils to Fore In Library of Cuban Envoy

Guests Watch "Duels" of Those Skilled in Fencing.

Reviving the age-old art of fencing the Cuban Ambassador, Senor Don Orestes Ferrara, matched his skill on Tuesday with that of several recruits who "turned up" at the embassy to try their luck at the foils. An enthusiastic gallery assembled in the library, which several times a week, through the season, is the scene of mock duels as clever swordsmen meet to test their prowess against that of the ambassador, who in his youth was a noted duelist.

Among those at the foils on Tuesday were Capt. Frank B. Hayne, U. S. A., and Maj. James Merriam Moore, also U. S. A. Last year the Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy, Capt. Luigi Notarbartolo, die Duchi di Villarosi was among Senor Ferrara's most enthusiastic opponents, and during the matches Tuesday though he remained among the onlookers, he was none the less interested. Senor Villanelli, chancellor of the embassy, while not yet a dangerous opponent for the ambassador's subtle technique, affords dashing opposition.

THE ten young finalists in the Atwater Kent Audition will be greeted in Washington by President and Mrs. Hoover at the White House tomorrow noon. They will also be the guests of Vice President Curtis at the Capitol.

Likewise, the youthful artists will be tendered a dinner at the Mayflower Hotel tonight, and a special luncheon will be given to them at the National Press Club Auditorium tomorrow noon, immediately following the White House reception.

The astounding announcement was made from Newport News at the launching of the ship named after the Chief Executive Tuesday, "They have driven the last rivet in President Hoover."

Both Bishop Manning and Judge Lindsey were given a terrible wallop by H. V. Kaltenborn in his radio talk. Kaltenborn declared Lindsey secured the hearing postponement to prolong the controversy so that he might secure all the more publicity. The Brooklyn editor was no less complimentary to the bishop.

A bit of stage business which caused many to laugh was the neighing of the horse in the Sherlock Homes episode.

THE good wishes of those who knew the team in vaudeville will be with Gus Van, formerly of Van and Schenck, when he makes his first appearance on radio tomorrow night since the death of Schenck (Radio Follies, WMAL, 10 p. m.). Rather than pick out a new partner, Van, like Fred Stone, after the death of Montgomery, decided to go it alone.

In addition to personal appearance on the radio, Van is reported to have contracted to make 156 records at $1,000 each, totaling a gross of $156,000, to be used by broadcasters of smaller stations throughout the United States. Van and Schenck formerly were motorman and conductor, respectively, on a Brooklyn trolley car.

Phillips H. Lord, "Seth Parker," also "Uncle Abe," received this letter:

"My husband was dying, and asked to hear your program. As the last song was being sung by Seth and Mother Parker he stepped into the beyond. I thought I'd let you know."

Hazel Arth, contralto, will be soloist on a program from New York this afternoon directed by Frank La Forge (WRC, 3:30 p. m.).

"COL. GOODBODY," who gives us "Daily Food Facts" (WRC, 9:45 a. m.) is none other than Frank Singiser. He is probably the first announcer to devote his full time to one program.

Betty Co-Ed is likely to become jealous if she learns that Rudy Vallee is to entertain Irene Bordoni, the vivacious French singer tonight (WRC, 8 p. m.).

Memories of wooden nutmegs will be recalled when the spotlight is turned on Connecticut tonight during the festivities welcoming WDRC into the Columbia network (WMAL, 10:30 p. m.). John Coolidge's father-in-law, Gov. John H. Trumbull, will be a speaker.

IT seems appropriate that Col. William A. Starrett should be the headliner in the School of the Air tomorrow (WMAL, 2:30 p. m.), for he is building the world's highest structure, the 85-story Empire State Building on the site of the old Waldorf, in New York.

As Phil Cook would say, "O. K. Ker-nel!"

Jane Corbett Interprets the Mode

Black and white are smartly combined in this lounging pajama with white satin blouse and black satin trousers. And the black satin jacket is lined with white satin, and is reversible. (Courtesy of Schiaparelli, Paris.)

Aboard S. S. Ile de France, Dec. 10.

NOW, no fooling, it's time to get serious about Christmas! I have been talking Christmas all along, of course, but don't we all have a way of just yessing, and doing nothing about it—yea, even as you and I!

What about your Christmas cards, honestly now? Let Saturday of this week be the last day for you to have them all written, sealed and stamped, and those mailed that have to go to any distance—those put away that are to be dropped in the box the day or so before Christmas. Then that's off your mind.

And this week do some window and walking shopping, and don't buy anything. Then early next week you can take one whole day and go buying, with your little black Christmas Gifts book in your hand with a page in it dedicated to each person you have to remember. Write his or her gift down on his or her page when it is purchased—save confusion afterwards.

Viola, home with the spoils, and another day to buy the tissue papers, ribbons, etc., that you will need for wrapping—brown papers and cardboards or boxes for those you have to mail.

Honestly, if you just will, you'll have such a merrier and less confusing Christmas!

* * * *

I'm afraid every minute of the day would present some golden opportunity for lounge—if the lounger were fortunate enough to own a black-and-white lounging pajama, like this one of Schiaparelli which I show you today! The flaring trousers are black satin, and the blouse white satin, and its girdle snugly wrapped around the waist and hanging in loose, graceful ends. And to give Miladi variety to suit her mood the smart jacket is black satin, too, but lined with white satin and reversible.

* * * *

Your own Dah-ray has had the loveliest Christmas gifts—when the package was opened! The package itself has been something so uninspired as to make its lovely contents a miracle. And she has had wee, simple little gifts given her by some clever little person in so adorable and different a wrapping that the gift itself gained great importance and charm. So-o-o-o your own Dah-ray decided that never, never would she give anything that wasn't lovely from its skin in, as it were, and—well, it was astonishing how many brand-new and beautiful ways were discovered when the question was seriously thought about. You won't have to worry about your wrappings if you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, which shows ever and ever so many unusual ways to wrap gifts.

* * * *

Down the street a ways is a fascinating window—and in that window—I am going to give up walking because I always want things—there was the most heavenly ash tray of white malachite. Oh, it had a bird of black onyx on it and he was just ready to fly, you know—and he was a goofy-bird, long and slender and graceful. There is the tray all drawn for you today—oh, ever so many sizes larger than it should be for the lovely lady to be gazing at it, of course, but I had to make it that much larger than it was in order for you to see it.

* * * *

And we're going to remind you again that the weekly Dare fashion letter is always in the big Sunday Washington Post.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return, stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

PROVES EXERCISE PAYS.

THIS is the story of a man who believes in keeping fit, who crowns his faith with his works, and who is willing to submit himself as proof that he is right, both in theory and in practice. He is now halfway between the eighty-first milepost and its successor, having, by reason of strength, exceeded the biblical allowance for men of his class by a good margin. Furthermore, he is marching toward the century mark with hopes of passing it.

His form of exercise is walking. He has kept a log since 1910. He may have started this practice at an earlier date, but the only record which I have is that which began October 1, 1910, and ran to the same date in 1930. In that time the record shows he walked 53,533 miles, or at the rate of 71-3 miles a day. His maximum was achieved in 1924, when he was 75 years old. In that year he walked 3,725 miles, an average of more than 10 miles a day. His minimum was in 1920, in which year he accomplished 2,245 miles, a little more than 6 miles a day on an average. In twelve of the years he averaged between 7 and 8; in two, between 8 and 9; in one, between 9 and 10, and in the other, over 10 miles, as already stated.

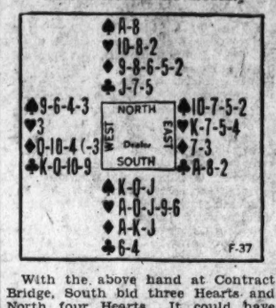
These figures are taken from a summarized statement. The daily logs show distance walked, route, weather and some reactions. Keeping the record and making it something of a diary has added zest and prevented the task from becoming monotonous.

But this is not the only method of keeping fit made use of by Mr. Collier. A favorite indoor sport with him is lying on his back and raising his legs to a perpendicular position. He can raise his legs and the lower part of his body until nothing touches the floor except his head, neck and shoulders. He gave me this information just before we witnessed a motion picture of a fight between a cobra and a mongoose. When we saw this cobra raise his body high up in the air I thought: "Old boy, when it comes to lifting your body from the ground you have nothing on Mr. Collier."

Mr. Collier tells me he has never lost a day from work on account of illness.

WORK ON BRIDGE

THREE ROADS TO ROME.



With the above hand at Contract Bridge, South bid three Hearts and North four Hearts. It could have been bid: South two Clubs (artificial), North two Diamonds, South three Hearts and North four Hearts. The two-Diamond bid following two Clubs would tell South that North's hand did not contain an Ace and a King or two Aces; had his hand contained those high cards, North would have disclosed the fact with a bid of two No Trumps or two of a suit and the information might have been of value to South; the bid of three Hearts over North's two Diamonds would show that South had an original three-Heart hand and not a choice hand. But with a hand which is essentially a Heart bid and not strong enough to bid four, South showed good judgment by bidding three Hearts originally.

In Auction Bridge South would bid one Heart, West two Clubs and South two Hearts.

When the hand was played, East and West took in two Club tricks and led a third Club which South ruffed with the Six of trumps. South then led a Spade, putting North in the lead, and then North led the Ten of Hearts. When East played small, South played the Nine and let North's Ten win. Then North led a second Heart. South played the Jack and, when West refused, Declarer realized that the King of trumps was guarded in the East hand. South then led the Ace and King of Diamonds and when the Queen of Diamonds did not fall (it was not probable that it would), the Declarer led the losing Diamonds; West won and led a Spade; South won, led a third Spade and then the Ace of trumps, taking only nine tricks.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

Declarer overlooked in his play a very simple principle of unblocking. He had in his two hands a sequence in trumps from the Queen to the Eight, so in ruffing the third Club he should have used either his Queen or his Jack of trumps. Then putting North in with a Spade, he could have played under both the Ten and Eight of trumps led from the North hand, and having the lead there for a third time have captured the King of Hearts and gone game without difficulty. He also could have made game by leading his two good Spades before his losing Diamond, or by ruffing his third Spade at trick 11 so as to lead through West at trick 12.

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled the PLAYING PROBLEMS. Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

PLAYING PROBLEMS presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

PLAYING PROBLEMS which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high-priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of The Washington Post by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored. Address Milton C. Work, care Washington Post.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

SISTERS-IN-LAW.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I am a girl of Irish descent and married to a boy of Italian parentage. We have four small children. We live in a house with my husband's sister, and she seems to think it takes the whole family to bring up my children. Now I do not agree with her. I think it ruins children to be brought up by a dozen different people. I think when a mother trains her own children they are always more obedient and better in every way.

But she is always bossing them. Get off the grass. Shut the door. Do not swing on the gate. Don't make so much noise. I feel sorry for the poor children and it is making them saucy and ill-tempered. I do not want them to be like that. I want them to like everyone and not feel ill-will toward any one. And I certainly do not want them to feel in the way or any nuisance in this world.

When my husband comes home, his sisters pounce on him with a long tale of woe. Is that any way to do? He has his troubles to worry about. Why should the women think up a lot to add to his? We can not move, as he must stay and help them by living in the house. But it is making a nervous wreck of me. I will be as bad as they are.

Their father is very old and like all aged people, he is a care and does things he should not. They will tell my husband every little thing the poor old man has done. And they never even speak a kind word to the poor old soul. He sits alone all day week after week. I do not like my children to observe such lack of love or even charity. But I can not say a word, as I refuse to add to the trouble by controversy. But how can I keep on? It unnerves both my husband and me to live in such conflict.

PATIENT.

Sisters-in-law, my dear, are a special race of people. Married sisters-in-law are not so bad, but single sisters-in-law are terrible, no matter where you find them, what their race, creed or previous condition of rectitude. The moment they become sisters-in-law they develop something. And they seldom recover. So just overlook the symptoms, annoying though they are, and concentrate upon taking your husband's mind off his troubles—including his family. Smile at him and say "Forget it, dear, they worry over trifles," and go on with your life.

As to the children, teach them to close doors, and to care for the grass. These things are a part of their training and wild children are not one whit happier than well-bred and intelligently trained ones. Most children are allowed to impose upon the rights and comfort of others and all because their parents are too lazy to train them. If you had lived at a big hotel for ten years, as I have, you would know. Some of the children are adorable, mannerly, interesting, irresistible. Others are little more than animals, noisy at meals, rude to servants, thoroughly objectionable. And in every case their parents are much the same type of people. So be sure you are doing what you should in the way of making your children lovable. And then go serenely on your way. When the sisters complain just smile and tell them they must not worry over trifles and trot along on your way. It is the only way—and saves wrinkles.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF December 11 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 7:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. and from 4 p. m. to 5:20 p. m.

A slow indifferent time is pictured, horoscopically, for this date, and business affairs may be neglected for pleasures. The influence of your elders will be felt, and should not be avoided. Business progress possible, if sufficient effort be made.

The child born on this December 11 will have an anxious, restless nature, and will be a type which needs encouragement and praise. It will lack initiative, although it will be a splendid worker under the direction of others. It will have to cultivate self-reliance, if possible.

You possess three keys which will open the doors of success to you; energy, optimism and courage, and they will also fit into the doors of happiness. You are a very busy person, and too much intersted in what you consider to be your individual job, to worry about yourself and your fate. You have the courage for an adventurous life, so you will never suffer from boredom. You have sufficient amount of optimism to keep you from letting worry get the upper hand. You love schemes, and would make an excellent detective, and probably your associates recognize your amateur ability in this line. You would be disappointed if life gave you no problems to unravel, and you would not wish your handicaps to be lessened. You are out to get all you can out of life, but on the other hand you give what is expected of you in return. You are careful of other people's feelings and rights, and although you are shrewd, you are not "hard."

You are not incapable of taking flights of fancy, but in the essential things of life you are always loyal to facts. You are big enough minded to change your viewpoints in order to keep up to date with time and circumstances. You have a dry sense of humor, and are more of a chuckler than a laughter, and are never loud and boisterous. An early marriage is not indicated, nor would it be advisable.

Successful people born December 11:

1—Hiram Paulding—naval officer.
2—George David Cummins—bishop.
3—Sarah H. Palfrey ("E. Foxton")—author.
4—Benjamin S. Lyman—geologist.
5—Gerrit Smith—composer and organist South Church, N. Y.
6—T. Coleman du Pont—powder manufacturer.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Winter Play.

During the pleasant months of the year the average child needs no urging to spend his free hours in healthful out-of-door play.

However, when the ground becomes black and frozen and cold winds whip about the knees, children are often reluctant to stay out of doors during even the brief hours of winter sunshine.

Parents should take pains to provide especially attractive playthings which will stimulate exercise—sleds and skates when there is plenty of snow, velocipedes, scooters and kiddie cars when the ground is bare and not too wet.

Those parents who are fortunate enough to have back yards may well dedicate them to something more than a garage runway and a clothes line.

Most of the back yard should belong to the children. Swings, ladders, a junglegym, seesaws, slides and boxes of all sizes can be used throughout the winter.

A sand box set upon legs a few inches high and covered by an inclined lid which may be shut down at night and in bad weather is fine for the winter play of young children.

A back yard thus fitted out is apt to be a pretty sight only to those who enjoy seeing children have a good time, but the sacrifice to orderliness and looks is worth while.

If, in addition to providing the material for good outdoor winter play the mother also welcomes as many children of the neighborhood of suitable age as care to come, she will have no difficulty in keeping her own children happy and active in the winter sunshine.

Jean's Santa Claus

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Jean Melba, a small town girl from Keiser, Conn., who sometimes thinks she is in love with Phillip Baldwin, an ardent suitor who promises to appear Christmas morning with a marriage license. Losing her Keiser stenographic job, Jean looks for work in New York, planning to live with Mollie Wilder, a more sophisticated friend. To her dismay, Jean learns that Mollie has married and left town. The situation is saved by Sandy Clause, a handsome but enigmatical young man who protects her from a masher's advances, and since he has lost her traveling bag in the shuffle, arranges for Jean to spend that night at the apartment of Marcia White, whose quasi-hospitality does not blind Jean to the fact that her abode is no haven of safety. Sandy leaves but Jean's fears are indorsed by the appearance of two sinister men, Slim Diggers and Fargeson, alias Sampson. Jean flees the apartment and observes Sandy returning. The next day he gets her a job with the F. P. F. and learns that Fargeson was murdered the night before in Marcia's apartment. Sandy tells Jean he did not return, although she knows she saw him and he later tells her he did come back—but not to Marcia's apartment. The F. P. F. is the Institute of Practical Philanthropy which Sandy manages. It aims to fulfill the wish of an eccentric but benevolent millionaire to encourage motherhood ideals among little girls by giving them Christmas dolls, to be known as miniature babies. Jean made out a campaign to give every poor little girl in New York a miniature baby, and also locates Mollie, whose marriage has ended disastrously. The two girls live together. In the meantime Lionel Gilman, Sandy's assistant, takes advantage of the latter's absence in Boston to make love to Jean. Phil Baldwin arrives in town to look over the situation and when Lionel and he start fighting Jean realizes she can never care for either of them. Sandy returns from Boston and accidentally meets Jean on Fifth avenue where she is staring covetously at a sapphire wrap in a show window. Jean discovers little Ellen, daughter of Fargeson, and coming home one night finds Mollie mysteriously disturbed. Soon after, while taking Sandy on a visit to little Ellen, Jean learns that Marcia is the child's mother.

Marcia accuses Jean of the murder; the latter tells Sandy that Marcia is lying, is rebuked by Sandy for attacking Marcia's character—and slams out of the office.

Still furiously angry with Sandy, Jean invites Phil surprising a reconciliation.

A little later, when Mollie observes Lionel calling on Jean to keep a date with her, Mollie admits that he is her husband.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXII.

Of the three, only Mollie appeared to be at ease. She seemed, in fact, to enjoy the situation.

Not so, Lionel. He stood first on one foot, then on the other, his eyes shifting nervously, the corners of his mouth twitching as if undecided whether to turn up or down.

Jean gazed from Mollie to Lionel, from Lionel to Mollie, in a stupor. Over and over her brain said: "Lionel is Mollie's husband. Mollie is Lionel's wife." And still she was not convinced. It was too absurd.

It was Mollie's light, uncertain laughter that brought them to life. "Well," said Mollie, "we're a nice little party. Did anybody bring refreshments?"

Jean murmured, "Please, Mollie. Let's go somewhere. Out of the street. * * *"

"That's an idea," Mollie agreed. "Up in our room O. K., Lionel?"

Lionel said uneasily, "Perhaps you two had rather be alone. * * *"

Mollie smiled sweetly. "Don't be a wet blanket. We've both set the evening aside for your exclusive entertainment."

But when they were walking up the stairs, Jean suddenly stopped, and leaned against the railing. "There's no sense in my going along," she told Mollie quietly. "I need a walk anyway."

Mollie grinned. "Well, look here, I don't want to monopolize this man. You had a date with him and I didn't. If * * *" But then she had put an arm about Jean and exclaimed, "Don't be so terribly serious about it, honey. I'm just kidding."

Jean understood. Mollie was pretending an ease she didn't feel. Jean said: "I much prefer your kidding to your bitterness. Try to realize that Lionel is entitled to fair play, Mollie. I was going out with him tonight to try to help out of a peck of trouble. It's another case of divided responsibility, too."

Lionel stood on the step below her and as she passed him, she saw the gratitude in his sober eyes.

"What an infant he is," she thought as she walked away from the house. "Married to Mollie * * * flirting with Miss Trelling * * * proposing marriage to me. * * * He needs a conservator for his emotions!"

She glanced back and saw that the light had been snapped on in their room. The conference had convened.

December 11.

Eleven working days to Christmas! What a world! Yesterday morning this time I had two problems on my heart besides my own—Lionel's and Mollie's. That they could have been one and the same problem would never have occurred to me. There, surely, is a truth stranger than fiction—Mollie and Lionel, wife and husband. And I had even thought once that I might be in love with Lionel. How strange that in a city as large as New York I should have been an unsuspecting shuttle betwen these two, ultimately bringing them together. I do not know what came of their talk there last night. I went uptown and roamed the streets until after midnight to give them plenty of time. Mollie was asleep when I came in and I did not disturb her. She must have gone out very early this morning, when I woke at seven I found a note pinned to the counterpane saying that she and Lionel wanted me to come to lunch with them at the store. I should like to run out and see Ellen this afternoon, but I may not have time. I must have gazed into thousands of shop windows last night. They are beautiful! So Christmassy! * * * *

Another note from Sandy was waiting for her at the factory. With lowered brows, Jean read:

"My dear Jean: If possible, please come to the office some time tomorrow. Strictly business. SANDY."

She questioned the honesty of his "strictly business."

She would go, of course, though she promised herself that she would discourage any attempt to return to a discussion of their last meeting. It was possible, of course, that he wanted to tell her that he had found Marcia out. But what possible difference, Jean asked herself, could it mean to her now? Sandy, she declared, was as much out of her life as was Marcia. She would go to his office tomorrow because she worked for him and he had sent for her. She would be performing a duty, and not a particularly pleasant duty at that. * * * *

Arriving at the Simmons department store almost on the dot of 12, Jean went directly to the restaurant and selected a table against a wall. Almost immediately she heard Mollie's voice behind her.

"Hello, darling. Where's the villain?" Mollie plopped down in the chair opposite Jean and snatched up a menu.

"Lionel?" Jean asked. "I haven't seen him."

"The big Swede! Told me he'd be here before noon. Sorry I didn't see you before I got out this morning. Knew you'd want to know what happened last night."

"Yes, of course." * * * Jean detected the note of suppressed excitement in Mollie's voice. "Did you—patch things up?"

Mollie's smile suggested the superiority expressed in a mother's attitude to her child. "My dear! You didn't really think we would agree to make a bad mistake worse? * * * Oh, no; he understands as well as I that we could never live together again. If you could say that we ever did. We simply discussed the practical problem of providing against the inevitable."

"That," said Jean, "doesn't explain much to me."

Mollie went into greater detail. Lionel had recognized his obligation and was prepared to do his part.

"You didn't need a conference to learn that," Jean told her. "If I had known Lionel was your husband I would have told you weeks ago that you would find him ready to shoulder most of the burden."

"Oh!" from Mollie, a strange light in her eyes. "You—know Lionel pretty well, Jean?"

Jean's hurt silence was her rebuke.

Mollie laughed quickly and reached across the table to squeeze Jean's hand affectionately. "You know I didn't mean that, honey. And I wouldn't care if you knew him so well you could blackmail him. If we ever knew romance, we've forgotten it now, and——" She was looking over Jean's shoulder when Lionel's radiant countenance loomed up before her. "Speak of the devil, you know." * * *

Lionel dropped into his chair with a merry "Heigh-ho, gals," and produced a package of cigarettes.

He was a new Lionel. Rather he was the old Lionel of days before his mother and father arrived unexpectedly to complicate his complacent life. Jean felt the change at once.

"Has Mollie told you the news?" he asked, smiling at Jean.

"No news," Jean assured him. "She told me something I could have told her before last night. Is there something really worth hearing?"

There was. Mollie had agreed to perform in public the social responsibilities of Lionel's wife. Until his parents departed for Missouri again, at least.

Jean was delighted. Her eyes, turned to Mollie, said much.

Mollie shrugged her shoulders indifferently. "Oh, I gave him a break, honey. I had to after that lecture you gave us on the stairs. I'm going to play the part as long as Lionel keeps his head. That is while his mother and father are here. When they leave he agrees to a divorce."

Lionel asked suddenly: "Did you manage it about this afternoon, Mollie?"

Mollie nodded, casually. "You brought the car? You'll have to run me by the room for a few minutes."

Jean looked from one to the other curiously. "What's the mystery?" she asked.

Lionel explained, grinning happily. "Mollie's to be introduced to the family at 1:30, just in time for the four of us to attend a matinee at the Civic Repertory. Mother's choice, by the way. Dad would prefer a good hot musical comedy."

Jean still marveled at Lionel's exuberance. He was as happy as a boy with a new bicycle.

She went with them in the car to their room, intending to go on immediately for a little visit with Ellen. But barely had she sent Mollie hurrying into the hall, dressed in the best their combined wardrobes had to offer, when a boy arrived with a

It bore a Kelsey postmark, and special delivery letter.

Jean, tearing the envelope open with nervous fingers, knew that it was from Phillip. A dozen pertinent questions piled one upon the other in her anxious brain.

And then, a warm, pleasant glow passed over her as she read, photographically, the first paragraph:

"Jean darling:

"I love you. Can anything else matter? Short of the end of the world, nothing can prevent my perching on your doorsteps Christmas morning. And in addition to a heart pounding with love of you, I will bring such of the essential red-tape of the great event as can be acquired without your presence and signature * * *"

And suddenly, with most of the letter unread, Jean was crying softly and feeling tremendously grateful.

RULES FOR PROPER SHOES.

(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

Shoes of the correct shape are broad and round at the toes and straight along the inner edge. A pair of normal feet placed together touch at the heels and also from just in back of the big joints of the big toes to the end of these toes. The inner edges diverge or curve toward the outside do likewise. The more these edges diverge or curv toward the outside of the shoe the more unnatural the shoe's shape and the greater the wearer's discomfort. If such shoes are persistently worn enlarged joints and bunions are almost sure to result.

Every-day shoes need soles that are at least moderately thick. Often the soles, particularly those of women's shoes, are so thin that walking in them on any but the smoothest surface is painful. The feet soon become bruised and calloused. Thicker soles provide more protection to the feet not only against injury from sharp and uneven surfaces but against water and slush as well. Furthermore, thick soles last longer.

Heels that are nearly as broad throughout as at the heel seat of the shoe, in other words, taper but little, are best for every-day wear. Although the height may vary a little with the individual high heels are frowned upon by most medical authorities. The heel of the Army nurse's shoe is one and one-eighth inches high. A sudden change from a high heel to a low one may cause discomfort at first. Such a change should be made gradually to give the feet and body chance for adjustment. Failure to realize this has caused many a woman who has constantly worn high heels to think that she can not possibly wear low ones. The pitch of the heel is also important. Heels that slant too far forward can not steadily support the body nor hold it in the proper posture.

YOUR NAME
What Does It Mean?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, PH.D.

THE family name "McCall" (also spelled "MacCaul," "MacHall" and "MacGall") has come down to us from two slightly different Celtic sources. It may mean "the son of Cathal" or "the son of "Cathmhael." Of the two old personal names "Cathal" means "battle-mighty," and "Cathmhaol" means "battle-chief" or "warrior." It will be remembered that, through force or through choice, many Irish families have adopted anglacized forms of their original Celtic names. Thus, "MacCall" has frequently been changed to "Charles" and "Corless."

The family name "Haworth" (also spelled "Heworth") is the modern form of the Old English "haga-worth," and means "he who lives at the hedged estate or farm." Many families which bear this name have received it because of a former residence in the village of Haworth, near Keighley, County York. It will be recalled that the father of Charlotte Bronte was the vicar of this village. A fourteenth century English register mentions the names of a certain Alicia de Haworth and a Johannes Haueworth.

The family name "Unger" is of German origin. It is a variation of "Ungar," which means "the Hungarian." A cretain Chuenrat der Unger is mentioned in a German document of the year 1329.

The family name "Wassermann" is of German origin, and means "he who lives near the water." A certain Hentze am Wasser is mentioned in a German document of the year 1456.

The family name "Cuddahy" (also spelled "Cuddihy," "Cudihy" and "Cuddehy") is of Celtic origin, and means "the descendant of Cuidightheach." "Cuidightheach" was an old personal name meaning "the helper."

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me the name of the plant from which I am inclosing a flower. Also tell me why my calla fails to bloom. We have had the plant six years. In the spring it is always healthy, then toward fall it seems to stop growing and become dejected. JANE H.

The plant from which the flower was taken is an autumn crocus (colchicum). It is hard to tell you where you are making a mistake in the care you are giving your calla lily, as you say nothing about your treatment of it. This bulb does best in a soil composed of two-thirds good loam and one-third well-rotted cow manure, with a dash of sand to keep it open. Ample drainage must be provided. Set the bulb so the crown or sprout is above the level of the soil.

Callas do not require to be placed in the dark like many bulbs. They require an abundance of water when making growth. After the flowering season is over, water should be gradually withheld and the post finally turned on their sides and allowed to dry out. The roots should be taken out of the soil in August or September and the bulbs repotted. Much of the success you have with callas in winter will depend on the soil and the care they have in summer.

The Christmas cactus, which I have had for years, never blooms. Sometimes the new leaves turn yellow and fall off. Please tell me the name of the shrub of which I am inclosing a leaf. MRS. S. U. B.

The Christmas cactus requires a fairly rich soil, but does not tolerate much water except when in bloom or setting buds. The buds are apt to drop if given too much water during dull weather. Your shrub is no doubt a viburnum.

Please tell me why the ends of the fronds of my fern always turn yellow in the early fall and continue to get worse instead of better as the winter progresses. MRS. G.

The fern may be potbound or require food, moisture, or fresh air. Better give the plant some bonemeal. You can easily incorporate this with the soil by using a kitchen fork. In a warm room a fern should be watered every day or at least every other day. Once each week the foliage should be sprayed and the air in the room where you have a fern should be constantly changed.

Please tell me what is the matter with my umbrella plant. It grows most beautifully, but is at present covered with a white powdery substance, which surely does not add to the plant's beauty. MRS. E. D.

Your umbrella plant is covered with mealy bugs. Better spray it every day with cold, soapy water or once a week with nicotine solution.

I am inclosing a leaf from my rhododendron. Why do the leaves turn brown? They all seem as the one I am inclosing. Please tell me how I can raise a gardenia from a cutting. ALICE M.

Your rhododendrons are attacked by the lace-wing fly. Spray the plants with 5 pounds of fish oil soap and one-half pint nicotine extract to 10 gallons of water. This spray should be applied in May, June or September. It will, however, be well to spray your plant in April. Root a gardenia cutting in sand and later transplant it into rich soil. Keep the plant in a warm, sunny place and give it plenty of fresh air and moisture.

Please tell me the name of a reliable insecticide to use for small black flies which are ruining a box of nasturtiums which I have in my living room. ANNA G. T.

Use any nicotine spray available.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood—Ever since the title "America's Sweetheart" was given Mary Pickford there have been many "steals" on the expression, but no more appealing twist has been given it than that used currently to describe Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery: "America's New Sweethearts."

JEANETTE MacDONALD

If "Min and Bill" is followed up with other costarring pictures, the appellation will stick with the elderly pair.

A striking, but unconvincing, catchline calls "The Doorway to Hell" "the picture gangland dared Hollywood to make." A lot gangland cares what is done out here.

One of the catchiest catchlines ever thought up is "Garbo Talks."

It conveyed in two words all that moviegoers wanted to know.

The choice of a girl to play opposite John Barrymore in "Svengali" will be difficult to make. She must not only be beautiful of face and figure, but her voice must be more than passable, in fact of operatic quality.

The names of Jeannette MacDonald and Grace Moore come to mind. Either would fill the role.

Real Life Pictures.

The slaying of a Chicago reporter suggested two film stories, but only one will be carried through to completion. "Dance Fools, Dance," starring Joan Crawford, gives a prominent place to the killing of a newspaperman and another anticlimax is the massacre of seven gangsters, a real-life occurrence in Chicago.

A story written for Richard Barthelmess closely followed events surrounding the murder of Jake Lingle, but it has been changed. It still is about newspapers and gangsters, with Barthelmess dying in the line of duty in the last reel.

Talk Is Costly.

Talk costs money. The author of "The Man who Came Back" was paid $250 for the movie rights some years ago. It is reported that permission to use the dialogue of the play, necessary to the talking version, cost $40,000.

Hollywood probably owns more pets than any other place of its size. There are 37 dog and cat hospitals and dog laundries here, and none complains about business.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.—Adv.

Don't let SORE THROAT get the best of you...

FIVE minutes after you rub on Musterole your throat should begin to feel less sore! Continue the treatment once every hour for five hours and you'll be astonished at the relief.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

Keep Musterole handy—jars and tubes.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Rheumatism!

"I tried various treatments for rheumatism without much relief. Then Mountain Valley Mineral Water brought much benefit and great improvement"—says a letter. Another says, "Mountain Valley Mineral Water without a doubt banished rheumatism for me." And another, "The pains of rheumatism are gone. Five weeks of Mountain Valley Mineral Water brought me relief." Take hope, rheumatic sufferer—this famous mineral water from Hot Springs, Ark., should do for you what it has done for thousands of others. Physiologically balanced, its action is natural, scientific—it helps nature to neutralize the irritating uric acid and by inducing elimination through the kidneys tends to prevent the accumulation of trouble-making toxins and waste products of digestion. "I Feel Like a New Person"

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was tired, nervous and run-down. I saw the advertisement and decided to try it because I was hardly able to do my housework. It has helped me in every way. My nerves are better, I have a good appetite, I sleep well and I do not tire so easily. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to other women for it gives me so much strength and makes me feel like a new person."—Mrs. Lena Young, R. # 1, Ellsworth, Maine.

RAIL MEN DISPUTE OVER COAL CARRIER

Van Sweringens, Taplins, Through Counsel, Fight for Wheeling Road.

HEARINGS BEGUN IN JUNE

(Associated Press.)

With the Wheeling & Lake Erie, a rich coal carrier, as the prize, attorneys for the Van Sweringens and the Taplins, rival Cleveland railroad and coal magnates, argued over the disposition of the line before the Interstate Commerce Commission today.

Technically, controlling stock of the line, 53 per cent, belongs to the Nickel Plate Road, which is controlled by the Van Sweringens, but the Interstate Commerce Commission, under the Clayton act, ordered the Nickel Plate to divest itself of this stock.

Taplin Offer Refused.

It is now in the hands of the governor of the Cleveland Federal Reserve Bank, acting as trustee.

The Taplins, who control the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railroad, have offered to buy the stock for what it cost the Nickel Plate, plus carrying charges. The offer was refused, and the Pittsburgh & West Virginia applied to the commission to have the road allocated to it. Today's proceedings were oral arguments based on hearings held last June.

Says Freight Is Diverted.

C. F. Taplin, brother of F. E. Taplin, president of the Pittsburgh & West Virginia, argued much freight from the Wheeling which should be routed over the Pittsburgh & West Virginia was being diverted over a longer haul via the Nickel Plate.

John H. Agate, W. H. Boyd, Andrew P. Martin, and W. A. Colston, attorneys for the Nickel Plate and the Wheeling, countered with charges that the Pittsburgh & West Virginia really was owned by the Pennroad Corporation, an investment company of the Pennsylvania Railroad. They argued that to turn the Wheeling over as asked would be to give it to the Nickel Plate's chief competitor, the Pennsylvania.

Strikers Are Ordered Back to Shops in Spain

Valencia, Spain, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Striking workmen who walked out yesterday as the result of a disagreement between union carpenters and their employers, were ordered back tonight to their shops. It was believed disorders which accompanied the strike were at an end.

At Alicante, however, a sympathy strike was in progress and the authorities prepared to prevent its extension. Sanchez Garcia, a labor leader, was killed yesterday in a riot which marked the beginning of the strike. He was buried secretly today and when strikers heard of it many of them went to the grave with flowers.

Fascist Hurt in German Riot.

Ludwigsburg, Wurttemberg, Germany, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Revolvers were used in a fight between Communists and Fascists today, one Fascist being wounded by bullets. Many of the rioters were arrested.

Storm Delays Filling Of First Lady's Order

Miami, Fla., Dec. 10 (A.P.).—If Mrs. Herbert Hoover still wants the three dozen stone crabs she ordered for shipment Monday, they are here for her. Fishermen set out for the Florida Keys Saturday to fill Mrs. Hoover's order. They expected to return Monday, but were forced to take shelter in a key in the face of a northwester that whipped the waters for several days.

Search parties were sent out for the men, but they returned safely today, with the three dozen crabs. The fish market is awaiting further orders from the first lady of the land regarding the shipment.

RENOWNED SPANISH PIANIST HEARD HERE

Jose Iturbi Makes Capital Debut, Delighting Guests of Mrs. Townsend.

ARTISTRY IS ACCLAIMED

Jose Iturbi, the renowned Spanish pianist, made his debut in Washington yesterday at Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's Musical Morning at the Hotel Mayflower before a large and enthusiastic audience. Because of his American contracts, which prevent his appearing with other artists on a program, he gave the entire program.

The advance notices and the reception accorded him by New York critics during his recent playing to capacity houses in Carnegie Hall, New York City, were fully justified to Washington by the artistic beauty of the program he played yesterday.

It was soon evident that Senor Iturbi was by no means a pianist of one period or of one composer. With equal facility he interpreted the works of classic and modern values, and the audience applauded both the Debussy selections and Mozart's Sonata in A Major, No. 9, a Brahms number, and one by Schumann, which were featured on the program.

A golden singing tone, impeccable technique, artistry in interpretation, and a pleasing personality all combined to make Senor Iturbi's appearance in Washington one of the outstanding events of a notable musical season.

Jobless "Army" Outlined by Ely

Economist Lectures on Plan to Prevent Distress by Unemployment.

A peace-time army of workingmen ready to take immediate steps to relieve unemployment during any crisis, was outlined by Dr. Richard T. Ely, economist, in a lecture last night at American University.

"If appropriations were passed and ready for the call of an emergency, both State and national organizations could go into action on 24 hours' notice to furnish employment to those in distress. As the Red Cross is always ready to act immediately to relieve suffering, so the peace-time army would be ready to relieve unemployment," he said.

Dr. Ely also emphasized the need for scientific research to bring about a better adjustment of production and consumption as one method of preventing periods of depression.

Mother Finds Baby Smothered in Crib

Bethesda Fire Rescue Squad Makes Vain Run to Hospital.

Returning to an upstairs room yesterday after preparing her husband's breakfast, Mrs. Armond F. Bergman, found her 2-month-old baby, A. F. Bergman, jr., smothered to death under a mass of blankets in his crib. The mother called her husband, who is employed at a sporting goods store, and he ran around the corner to the Bethesda Volunteer Fire Department for aid.

The rescue squad, James E. Spiller, Martin F. Abbots, Albert Watkins and John L. Imirie, erpsonded in the emergency wagon. They took the child to the office of Dr. Benjamin C. Perry, who was out, and then made a record run to Georgetown Hospital. The run was made in 7 minutes, with James E. Spiller driving. County Policeman Windsor Poole preceded the rescue wagon on his motorcycle with screaming siren to clear the road of traffic.

Oxygen was administered for more than half an hour at the hospital before Dr. J. D. Damian pronounced the baby dead. The body was removed to the undertaking establishment of Warner E. Pumphrey, at Rockville. No inquest will be held.

The father and mother, who have been married about a year, were prostrated at their home, 4804 Moorland lane, Bethesda, Md., and were under the treatment of Dr. Emil Bauersfeld.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

The Goofus Pipefish

The Goofus Pipefish oft expresses the wish
That he lived on dry land, not at sea—
For tobacco's not sold
In the sea he's been told
And with that I will have to agree.

While I will concede that he can't get the weed
That is sold on dry land by the ton,
He'll find within reach

CHEERING REGIMENTS WATCH ARMY, NAVY DRILL

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—For ways that are strange and deeds that are goofy, the sporting customer is very peculiar indeed. Eagerly he pays from $27.50 to $55 for a seat on a wobbling bench set on the flat in a ball-yard from which to stretch his neck for vague glimpses of a couple of irresponsible and unappreciative prize fighters who may or may not be fighting on the level. He has been advised that the managers on both sides are capable of the most sinister, unscrupulousness, and he quite understands that the disposition of the fighters toward him, their customer, was epitomized by one of the millionaire heavyweights when he remarked one night after one of his artistic failures in the ring, "Let them squawk; I've got their money."

Moreover, in frequent cases, he realizes that the betting odds are out of proportion to the normal probabilities, indicating the fight is to be phoney in some respect and, if he has been a ringside customer at a heavyweight fight in a ball-yard before, he is bound to have learned that the best seats have been allotted privately to the more influential and sporty bankers, politicians and bootleggers, leaving only the inferior seats for sale to such as himself, although he pays the same price.

Presently Comes Sign Something Has Happened.

However, having bought the ticket, he presents himself at the ball grounds, and after some struggling discovers himself wedged in among a lot of similar gullibles in such a position that he can glimpse the fighters only from the ears up and that only when they are necking along the ropes on his side of the ring.

Of all the views of the heavyweight prize fighter, that from the ears up is the least entrancing. But presently from the forward rows there comes a sharp crowd-sound, apprising those in the rear that something of more than routine interest, probably a foul, has taken place, and our customer, desperate now and wishing to salvage some value from his investment of $27.50 to $55.00, hops up onto his seat, simultaneously with the other occupants and somewhere in this movement some one who has been sucking on a bottle of Scotch falls over backward, knocking two other customers off their perches, who, in turn, knock over two customers apiece, and so on until a large number of customers find themselves dumped in the most inconvenient attitudes under the fallen benches, with their shins barked, their flasks stove in and their spectacles and cigars broken.

There ensues great excitement up forward. One manager goes tearing around the ring calling upon his deity, the referee, the judges and the press to bear witness to the shocking outrage to his gladiator, a couple of gamblers get into a fight in row B, section 2, the preferred trade drapes the sables about the shoulders of their ladies, who are quite bored, explode their plop hats and start picking their way out over the fallen customers in the rear. And these latter, when they have disentangled themselves, hang around the street corners until the morning papers come out to tell approximately what happened.

Fighter Always Gets Purse Despite Rules.

Three days later there is a meeting of the prize fight commissioners, attended by both fighters, none the worse for their struggle, their managers and their attorneys-at-law, to decide what disposition shall be made of the $200,000, the agreed compensation for the fighter who dealt the foul. Under the rules this money is to be forfeited, but the fighter himself explains that the punch slipped, his manager dwells upon the athlete's exemplary private character and his attorney, more to the point, declares there is no law authorizing confiscation of private capital and threatens to sue. Thereupon the fighter receives his check and the episode is considered to be closed with expressions of regret from the commissioners.

With some minor variations, this has become the standard scenario of the heavyweight prize fight produc-

Schang and Dugan Signed By Tigers as Feature of Major Leagues' Meeting

Yanks Take Perkins; Bender Offered Job; Quinn Fails.

Few Trades Talked; Peace Promised in Draft Controversy.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Activity among players reached a new high today in the major league meetings and a promise of peace appeared in the complicated draft controversy with the majors.

For hours and hours, the magnates of the National and American Leagues sat in conclave, first in a committee meeting with nine representatives of the International and Pacific Leagues and the American Association to discuss the draft, then in regular business sessions of the leagues. Down in the lobby of the hotel fading stars and old time heroes talked with managers here and managers there about jobs—and accomplished more in an hour than the magnates did all day.

Wally Schang and Cy Perkins, veteran catchers added to the unemployment situation by Connie Mack, of the Athletics, talked themselves into jobs, Wally with the Detroit Tigers and Perkins with the New York Yankees. Joe Dugan, once the third base ace of baseball and the Yankees, came to a tentative agreement with the Tigers as utility mn.

McGraw Offers Bender Coaching Job.

John McGrw, of th New York Giants, offered old Chief Bender, once a pitching star on Connie Mack's great teams of another era, a job as a scout. At the same time McGraw reached an agreement with george Burns, once a Giant outfielder, to replace "Irish" Meusel as a coach here. Jack Quinn, one of the last of the spitballers, was around seeking pitching work with the Brooklyn Robins but accomplished little.

Two first basemen, George Sisler, of the Boston Braves, and Lou Blue, of the Browns, seem to have been given opportunities by their managements to better themselves if possible. Sisler discussed a coaching job with the Tigers, but Blue wound up the day talking salary differences with his own club.

The trade winds failed to stir, but there were rumors aplenty. The Red Sox were reported to have offered First Baseman Phil Todd to Cleveland for oJhnny Hodapp and Billy Evans laughed and laughed.

Cleveland offered the White Sox First Baseman Fonesca for Third Baseman Willie Kamm, but no deals were closed.

The uproar over the lively ball and the prodigous home run clouting died to a whisper in the league meetings. Both the National and American magnates discussed the ball, and the zoning of parks, and the raising of screens before the stands, but no action was taken.

National League players making the trip to Japan after the coming season, will be permitted to barnstorm until December 1, instead of October 31.

Reds Refused $4.000 In Kelly Case.

Cincinnatis request for $4,000, the waiver price, from Chicago because George Kelly came back to the Cubs within two months after being let go to Minneapolis, in the American Association, was refused by League President John A. Heydler.

Both leagues discussed the draft for hours, as well as "chain store' baseball and other moot points close to the hearts of club owners. Following the meeting Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals and the largest owner of minor league clubs in the majors, said he expected no further differences with Commissioner K. M. Landis on the "chain store" subject. Mr. Landis has been a severe critic of this system of developing major league talent.

In the draft conference this morning, the major league committee listened to the proposition of the minors and laid the situation before a joint league meeting tonight. There seems to be little trouble over the price of drafted players, but the majors want to have fifteen men out on option for three years instead of the eight now allowed them for two years. The minors want the right to draft from leagues below them in standing.

British Protest Match Of Carnera and Youth

London, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Primo Carnera's match against Reggie Meen, young English shoe factory worker, to be held in Albert Hall December 18, has resulted in widespread opposition by sportsmen. Agitation against the match was started by the Daily Mail.

Jeff Dickson, American promoter, told the Mail that Meen had challenged Carnera and that otherwise he would not have promoted the match. Opponents of the fight declare that Meen is no match for the big Italian and should not for safety's sake, be allowed in the same ring with him.

Movie Men Sponsor Open Golf for Charity

Los Angeles, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—An open match play golf tournament to be played the week of January 18 in Los Angeles was announced today. The purse will be contributed by the motion picture industry. The amount of the purse and the course remained undetermined. The receipts will go to swell a fund for the unemployed.

A committee in charge includes Douglas Fairbanks, chairman; Jack Warner, Edward Mannix, Harold Lloyd, Albert Kaufman, Al Jolson, Mack Sennett, L. A. Young and Arthur W. Steffins.

Five Cleveland Pros Join Toledo Tossers

Toledo, Ohio, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Signing of five members of the Cleveland Team which withdrew yesterday from the American Basketball League was announced today by the Toledo Red Men, one of the six remaining quintets in the league.

The move brings together four members of the "original Celtics," famous New York pro team—Dave Banks, forward, who has been with Toledo all season, and Joe Lapchick, center; Dutch Dehnert, and Dave Barry, guards, from the Cleveland outfit. Other Clevelanders signed were Louis Spindell and Charles Shudtz, rookies. Release of the entire Toledo Team except Banks was announced by the club yesterday.

League Disallows Brentwood Protest

The protest of the Brentwood Hawks against the victory of the Columbias in the 150-pound class of the Capital City Football League was disallowed last night by the league's board of governors, which met at The Washington Post.

The Hawks questioned the decision of the referee on a forward pass play in the fourth quarter and on a touchdown ran by a Columbia player, who, it was claimed, had stepped outside. The board of governors upheld the referee in both cases.

Stake Races at Miami Draw Entries of 708

Miami, Fla., Dec. 10 (A.P.).—An aggregate entry list of 708 horses for the eight stake races of the coming 45-day racing meet of the Miami Jockey Club was anounced today by Frank J. Bruen, director-manager.

Nominations showed a substantial increase in number and quality, Mr. Bruen said.

The Florida Derby, $10,000 feature event of the met, at one mile and a furlong, attracted 93 entries of coming 3-year-olds. The Grentree and Wheatley Stables headed the list of nominators, with five entries each.

Jaseph E. Widener, the Howe Stable and the Rancocas Stable each named three entries. George D. Widener, Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Richard Whitney, Nevada Stock Farm, C. H. Trotter, Kilrane Stable, H. C. Hatch, Harned Stable, C. E. Hamilton, J. C. Ellis, Etowah Stable, Belair Stud, W. M. Moore and Oakland Stock Farm were listed for two entries each.

A large list of nominations was received for the Nursery Stakes, formerly run as the Juvenile Stakes.

Seattle Girl Passers Seeking Contest Here

The Seattle Girls Basket Ball Club will invade the East again this year early in January and will stop over in Washington anxious to secure the opposition of a fast local girls team which plays boys' rules.

The girls from Washington State have forsaken the girls basket ball rules and have proved that they can more than hold their own with fast teams. Playing last year under the name of Gerald's Basket Ball Team, they won the championship of the State. For further particulars call T. G. Spence, of the Southern Pacific Railroad, at National 2247.

TOO MUCH MASCOT.

The mascot of the Columbia University Lions must go before next season. It is a cub lion, and already has grown too tough for most of the football players to handle.

Illness to Keep Coach Collins Out of Game

Chapel Hill, N. C., Dec. 10 (A.P.).—The Notre Dame All-Stars will probably be without the services of Chuck Collins in their game Sunday with the New York Giants. The University of North Carolina coach, a former Notre Dame end, was in the college infirmary today with influenza.

Trafton Will Reenter Professional Boxing

Chicago, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—George Trafton, the man mountain center on the Chicago Bears, professional football team, is going to take up boxing as a serious profession.

"As soon as the football season is over, I'm going East to train for two months," big George said, "and then I'll be ready for any of them."

It was big George who stopped the ring record of Arthur "the great" Shires last winter.

AMERICAN LEAGUE MANAGERS GATHER AT MEETING

President E. S. Barnard, of the American League, introduced an innovation by calling a meeting of the club managers in conjunction with the annual winter sessions of the owners at New York. Plans to speed the games were a feature of the conference. In the group are, left to right (seated), Joe McCarthy, Yankees; Connie Mack, Athletics; President Barnard; Bucky Harris, Tigers; (standing) Eddie Collins, Athletics; Roger Peckinpaugh, Indians; Donie Bush, White Sox; Bill Killefer, Browns; John Collins, Red Sox. Only Walter Johnson was missing from the line-up of managers.

Chicago and South Bend Lavish Plaudits In Greatest Reception to Rockne Team

Ramblers Powerless as Frenzied Throngs Cheer Squad.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

SOUTH BEND, IND., Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Knute Rockne and his famous Notre Dame troupe of raiders came back of their home stamping ground again today to receive probably the noisiest duoble-barreled ovation ever boomed for an athletic team.

Thousands fought and stormed to greet and get a glimpse of the national football champions as they paraded thruogh Chicago's streets. The entire citizenry of South Bend and the entire student body of Notre Dame shoutde themseleves hoarse as they ended their epic odyssey here.

Notre Dame and Chicago have held ovations for explorers, celebrities of every sort and for mighty teams of yesteryear, but few compared with the one given the "fighting Irish" today.

Resembles Tumult Of Armistice.

It resembled somewhat the fury and tumult which greeted the armistice of the World War. Hundreds of police were powerless to stop the surging throngs, fighting to get to the team that forged its nineteenth straight victory in two years at the University of Southern California's expense Saturday.

It was as the tired Rockne remarked when it was all over:

"We thought we had been through some great lines on the football field this year, but the lines we and the police had to fight today had 'em all beat."

The Chicago ovation was of but an huor's length, but nitense ni its jamming, crushing and crowding. It took the players, coaches and others connected with the Norte Dame party fully twenty minutes to fight through the large crowd that jammed the coning course of the La Salle Street Station.

The crowd overwhelmed hte victory procession. Frank Carideo, the ingenuous Notre Dame field general, got lost in the crush and escaped to safety only by pulling his overcoat over his head and playing possum.

South Bend Station Packed for Blocks

The South Bend station was packed around for a redius of six blocks as the Notre Dame conquerors came home. Every one was out and the crowd marched to the Notre Dame gymnasium, where hte school's greatest demonstration in all history was staged.

Father Charles L. O'Donnell, C. S. C., president of the university, Capt. Adam Walsh, of the famous Notre Dame "four horsemen" crew of 1924; Johnny Law, captain of the undefeated 1929 eleven; members of the 1930 team and Rockne himself gave rousing speeches in the packed gymnasium.

"We're so proud of you boys, we find it hard to express our happiness and gratitude," Father O'Donnell said. "We've had great football teams here at Notre Dame and great men, but we all take our hats off to you—school's glorious history."

probably the greatest team in our Rockne, worn out and almost on the verge of collapse, gave one of his witty talks as the large gymnasium rocked to its steel girders with applause.

Rockne Can't Compare His Teams.

"You were a great team," he told his players, "yet I'm not going to say you were greater than the teams of 1924, '25 and '29. They all ask me to compare you with the 'four horsemen.' But I can't. They ask a comparison of Harry Stuhldreher and Frank Carideo. But it's like asking a comparison between Caesar and Napoleon. You can't do it except to say that one of them wore his hat sideways."

Capt. Walsh paid tribute to the 1930 team as a greater team even than his "four horsemen." "We may have been good," he said, "but you fellows were marvelous. We take our hats off to you."

South Bend belonged to Notre Dame students tonight. Snake dances, pep fests and parties were on the program for the night and far into the early hours of morning.

Coach Rockne said he would go through with his plan to coach the All-Star Notre Dame Team in the charity game with the New York Giants Sunday and then go to the Mayo brothers hospital at Rochester, Minn., for a thorough overhauling.

"I'm almost ready to break," he said. "My two legs are swollen again and the old pains are shooting through them. You know I sometimes find myself wishing that we would lose four or more games next year so we can all get a rest from the so-called over-emphasis on football here at Notre Dame.

Loyalty to Wisconsin Asked by Grid Coach

Madison, Wis., Dec. 10 (A.P.)—Sophomore members of the 1930 Wisconsin football squad, who today issued an ultimatum that they would withdraw from the sport if Glenn Thistlethwaite was released as coach, were asked by Thistlethwaite tonight to remain loyal to the university.

The ultimatum, handed university officials was signed by ten second-year men—most of whom were regulars this season.

Coach Thistlethwaite said:

"I am not anticipating a dismissal by the university authorities, yet, if it should come, I should like to be the first to ask these boys to reconsider that part of the petition to the effect that they will not participate under other authorities. I do not want the players or students to feel they have to defend my job before the public."

Home Town Belongs to Students in Wild Demonstration.

COACH TO WED

Chet Wynne, football coach at Alabama Polytechnic, will marry Grace O'Brien, society girl, daughter of an Omaha, Nebr., automobile dealer, in Omaha, December 27.

Penn Is Investigating Unrest in Football

Philadelphia, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Taking notice of the criticism of matters affecting football at the institution, Thomas S. Gates, president of the University of Pennsylvania, announced today that a complete investigation is being made with the view to the adoption of a constructive policy covering competitive athletics.

"The authorities of the university have been fully conscious for a considerable period of the unrest which exists among the students of the university and among alumni in respect to competitive athletics, especially football," said Mr. Gates in a formal statement.

"The university is keenly alive to its responsibility for the physical welfare of its students, whether this involves participation in competitive athletics or intramural athletics or physical education. The authorities intend to see that the interests of the students are safeguarded in every reasonable way."

Test of Bones to Determine Age Of Protested High School Star

CLEVELAND, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—The age of London Gant, 6-foot, 195-pound back field star of Sandusky High School Football Team, which opponents think is more than his claimed 17, is to be settled by the bones.

Dr. T. Wingate Todd, director of Brush Foundation and head of the anatomy laboratory at Western Reserve University, has agreed to apply his age test, by which he says approximate ages can be determined by X-ray photographs showing density of the bones. Principal Karl Whinnery, of Sandusky High, to whom opponents protested, consented to the test which will show whether Gant is under the 20-year-old eligibility age.

Gant has no birth certificate recording his advent in North Carolina, but records in the family Bible put put his birth in 1913.

Griffiths and Stribling on Edge; $100,000 Gate Looms Tomorrow

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Tuffy Griffiths, young Sioux City, Iowa, heavyweight, today decided he was as ready as he ever will be for his 10-round bout with W. L. (Young) Stribling in the Chicago stadium Friday night, and suspended training operations.

The tough one weighed 186 pounds and figured to climb into the ring at that figure, which probably will leave the Georgian with a three or four-pound advantage.

Stribling, seeking more speed, worked two rounds with Tom Jones, Negro light heavy, and another pair with a middleweight, Mickey Patrick.

The attraction has caught on to the extent that stadium officials are looking for a gate in excess of $100,000, a part of which will be given to Gov. Emerson's unemployment commission fund.

Contest Fires Annapolis With Wild Enthusiasm as Officials Join in Funfest

Sasse Is Encouraged as Regular Ends Return to Team.

Varsity Finds Task in Halting Middies' Aerial Style.

WEST POINT, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—With the entire corps of cadets, officers of the post and their wives massed around the practice field, the Army football team ran through another snappy drill today in preparation for the charity game with the Navy in New York Saturday.

King and Messinger, capable ends who have been on the injured list, were back in the line-up and Maj. Ralph I. Sasse, head coach, appeared encouraged at the condition of his squad.

The plebe team again put on its version of the Navy attack, scrimmaging at full speed with Sasse's three varsity teams. The secondary defense of the Army regulars was kept busy and had considerable difficulty in stopping the middy aerial attack. A long pass defense drill for the varsity backs followed the scrimmage.

Test New Attack Against Scrubs.

When the cadets shifted the attack to test their new plays against the scrubs, each successful thrust was greeted with cheers from the enthusiastic spectators. Most of the plays were directed at the tackles.

Kicking came in for considerable attention under the direction of Sasse and Lieut. "Red" Reeder Broshous concentrated on drop kicking. Herb and Glattly on placement booting, and Frenzel, Fields and Elliott on punting. A large part of the kicking was done under the pressure of a charging scrub line.

After the practice the commissioned personnel of the post headed by Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent, marched to Washington Hall to have dinner with the corps. In a brief rally which followed dinner, short talks were given by Gen. Smith, Maj. Sasse and "Polly" Humber, team captain.

Schmeling Bout Terms Accepted by Sharkey

Boston, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, today agreed to terms for a championship bout with Max Schmeling in New York next summer. The agreement was made during a conference with William F. Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, and Damon Runyon, New York sports writer and milk fund representative.

Sharkey, who has been a free agent since his bout with Victorio Campolo, also agreed, it was stated by his managers, to meet the winner of the proposed Primo Carnera-Young Stribling bout in Miami next February.

Talent Sought to Face Notre Dame Stars

Los Angeles, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—The Far South, Northwest, Middle West, Rocky Mountain region and Uncle Sam's Navy are being called upon to contribute football talent for an eleven to face a team of present and former Notre Dame stars in a game here December 27.

Officials of the local Elks Lodge, sponsoring the clash, announced today the following players had accepted places on the eleven which will oppose Rockne's men:

"Pepsi" Welch, all-American full back and captain of the undefeated 1929 Purdue machine; Bill Price and Joe Jonas, of the champion University of Utah Team in the Rocky Mountain Conference; "Rusty" Steels, all-Southern guard of Florida; Joe Clifton, former Navy backfield ace, and Gob Wentworth, center, and Al Holmes, tackle, of the University of Washington in the Pacific Coast Conference.

The all-star aggregation will be coached by Jimmie Phelan, University of Washington mentor.

Gibson Won't Testify In Suit of Tunney

New York, Dec. 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Max "Boo-Boo" Hoff, Philadelphia sports promoter, today withdrew his recent motion for an examination before trial of Bill Gibson, former fight manager of James Joseph "Gene" Tunney. Hoff, who is suing Tunney for $500,000 under an alleged agreement with the retired champion, and his manager, felt that he had a right to examine Gibson concerning the agreement, despite the latter's incompetency.

After a physician, agreed on by both parties, had examined Gibson at Briarcliff Lodge, N. Y., it was decided that his health would not allow this examination at present. The withdrawal was made with the consent of both parties to a possible renewal at some future date. Hoff claims that Tunney and Gibson promised him some 10 per cent of the fighter's earnings as champion in 1926 in return for a $20,000 advance. The case is expected to come to trial shortly.

Middies March and Sing, Jeering Model of Army Goat.

Pay No Heed to Overconfidence; Squad Gets Light Drill.

By GEORGE DALEY.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Two thousand midshipmen, the full regiment, frolicked around the gridiron at the Naval Academy here this afternoon in the biggest, noisiest, most exuberant football rally since 1927—the year when the big split came between the Army and Navy—a split which has been patched up temporarily in the common cause of charity.

The chief purpose of it all was to show the players who were going through their last stiff drill in formations and assignment work that their flaming enthusiasm and confidence demanded satisfaction and they were back of the team to the last man.

Incidentally, it was a noisy and rollicking dress rehearsal for the big show they will put on in the Yankee Stadium on Saturday when the land and sea forces of Uncle Sam indulge once again in their gridiron strife.

Midshipmen Sing, March and Cheer.

They marched, they sang and cheered. They worked out curious block puzzles, with sheets of red, white and blue cardboard, into whirligigs, goats, mules, and words.

The Navy Band also paraded and some of the grizzled horn-tooters were as full of pep and ginger as the boys. This outspoken and spontaneous expression of joy and enthusiasm over the chance to beat the Army was so infectious that the few of us who looked on with feelings neutral, or supposed to be, could hardly refrain from joining in the fun.

Admiral Robison, superintendent of the Naval Academy, was out on the gridiron close to the players. Other officers of varying rank were on hand. The team is getting encouragement from every source Cheer Navy Goat and Jeer Army Mule.

The Navy goat was all dressed up and a big black mule, representing the Army mascot, jogged up and down mounted by two midshipmen and bearing the words on a white blanket: "Whoa is me."

The middies lauded the Navy goat and jeered the Army mule.

Later in the evening a monster mass meeting was held indoors and after that a torch was set to a towering bonfire which took most of the day to prepare.

The wonder is that a roof was left on any of the buildings. Sometime in the night a placard was strung from the eaves of Bancroft Hall, reading: "Sink Army!" It's against the rules, but the authorities, apparently in sympathy, closed their eyes. The sentiment was popular.

The midshipmen are the marchingest lot in the wide world. Outside Bancroft Hall a lone drummer stands and his rat-a-tat-tat can be heard at stated intervals the livelong day.

Visitor Impressed by Constant Marching.

They march to classes and for all that is known they march to bed. One is constantly running into little parades of one group or another. They lack the formalities of the drills, but a visitor's strongest impression is one of constant marching.

It was so at the field this afternoon but somehow of a different kind. Sort of a dance, it might be called, a dance to expected victory. There is no reasoning with the sailors. They pay little heed to the warning of the coaches that Penn's weakness may have magnified Navy's strength last Saturday.

That the Army will be a tougher and more stubborn foe means nothing. They have faith in their team. Morale is the cheapest commodity at the Naval Academy these days.

Out on the gridiron the players worked hard and diligently to perfect the timing of formations and in running through signals. Little or no bodily contact was permitted. The boys are in fine condition and at the peak of their form, so no chances were taken with last-minute bangs or twists.

There will be one last drill early tomorrow afternoon just before the squad leaves at 3:50 o'clock for New York.

Team That Beat Penn To Take Field.

Ingram is authority for the statement that the team will take the field on Saturday as it did against Pennsylvania.

Byng, the left-handed forward passer, and Stephenides will be on the ends. Capt. Bowstrom and Bryan, tackles, Underwood and Gray, guards, and Tuttle, center.

Dale Bauer will start the game at quarter back with Kirn, Gannon and Hagbert as his running mates. The reserve backs sure to see action are Williams, Hurley, Tschirgi and Campbell.

Jack Binns, a regular a year ago, also may get a chance. The confidence he lost in himself when he fumbled on the 4-yard line against Penn in 1929 has been regained since he scored that touchdown against the Quakers in the last minute of play last Saturday.

Boston Mayor Invites Notre Dame in 1932

Boston, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Mayor James M. Curley today invited the Notre Dame football team to play a post season game in Boston in 1932. He sent a formal invitation to the director of athletics of the South Bend institution, saying: "No Notre Dame team has ever played in Boston and if we can arrange for a post-season game here in 1932 we can, of course, make a definite assurance that a capacity crowd will attend the game, wherever it may be played."

ROCKNE MUSTERS ACES TO PLAY PROS FOR CHARITY

Battle Sunday To See Stars In Action

Canny Coach Seeks to Use Carideo, Brill and Savoldi.

All Have Finished at Notre Dame; "Four Horsemen" Ready.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—That game at the Polo Grounds next Sunday between the New York Professional Football Giants and the Notre Dame all-stars, under the personal direction of Knute Rockne, is not going to be a mere spectacle put on in the name of charity.

It is going to be a real football game. It probably will be the hardest contest the pros have engaged in since their advent in New York some six years ago. When arrangements were made for the game some weeks ago, the Giants gladly consented to give their services to aid New York's unemployed.

At the time they thought they were in for an easy afternoon's work, figuring they would be meeting a group of players lacking actual competition this season.

Hopes to Play Seniors Of 1930 Champions.

But leave it to Knute Rockne. He has come up with another one of his surprises. In addition to the 27 former Notre Dame luminaries who will cavort on the greensward of the Polo Grounds next Sunday, Rockne wires that he is anxious to include the seniors of this year's championship eleven in the array of all-star talent that will face Benny Friedman and his Giants.

Carideo, all-American quarter back; Marty Brill, Bucky O'Connor, Bert Metzger and Capt. Tom Conley will come to New York this week and show their wares here. All that stands in the way is permission from the Notre Dame faculty.

That is not all that is happening out at South Bend, where the Notre Dame stars, including the "Four Horsemen," have gathered under the direction of Adam Walsh. It is reported that Walsh, in charge of the team until Rockne returns from the Coast, talked over the phone to Joe Savoldi, bone-crushing full back of this year's team until he ran afoul of dangerous Dan Cupid, and that indications are that "Galloping Joe" will be in the All-Stars back field when the game begins Sunday.

To Build Team Around 1930 Back Field.

If these plans go through as they are expected to, Rockne will build his team around this year's seniors, a strong nucleus for any football team, with Carideo at quarter, Marty Brill and Bucky O'Connor at the halves, and Joe Savoldi at full back.

Looking over the line that Benny Friedman, Red Cagle and Jack Hagerty and the other giant backs are going to run up against, one finds the scrappy Bert Metzger at guard and Capt. Tom Conley at end. Metzger will be aided by Jack Cannon and Johnny Law, of last year's team.

Tim Moynihan, Adam Walsh and Joe Nash will alternate at center. The tackles will be Ted Twomey, Mc-Mammon and Bach, and the ends, beside Conley, will be Ike Voedisch, Pete Vezie and Jim Collins.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

ALTHOUGH the arrows have to be shot with considerable force in order to lodge in his body, Sin Dolor claims that he experiences no pain whatsoever, and certainly does not look any the worse after his harrowing ordeal. Dolor attributes his mysterious ability to sheer will power. Similarly, Hindu fakirs claim to exclude pain in this manner when in their religious pilgrimages they subject themselves to every type of torture imaginable in order to expiate their sins.

Joe Greer, the Tennessee hill-dweller, had a house but it fell down. He moved into his barn with the pigs and cows but the barn was struck by lightning. That night Greer slept in a nearby huge hollow log. The log was still there the next morning and Greer had slept so well that he decided to move in, and has lived there ever since.

Boots and Saddle's
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)
—Jefferson Park Selections—
By J. B. SNODGRASS.

JEFFERSON PARK offers a good card today. The feature is the Kennock, an allowance race for 3-year-olds and up at a mile and 70 yards. The field in this race consists of five horses, with SKIRL appearing much the best. He is a 3-year-old colt of C. V. Whitney's, which won his last start by three lengths over Eli Weir and Battle Ax, a mile and 70 yards in 1:44.

STORM is rated the contender and in his last race at Pimlico was second to Woodcraft, which race repeated here would be quite dangerous to the Whitney colt. Each of these carries only 99 pounds. FIRST MISSION, which has been improving since his Maryland campaign, should be third. The track is fast and the weather clear.

FIRST RACE—The first race is for 2-year-olds at six furlongs. GUIDE LEFT, which was scratched yesterday, should win. He ran second to Spanish Bonero in his last start, which was at Bowie, at seven furlongs, and that race was run in the fast time of 1:25 3-5. That is a much better race than has been run by any of the other juveniles in this field. JAZZ AGE beat Nervator and others a week ago, and should be the contender in this contest at the same distance. PRINCE CLOI is better than recent races show, and he should get the show money.

SECOND RACE—DUNLIN'S ELK is selected to win the second race and has an easy field to beat, apparently, in comparison with the one in which he ran third last week, which was won by Hades. FOREIGN RELATIONS may be the contender, and would be dangerous if in best form, but there is no available line on that. KING HALMA was backed to beat Favorit II in a recent race, and may be a contender. SUPAWNA had much early speed at Bowie and may be dangerous in the short route today.

THIRD RACE — A better class of horses starts in the third race. POLY'S failure a few days ago, when backed down to 1 to 4, has not been explained, but a sprinter of his caliber surely can retrieve that failure and come across in this field. POLY has beaten some of the top-notch stage horses and is supposed to be in good form. He looks like the surest winner on the card. ANGER should be the contender, and was made favorite last out, but beaten. THE ABBOT should hold the others safe.

FOURTH RACE — The Blue and Gray Purse for all aged horses brings out a sparkling field. HOT TIME ran a smashing second to Snooze last time out, and is selected to win. That race was run in 1:13 1-5. ELIZABETH BOLLA seems to be out every other day or so, and has shown fine speed, but can not keep this up. She is regarded the contender. BILL MORRIS, star 2-year-old last spring in the South, but which failed badly Tuesday, may get in the money. BETTY BEAU has not started at this track. The distance seems short for her, but if ready she might win the purse.

SIXTH RACE—ESSIE should have another chance, and is picked to win the sixth race, having flashed some form last out by being third to Bob Rogers and Rain or Shine. MADCAP MARVIN, second to Morsnuff last Friday, is best of the others. PAULA L.'S last race in Maryland was good and she should get the show money.

SEVENTH RACE—VOLE stands out in the seventh race and should come back with another victory. He beat Black Alice and Torpointer in his last start. BLACK ON WHITE will figure in the race and was second to Santa Sophia a few days ago. PAUL REVERE may wake up. He should get in the money even without waking.

Mercurys and Gunners Play at Silver Spring

Both the Mercurys and the Seaman gunners went through stiff workouts last night in preparation for their game Sunday at Silver Spring Field at 3 o'clock to decide which team will be named to play against the Apaches, District champs, on Sunday, December 21, at Griffith Stadium.

An attempt was made to secure Gonzaga Field as a scene of the Mercury-Sailor battle, but extensive resurfacing is in progress at the Benning road gridiron.

Mercury will practice tonight at Sixth and B streets southeast at 7 o'clock.

CAPTAIN SECOND YEAR.

Finn Erksen, a Danish boy, who never wrestled until he enrolled at Iowa State Teachers College in 1927, will captain the mat squad for the second season.

HAWKS CHALLENGE PHIPPS.

The Mohawk 115-pound eleven has challenged the Phipps A. C. to a game to be played Sunday. Call Manager Charles Wilson at Columbia 0092.

COACHES DELAY DINNER.

The annual dinner of the "Downtown Coaches Association," scheduled December 16 at the Bannockburn Club, has been postponed and a new date set for January 12, according to "Cy" MacDonald, chairman of arrangements.

DASH IS WON BY HEAD BY ALL UPSET

Silver Cord Fastest Finisher in Jeff Park Feature.

JEFFERSON PARK RACE TRACK, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Before a good weekday crowd, the Southland Stable's All Upset, with Jockey W. Gooler up, was a driving winner of the fourth race, the 6-furlong feature here today. All Upset was the favorite, but his score was a lucky one, as Silver Cord, under very poor handling, finished with a rush and would have won in another stride. Skibo was third. Curtsey, making her first start of the local season, failed to finish in the picture.

The start was good, and All Upset went right to the front, taking a lead of two lengths over Curtsey, with Silver Cord third. The field closed on All Upset in the stretch, but he managed to hold on to win by a head over Silver Cord, who beat Skibo a length and a half for the place. The time was 1:13, and the winner paid $6.20.

Charles Clark, 24 to 1, Takes Opener.

Maiden 2-year-olds performed in the opening event, which was won by Miss A. Pendergast's Charles Clark, which paid $50 for a $2 ticket. Flagg Porter was second and Little Coventry third.

Afrost led the field to the stretch, where he gave way to Flagg Porter, but in the last sixteenth Charles Clark, closing fast, was up to win by a head in last strides. The time was 1:14 4-5.

Bradley Gives Winner Of 1921 Derby to Army

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Behave Yourself, winner of the 1921 Kentucky Derby, has been donated to the Army Remount Service by Col. E. R. Bradley. The thoroughbred, now 12 years old, has failed to measure up to the standards of other Idle Hour stallions and will spend the rest of his life being bred to Army mares to produce work horses for the military branch of the service.

Behave Yourself, in his brief racing career, won four races and $58,775 for Col. Bradley. He was returned to the stud after capturing the Derby. Col. Bradley recently donated Bay Beauty, which ran in the 1929 Derby and failed to place, to the Remount Service.

Sande Ponders Singing Bids Of Films, Stage and Radio

Famed Rider Recipient of Many Offers; To Make Decision Next Month; Race Career Depends on Vocal Success.

EARL SANDE, America's premier jockey, whose latent vocal powers were discovered by a local voice instructress, Miss Estelle Wentworth, was today going over the numberless unsigned contracts for his singing services which have flooded the Wentworth Studio on Girard street northwest since his first public appearance at the George Mason Hotel in Alexandria several weeks ago.

The famous rider will leave Washington Saturday for a visit with his family in Idaho until the first of the year. During his fortnight of rest from his active vocal training campaign he is expected to decide upon which of the various mediums of voice presentation he will grace. Offers have been received from several motion picture companies, radio broadcast sponsorers, theatrical and concert agencies.

Track Career Depends On Singing Success.

He will return to Washington shortly after January 1, 1931, and will announce at that time his final decision on two points, one of which is of vital interest to every racing fan in the country and one of which is of constantly increasing interest to lovers of music throughout the United States.

Sande has not yet decided to give up the track A fortune—or rather another one—awaits him on English tracks, where his 131 pounds will not be a handicap to his mount. Whether or not he will return to the track depends greatly on the manner in which his voice is greeted throughout the country. If all goes well in whatever field he, and Miss Wentworth, choose as best suited for his particular shade of tenor, there is little chance that he will ever boot another thoroughbred home.

Sings Over WOL Under Own Name.

Sande make his initial "appearance" over the air last night under his own name. Singing over Station WOL on the regular half hour given to students of Miss Wentworth, Sande rendered "Bird Songs at Twilight" and "Irish Love Song." Sande has appeared frequently over WOL, but has always used the name of John Lester.

COLUMBUS U. FIVE WINS CONFERENCE DEBUT, 20-19

Opening Fray Marked by Protest

Southeastern Claims Connor Is Rivals' Paid Coach.

His Basket in Final Minutes Decides Close Battle.

THE ltd swung off the Washington Collegiate Basket Ball Conference last night at Central High with Sefton Darr, assistant dean of Columbus U., throwing out the first ball. About 200 witnessed a stirring initial contest as Columbus U. fought from behind in the last few minutes of play to defeat Southeastern U. by the score of 20-19.

Tommy Connor, former Business High School flash, was the bright star of the fray last night. Put in the game when all that seemed to be the fate of the Columbus boys was second place, the unconcerned courtman sank a long "pot shot," which brought the score of the waning game up to 19-16 in favor of Southeastern. Quigley, of the eventual winners, added another long shot, and Columbus was but 1 point behind and the end of the game was imminent.

Connor broke through Southeastern's freezing act when there were but second left to play, dribbled a step or so to a bit past midcourt and then sank a long arc of a shot, which put the game on ice. Aaker, of Southeastern, missed a chance to tie the game when he failed on a free toss just as the game ended.

Columbus' garrison finish was the only bright spot in an otherwise mediocre game. Columbus played raggedly throughout most of the first three-quarters, with Southeastern showing the better teamwork and deadlier eyes. The score at the half, 13-8, in favor of the eventual losers.

Bob Bartoo, of Southeastern, played the best all around game on the floor, despite Connor's individual performances.

William Dove Thompson, coach of Southeastern, informed the press that he would protest the game on the grounds that Connor receives renumeration for his coaching duties at Columbus, but that school last night denied the accusation.

The matter will be settled at the first meeting of the association to be held shortly.

GOLF MINOR SPORT.

Golf is now a minor sport at Notre Dame. Larry Moller, golf captain and runner-up in the intercollegiate championships this year, has been awarded a monogram.

EX-NAT NO LOAFER.

Emmett McCann, former National and now first baseman of the Columbus Team of the American Association, is batting .400 in Philadelphia writing automobile and general insurance, but is reading with interest the comments on the scarcity of good first sackers in the majors and considering what his chances are of getting back in the big show.

IN THE COLLEGE CORNER

By JACK ESPEY

THE babies of local colleges, acquiring long pants in remarkably short time, are ready to give their older brothers some sort of a dispute. There never was a bottle stage in the life of these kids; it was whiskers, muscle and independence, all as fast as you can say it.

Yes, sir, the Washington Collegiate conference, the only organized group of local colleges, composed of schools that never have monopolized the headlines, comes forth with a warning to the old order to look to its laurels in basket ball.

The Washington Collegiate Conference is composed by Columbus University, Strayer's Business College, Southeastern University, Benjamin Franklin University and Bliss Electrical School. All are accredited institutions of higher learning and are turning out some of our most promising lawyers, accountants and electrical engineers.

Superiority of Rivals Is Doubted.

What they are principally concerned with in a sporting way is to disprove the supposed superiority of the basket ball played by Georgetown, Maryland, George Washington and the rest of the old-established Capital colleges.

In no uncertain terms, as voiced by Raymond J. Walter, acting president, the conference declares its ability to produce a stronger basket ball team than the veteran group.

Specifically, the conference flings a challenge to pit its champion quintet against the recognized leader of the local schools outside the conference, to decide the District collegiate championship.

All of which is interesting, to say the least. Now, how about it, big boys?

Conference Fills Need Locally.

To a certain extent the new conference is filling a void in local college sports. There never has been enough intracity college competition to suit the fans. Every game played in the conference will boast strictly local flavor, the most popular to the taste of Washington sport lovers.

The championship game proposed by the conference would pack them in the largest gymnasium in town.

Comparative Nonsense.

Through comparative scores, says Bill Reilly, you can figure Catholic University to be three touchdowns better than Notre Dame. Catholic lost to Holy Cross, 27 to 6, but Harvard lost to Holy Cross, 27 to 0, which makes Catholic one touchdown better than Harvard, Reilly points out.

From there he goes on: "Harvard beat Yale 13 to 0, which makes Catholic three touchdowns better than Yale. Army was tied by Yale, 7 to 7, so we must be three touchdowns stronger than Army. And Army matched Notre Dame except for kicking the extra point."

Mr. Reilly does comparative scores a dirty trick—exposes them in all their unreliability.

Do you think they'll back up the ambulances at Yankee Stadium Saturday?

COUPLA WEEKS
IT'S AWF'LY NICE OF THEM TO GIVE YA RECOGNITION IN TH' PROGRAM THAT WAY
IT'S BEEN A PERFECTLY FRIGHTFUL STRUGGLE, FERDE! YOU'VE NO IDEA!
WHEN I FIRST WENT ON TH' STAGE THEY JUST MENTIONED US IN TH' PROGRAM AS HOTEL GUESTS, VILLAGERS, SOLDIERS, ETC. NO NAMES AT ALL. WE WERE LISTED LIKE A HERD OF CATTLE
FINALLY THEY BEGAN TO MENTION US AS GENTLEMEN OF THE CHORUS AND USE OUR NAMES. WE CONSIDERED IT QUITE A VICTORY
NOW THEY REFER TO US IN A DECENT, DIGNIFIED WAY AS MEMBERS OF THE ENSEMBLE. IT'S QUITE GRATIFYING
THEY SIMPLY HAD TO ADMIT THAT WE WERE ARTISTS AND TREAT US WITH RESPECT

KEYSTONERS NOT NEEDED.

Rogers Hornsby has been doing a lot of dickering for ball players, but second basemen have not entered in the deals. The reason was made plain by Rogers last week, who announced that he was going back in the line-up himself next season. He claims he made a mistake in trying to get back into uniform too soon last year and that he feels sure that he will be ready for 1931.

BOWS TO JOHN LAW.

Earl Potteiger, manager of the Wilkes-Barre Barons in 1927, was convicted of violating the liquor law and sentenced last week to one year in the county prison at Wilkes-Barre. He finished second with the Barons three years ago.

JUNGLE CATS SIGN DEAN.

Edward Dean, a Virginia semipro pitcher, has signed a contract with the Detroit Tigers for a spring tryout. Dean is 23 years old, six feet and one inch tall and won 21 games with the Tubize Team in the Tri-City League, striking out 46 batters in his last three games.

DUKE OPENS ON COURT DEC. 19

Twenty-One Games on List; Only Two Vets Remain.

Special to The Washington Post.

DURHAM, N. C., Dec. 10.—Duke's Blue Devil Basket Ball Team, for two consecutive years runners-up in the Southern Conference tournament, will dedicate the spacious new Duke gymnasium and open the 1931 season by meeting Villanova's Wildcats here December 19.

The schedule of the Blue Devils calls for 21 games, 12 of them with members of the Southern Conference. It is likely that several other games will be added to the list, the card now being only partly completed.

Councillor, Werber, Farley Leave Vacancies.

Coach Eddie Cameron will be faced with the task of getting men to fill the vacated shoes of Harry Councillor, forward and captain of last year's all-Southern team; Bill Werber, for two years an all-Southern guard, and Roland Farley, captain of last year's team, a guard.

The only two veterans who did not finish last year are the co-captains, George Rogers, forward, and Joe Croson, center. Garber and Carter, forwards, and Shaw, guard, are the only other lettermen back. There is a wealth of sophomore material from last year's State championship freshman team.

In winning the Big Five title last year undefeated, and placing second in the Southern Conference, Coach Cameron's Devils won 15 out of 16 games in the regular and 3 out of 4 in tournament play.

The schedule:

December 19, Villanova, at Durham; January 8, Randolph Macon, at Durham; 10, Wofford, at Durham; 12, South Carolina, at Durham; 15, Maryland, at College Park, Md.; 16, Temple, at Philadelphia, Pa.; 17, Navy, at Annapolis, Md.; 24, North Carolina State, at Raleigh; 31, University of North Carolina, at Durham.

February 5, Virginia, at Charlottesville, Va.; 7, North Carolina State, at Durham; 10, Vanderbilt, at Nashville, Tenn.; 11, Tennessee, at Knoxville, Tenn.; 14, University of North Carolina, at Chapel Hill; 16, Wake Forest, at Durham; 21, Davidson, at Durham; 23, Sewanee, at Durham.

Dates and places undecided—Washington & Lee (two games), Wake Forest, Davidson.

Bell, The Devil Again Second in Field Trial

Pinehurst, N. C., Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Chief's Nellie Whitestone, setter, owned by William H. McNaughton, Jersey City, won the Members' All-Age Stakes in the opening event of the Pointer Field Trial Club meet here today. Twenty-five dogs ran.

Bell the Devil, a pointer owned by Raymond Hoagland, jr., Rumson, N. J., which placed second in the Continental Club's All-Age Stake yesterday, was second again in today's event. Third place went to Kirk's Frolic, owned by Harry D. Kirkover, Buffalo, N. Y., and fourth to Jack Frost, owned by Dr. T. W. Shore, Boonville, N. Y. The Members' Derby is set for tomorrow.

RUMOR WORRIES PITTSBURGH.

Pittsburgh is disturbed by reports that Paul Waner is to cavort in other pastures next year. The story told in the Smoky City is that Chick Hafey and Catcher Jimmy Wilson, of the Cardinals, are to go to the Pirates for Big Poison. Pittsburgh, no doubt, would be glad to get Wilson, but has shown no desire to take over Hafey's contract.

HOAK GOES A HUNTING.

Charles R. Hoak, owner of the Harrisburg Club in the New York-Pennsylvania League, goes into the recesses of the Allegheny Mountains in Virginia this week on his annual hunting trip for a month, with the affairs of the club in good shape and with prospects of a winning team next season. Tom Murphy, pitcher and former Northumberland High School director, has been signed by Hoak and Irvin (Stub) Rase, a twirler with an excellent record, has also been obtained by Harrisburg from the Cumberland, Md., Colts.

EASTERN DUE FOR COURT TITLE

After Several Seconds, Figures to Defeat Tech.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

IT appears, after a fairly careful survey of the five local high school squads, that Tech will be called on to display that last minute drive which has won it a basket ball title and a football title and one or two minor garrison finishes which go to complete the contention if the Maroon and Gray is to be on the top of the scholastic basket ball heap at the conclusion of the year.

Hard hit by graduation, a force which rarely ever matters as far as Tech is concerned, the current edition of the Manual Trainers court team has not shown championship symptoms in the early gym workouts.

Eastern Figures Best Of Lot.

On the other hand, there is very real cause for Tech to fear the squad from Eastern. Eastern has for so many years been picked as the dark horse of every possible sport that it is about time the Lincoln Parkers stopped imperiling the prophesying reputation of the local press.

Coach Guyon has a team which looks best of the lot. It has deadeye tendencies, an interesting plan of potshooting its way to wins, great height, and some measures of speed.

This team of Guyon's looks like it is going to make good the threat of last year's Easterners, whom Tech defeated in the deciding game of the series by dropping in a long potshot and an unexpected snow bird at the very close of the fray.

Giving Eastern an edge over the other clubs, Tech, always likely to do the unexpected, appears a good second choice. It is pretty much of a toss up among the other three. Western, with Latona in the game, will give any one a hard run but a slight weakness at center and the absence of good reserves will prove an obstacle in its path.

Central, Business Must Build.

Central and Business, especially the former, will have to build as they go along. Coach Coggins, of the Hill Dwellers, has a practically new outfit working for him and will more or less have to grope for his best working combination.

Business is in about the same fix as Western, with the whole team rotating around the keen-eyed shooting of one cog. Bobby Lucas, Woodworth's diminutive little flash, is the whole works.

Preliminary games adventing the high school series will steady down the squads, but for the present the ranking seems to have lasting qualities: Eastern, Tech, Western, and a toss up between Business and Central.

Eastern to Elect Grid Captain at Fete Tonight

With Tony Mastromarino of Business the only local schoolboy gridiron captain thus far elected for the 1931 season, supporters of certain candidates for the captaincy of the other schools have been campaigning during the last week.

Eastern will elect a captain tonight, leaving off a 2-year schedule during which it was captainless. Present indications point toward Charlie Mades, Coach Mike Kelley's guard who was put out for the season when he suffered a broken ankle in the second series game.

Eastern's regulars and manager will be dined tonight at the school and receive their "E's." Letters will be presented by Coach Kelley to the following: Davis, Campbell, Chalkley, Shorb, Wolf, Taylor, McAboy, Wells, Corridon, Wade, Palmer, Calevas, Sansbury, Mades and Manager Woolard.

To use an old political maxim, "the wind is blowing" toward Jack Rhodes as captain of next year's Tech team.

Coach Dan Ahern of Western has no particular use for captains, while at Central the vagaries of fraternity politics have made it advisable to have a captainless team.

NORTHWESTERNS WIN.

Veteran Gallaudet Team Intact for Court Season

Quintet That Won 10 of 16 Last Year Available But Krug Strives for Improvement; Meet Haverford Tomorrow.

This is the third of a series of articles dealing with prospects of local college basket ball teams.

By JACK ESPEY.

WITH all of last year's regulars available and one newcomer so capable that he has horned into the regular line-up, Gallaudet College appears to be headed for one of its most successful seasons in basket ball. But you would never gain that impression by talking to Coach Wally Krug.

What's that about counting your chickens? Well, Krug heard of that in the fourth grade and he hasn't lost his faith in it. If Gallaudet turns in victories over Maryland, Catholic University, American and a majority of its other foes, Krug might declare his satisfaction; possibly might admit that he has a fine team.

Last Year's Team Back Intact.

The quintet that won ten of its sixteen games last winter is back intact. There is Del Cosgrove, who led all Capital college scorers with a total of 213 points; Konrad Hokanson, who was his running mate at forward; John Wurdemann, center, and John Ringle and Paul Brown, guards. In addition, Marion Bradley, who served in every contest as a guard, has returned.

Young Jimmy Rayhill, blond, slightly built native of Illinois, has shown so much promise in early season workouts that Krug intends to use him in the starting line-up against Haverford College tomorrow night in Philadelphia. Rayhill probably will team up with Cosgrove, while Hokanson will be held in reserve for emergency duty either at forward or guard.

Krug right now sees plenty of room for improvement in the passing. There has been too much fumbling for one thing and lack of teamwork for another. He has no complaint about speed, endurance, spirit or shooting strength. Cosgrove's keen pair of eyes helps to relieve any doubt as to the attack.

Backing up the regulars are Simon Katz and Anton O'Branovich, forwards; Adolph Yoder, center, and Bradley and Bilbo Monaghan, guards. This quintet is strong defensively, but does not pack an offensive wallop. Katz is the most dependable as a scorer.

The biggest handicap facing Gallaudet's latest court edition is its home court. It is far too small for smooth basket ball—narrow and short with no out-of-bounds. But Gallaudet basket ball teams have had to contend with the same condition for many years past, so the 1930-31 team is wasting no time in worrying over it.

Only six home games are carded for the Blues. Nine others complete the schedule. Following their debut with Haverford they will remain in Philadelphia to meet Drexel Institute Saturday night. The home season will be inaugurated on December 27 with Southeastern University, of the Washington Collegiate Conference, furnishing the opposition.

Maryland on January 7, American on January 9 and Catholic U. on February 4 are the Blues' objective games. The schedule follows:

December 12, Haverford College, at Haverford, Pa.; 13, Drexel Institute, at Philadelphia, Pa.; 27, Southeastern University, at Kendall Green; January 3, Strayer Business College, at Kendall Green; 7, University of Maryland, at College Park (pending); 9, American University, at American University; 10, Columbus University, at Kendall Green; 16, St. John's College, at Annapolis, Md.; 23, Maryland State Normal School, at Towson, Md.; 31, University of Baltimore, at Kendall Green; February 4, Catholic University, at Brookland; 7, Benjamin Franklin University, at Kendall Green; 14, open; 23, Maryland State Normal College, at Kendall Green; 27, Drexel Institute, at Kendall Green; March 6, Shepherd College, at Shepherdstown, W. Va.

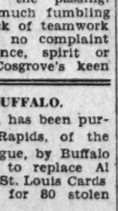
ON THE SIDELINES by BRIAN BELL



FROM the extreme Northwest comes this fabulous but thoroughly proven story, via the Seattle Times:

Glen W. Norris, a Seattle policeman, was playing golf at Jefferson Park with W. H. Miller, of 207 West Fortieth street, if you want to write and ask him about it.

They were playing the eighth hole, a long two-shotter, and Norris was playing his second shot at the same moment that Dr. C. J. Huber was driving from the ninth tee.

The eighth and ninth fairways were parallel, with a stretch of rough between. The eighth green, for which the cop was heading, was not far from the ninth tee.

Norris, playing his second shot for the eighth green, produced a high, wide and handsome slice, heading in the general direction of the ninth tee, just as Dr. Huber, driving from that tee, wheeled off an equally impressive parabola toward the eighth fairway.

The balls met in midair. Norris' ball caromed sharply off to his left, on to the eighth green—and holed out for an eagle 2.

It really does not make a lot of difference where Dr. Huber's ball went, but if it were a "Boy Scout" it might feel that it had caught up on its good deeds until after Christmas, anyway.

A COMPANION-PIECE to this story arose at the East Lake course, Atlanta, five or six years ago.

Charles H. Black, sr., one of whose sons now is Georgia State champion and the other city champion, was playing in a four ball match with Jim Floyd, prominent banker, as his partner against the late D. P. Davis and a professional whose name escapes me.

The third hole at East Lake is a stiff drive-and-pitch to a slightly elevated green surrounded by bunkers. Davis and his partner were well on with their second shots, neither far from the pin, while Black and Floyd were bunkered, on opposite sides of the green.

Davis and his partner took up positions illustrative of patronizing composure on the green while the others went down into the bunkers and prepared to play.

Due to a total absence of correlation, the Black and Floyd pair produced their explosion shots at exactly the same instant. The two balls popped up in the air, accompanied by sand, and dropped, on the fly, into the cup, wedging themselves in beside the pin, which had not been removed.

This was a birdie 3 apiece for the bankers, and the other pair, naturally suffering from shock, needed two putts each for par 4's, and lost the hole two ways.

NAVY RALLY NOSES OUT INDIANS

Comes From Rear to Beat William and Mary Five, 32-30.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 10.—Opening their season here today, the Naval Academy basket ballers staged a brilliant spurt in the final three minutes to nose out a scrappy William and Mary quint by a 32-to-30 tally. Near the finish, the Williamsburg, Va., Indians were leading, 29 to 20, but the Middies suddenly found themselves and redeemed an otherwise sloppy exhibition.

The finish was thrilling, as the visitors first attempted to defend their lead by freezing the ball and later by adding to their tally as the Middies threatened. The game did not find either team showing much polish, but being so early in the season not much could be expected.

The first half was a ragged exhibition, with the Indians leading, 18 to 9, at first half. Coach John N. Wilson, of the Middies, began his second team and it rolled up an 8-to-4 margin after ten minutes. At this stage, the so-called first team was sent in and they lost the advantage.

The second half perked up considerably. Navy took the lead at 19 to 14, only to suddenly crumble until the tally was 29 to 20 against them. Several substitutions were made in the late stages, with South and Holtzworth cutting down the margin, and Laughlin, star of last year's plebe team, shooting the winning tally 30 seconds from the final toot of the whistle.

Loughlin was high point scorer with 10, but F. Mozelski, of the invaders, had 9 to be a close second. The game was won on a field goal, each side having 12 free tosses and making but half of them good.

Cumberland Club Officers Are Reelected

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 10.—Two hundred men attended the annual election of Community Baseball, Inc., owner of the Cumberland Team in the Middle Atlantic League, at the city hall last night and the scene was as if a spirited war election was on. The present regime was continued in power. A surprise was sprung when it was announced that ten of the incumbents were automatically reelected under a by-law adopted May 20 last, because these men were personally obligated on notes and loans for continuing baseball in Cumberland.

This left only five directors to be chosen and County Attorney David W. Sloan, Charles E. Danner, Frank Hotchkiss, George Callis and Eugene Law were chosen. The Russler faction won over the faction led by former President H. B. Walker, by a majority of 27. The directors organized by electing the old officers for the coming season as follows: Nelson W. Russler, president; Herbert Lee Blye, vice president; M. Frank Prendergast, secretary, and Jacob Gottlieb, treasurer.

PROMINENT STOCKS HIT NEW 1930 LOWS

Late Short Covering Cuts Losses to Average of 2 Points Net.

3,146,950 SHARES SOLD

New York, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Just a month from the date of the November lows, the stock market today suffered a setback that sent a large number of prominent shares through their old minimums.

A flurry of short covering in the last ten minutes reduced the losses considerably and the average net decline was about 2 points, but the total turnover of 3,146,950 shares—the largest since mid-November—measured the extent to which business had increased on the down side.

The composite for 90 leading stocks closed at 124.9 against the year's low of 123.4. However, early in the afternoon it stood only half a point above that minimum, and since the heaviest selling came thereafter, it was assumed that before the technical recovery the market had been in new low ground. Trading in the final hour was very active, nearly 1,000,000 shares changing hands.

Bonds found supporting orders limited and lost rather sharply, although on a reduced volume. Weakness of bonds recently is said in some quarters to reflect selling by banks which invested heavily a few months ago, but now desire to maintain positions of liquidity and are therefore partially disposing of their holdings.

Steel Rises Temporarily.

The first hour was the best in the share market. Steel stocks and some of the rails picked up a point or two when the weekly trade reviews reported continued improvement in sentiment. Iron Age said the week's events had been "preponderantly favorable," pointing to a gradual gain in demand for forward deliveries, to the recent advance in prices and to immediate prospects of rail orders. Production during the past week declined 1 per cent, a trend which may well carry later into the month.

U. S. Steel Corporation's unfilled order report disclosed an advance of 157,873 tons in November, which was not only better than had been expected, but also the best November gain since 1925 and the second successive monthly upturn.

However, the market declined to follow this favorable lead, and seemed to be more impressed by the decline in car loadings and the reduction of a cent a pound by copper producers. The latter development was not unexpected, for it was pointed out that the rise in price after the curtailment had been reached was rapid; furthermore, producers were said to have satisfied requirements of consumers for some time.

Rails Active on Decline.

Rail stocks were active in the decline. New York Central rallied rather mechanically when the directors declared the regular quarterly dividend, but then fell back. Pennsylvania, Illinois Central, Southern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Northern Pacific, Frisco and Chicago Northwestern made new lows.

This time, however, the carriers had plenty of company, for stocks like Westinghouse, Bethlehem Steel, Johns-Manville, Eastman Kodak, American Water Works, American & Foreign Power, Timken, United Fruit and Case were also sold to 1930 minimums on extreme losses of 3 to 5 points.

U. S. Steel dropped to 138½, within half a point of its low, and General Electric to 44¾, but both closed only a point lower. American Telephone, Westinghouse, Du Pont, American Can, Allied Chemical, National Biscuit, Consolidated Gas and Sears-Roebuck likewise reduced maximum declines of almost the same size to losses of 1 to 2. Few issues were down as much as 4 net.

Late improvement in silver prices failed to help the Far Eastern exchanges, but European rates were firm, reflecting Christmas demands for funds.

BONDS' OFF COURSE HOLDS AS SALES DIP

Declines in Few Gilt-Edged Issues Exceed Point; Rails' Index Moves Down.

UTILITIES DROP HEAVILY

New York, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Bonds continued their decline today. Offerings were not as large as in the previous session, but buying interest was lacking except at prices considerably below the market, and all classes of domestic obligations were reactionary, with losses in some gilt-edged bonds exceeding a point.

The market made an effort to steady at the start of the session when price movement narrowed, but few bids were made above the previous close, and the liquidation proved sufficient to carry many issues to new lows for the year. Rails lost a full point in the averages and the composite average for 30 bonds was revised at 94.4, representing a drop of 7-10ths for the day and 1½ points for the week.

About the only persons getting much comfort out of the bond market of late has been the old-time bargain hunters who appear at these times, but in insufficient numbers to change the trend quickly. They recall the handsome profits made ten years ago when they were able to purchase rare bargains as Liberty bonds in the low 80's.

Fear Seen as Selling Motive.

It was said at one of the older investment houses today that a careful canvass of bond houses had brought out a general feeling that much of the liquidation has been due to nothing but blind fear. Of course, there has also been selling by banks which rushed to place their funds into bonds several months ago when it appeared that commercial demands would be light, and now wish to place themselves in a strong cash position to meet year-end and other requirements. Some observers have been puzzled by the willingness of these institutions to sell their investments in a declining market, rather than borrowing at the Federal Treasury Reserve.

There have been varied rumors about Wall street that a strong pool was being formed to support the bond market, but this was not credited generally. It is understood, however, that a meeting of some investment dealers may be held within a day or so to discuss constructive measures.

Bank liquidation has been very apparent in railroad bonds where some of the issues legal for savings banks have sagged to new lows along with a wide list of second grade issues sold by holders whose confidence had been impaired by decreased earnings of the carriers.

Pennsylvania Gold 5s Off.

In the rail group the largest losses were in Burlington General 4s, Milwaukee 4½s F, Chicago & Western Indiana 4s, Erie 5s of 1975, Illinois Central 4s, International Great Northern first 6s, Kansas City Southern 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s F 5s, Pennsylvania Gold 5s, Frisco 4½s, all off 2 points.

Liquidation in the utility group was more widespread than any time this week, as a whole obligations of electric companies have been the steadiest class of domestic bonds. American Water Works 6s, Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 5s C, Northern States Power 5s A, and Westchester Light 5s were among the high priced issues that turned soft. American and Foreign Power 5s, and issues of International Telephone and its subsidiary, the Postal Telegraph again established new lows for the year.

Industrials were weak. Oils were under pressure. United States Governments were mixed. Liberty Bonds were firm but short term Treasury issues lost several points each. Most of the changes in the foreign group were on the downside.

BUSINESS ADVANCE SHOWN BY UTILITY

Seaboard Public Service Co. Has Gain in Kilowatt-Hour Output.

PROMINENT BANKER DIES

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Headquarters of Seaboard Public Service Co., at Alexandria, Va., has announced that its subsidiaries operating in seven States along the southeastern coast line, showed an increase of 9.4 per cent in kilowatt hour output for the month of October and an 11.6 per cent gain for the first ten months of the year.

The total output for October, 1930, was 31,434,868 kilowatt hours, as against 28,729,934 in October a year ago, a gain of 2,704,934 kilowatt hours. For the first ten months of the year, the Seaboard group showed a total output of 296,144,863 kilowatt hours, compared to 265,388,091 for the same period last year.

Harold F. Greene, director of the Guaranty Co. of New York, vice president and general manager of that company and a vice president of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, died suddenly yesterday in Brooks Hospital, Brookline, Mass., following an operation last week.

Mr. Greene was born in Machals, Me., January 25, 1881. He was graduated from Amherst College in 1903, and began his banking career in Boston. He came to the Guaranty Trust Co. as general manager of the bond department in November, 1917.

Warning Against Forgers Issued.

On account of the successes of several bands of forgers, especially in Eastern and Middle Western States, a number of banks are enlisting the cooperation of their depositors to thwart such operations, according to a statement in the protective department supplement of the American Bankers Association Journal giving details of different plans.

Recently the association issued a warning against the operations of thieves who extract from mail boxes communications containing statements and canceled vouchers sent by banks to their customers, thus obtaining information regarding depositors' balances, as well as checks which serve as models for forgery purposes. To lessen the chance of loss through fraudulent checks, suggestion has been made that depositors call for vouchers and statements whenever possible, rather than requesting these be mailed.

At a recent meeting of the Federal Storage Co.'s board of directors the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent on the preferred stock was declared payable January 15 to stockholders of record at close of business, December 31.

Bank Dividends Declared.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Anacostia Bank yesterday the usual 5 per cent quarterly dividend was declared, payable December 31, to stockholders of record December 26.

The board of directors of the National Capital Insurance Co., at its regular monthly meeting last night, declared the regular semiannual dividend of 3 per cent and an extra dividend of 1 per cent, payable December 31.

Howard R. Norton, Fred A. Smith and Alpheus E. Riddle have been re-elected directors of the Columbia Permanent Building Association of the District of Columbia for a term of three years, beginning January 1.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Corn broke 3 cents a bushel today from an early advance that accompanied an increase of speculative buying of future deliveries. Buying was based on unexpected smallness of receipts and on prospects of rainy weather over the corn belt. However selling by early buyers disclosed that the market was minus adequate support, and a transient upturn in wheat also wiped out.

Corn closed heavy, 1⅜@2¼ cents lower than yesterday; wheat irregular at ¼ cent decline to an equal gain; oats ⅜@¾ cents down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 30 cents.

Weakness of securities markets apparently affected late grain selling. Contributing to the weakness was a report of Argentina corn offered for May arrival in Montreal at as low as 53 cents a bushel, delivered. Northern Canada offerings also were of surprising bulk, although Nebraska corn was failing to reach terminal markets. Primary corn receipts totaled 1,443,000 bushels, compared with 769,000 a week ago and 1,868,000 at this time last year.

Wheat suddenly snapped out of the rut at one stage on indications that Government sponsored agencies had started to buy wheat above quotations at which the market was pegged by Farm Board aides. An upturn in wheat values was also temporarily aided by preparations to facilitate general trade tomorrow in the July delivery. July represents the new 1931 domestic wheat crop, and is not subject to Federal stabilization maneuvers. July wheat scored an upturn of about 2 cents, but like old crop months, failed to hold the gain. Oats were governed chiefly by corn.

Provisions went lower responsive to downturns in the value of hogs.

Closing indemnities: Wheat, March (bids), 79; May, 81¾@81¾; July, 74@74¼. Corn, December, 70⅛@73¼; March, 73⅜@76¾; May, 75½@75⅝@78½; July, 76⅛@79¾.

Curb Review

New York, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—Trading swelled to the largest volume in nearly a month in today's curb market, as the list continued to move down grade.

A long list of issues penetrated further into new low ground, although few breaks occurred save in the comparatively inactive specialties having a thin market, and there was some recovery in the final hour.

The day's transactions aggregated 704,800 shares.

In the utilities, Associated Gas "A" dropped nearly 3 points, to within a fraction of the year's low, then reduced its loss to 2¼ net. Electric Bond & Share dipped 2 points, and closed off 1½. United Light "A" sagged a point, to a new low, but closed only ½ lower. Duke Power, frequently a wide mover, dropped 12½ points, to 125, its previous low, in a few odd-lot transactions.

Gulf was a conspicuous soft spot in the oils, declining nearly 4 points, to a new minimum, at 66⅝, but recovering to 68 at the finish. Standard of Ohio lost 3 points. Cities Service touched 16⅝, but closed at 17½, off only ¾ of a point. Humble and Standards of Kentucky and Indiana actually closed fractionally higher. Reduction of the copper export price by 1 cent to 11.30 cents a pound caused some selling of the copper issues, Newmont losing 4 points, and Roan Antelope sagging more than a point to a new low.

A few industrials closed higher, but the general trend was downward. Cooper Bessemer gained 1½, and Dresser B, 2½. Deere, however, dropped nearly 5 to another new low. Among the erratic, lightly traded issues, A. O. Smith dropped 5, and Standard Screw, 12. Columbia Pictures declined 3, to another new bottom.

Investment company issues also sagged. United Founders touched a new low, at 7, off ¾, and closed at 7⅜. American Founders sagged ¾, to 4, and closed at 4½.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Dec. 10 (A.P.).—An opening in cotton on covering promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables was followed today by declines which carried prices into new low ground for the season under Southern selling and renewed liquidation. March contracts, after selling at 10:58 early, broke 10.31, or 16 points net lower, and closed at 10.34, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 10 to 17 points. The opening was steady, 6 to 9 points higher, in response to the steadiness of Liverpool and reports of a rally in the market for Egyptian cotton in Alexandria. The comparatively moderate demand was quite readily supplied at the initial prices, however, and the tone later turned easy, off with prices giving way under light offerings. There appeared to be a little Southern selling, while the general liquidation which was supposed to reflect the unsettled showing of the stock market and reactions from early advances in grain.

Offerings were not being pressed mostly in small scattering lots, but the market appeared to be without any aggressive support, and it was the same quarter that foreign trade orders to buy at limits had been either filled or withdrawn. New December contracts sold off from 10.22 to 10.00 and May from 10.48 to 10.30, making net declines of 15 to 19 points on the active months and a loss of about 150 to 170 points as compared with the highest prices touched on the rally of late October. Closing quotations were within a point or two of the lowest on most positions.

Reports that business in the cotton futures market in Alexandria had been suspended by the Government commission for a period of fifteen days, beginning tomorrow, because of the recent severe decline, was not generally mentioned in connection with the action of the market here, but may have had an unsettling effect on sentiment. The factors most generally discussed were the unsettled ruling of the stock market and the apparent falling off in demand. There may have been some selling in expectation of bearish cloth statistics for November, which were published after the close, showing an increase of 1.7 per cent in stocks and a decrease of 5 per cent in unfilled orders.

Liverpool cables reported covering and forced buying in the market, but denied sales of cotton cloths and yarns were below production. Exports today, 17,409, making 3,484,756 so far this season. Port receipts, 28,510; United States port stocks, 4,178,688.

ROSSLYN MEN PLAN FOR BETTER TRAFFIC

Business Group Also to Urge Resurfacing of Streets in Area.

ARLINGTON AIDS SCOUTS

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The first annual meeting of the Rosslyn Business Men's Association was held last night at Rosslyn. The group was organized this year to assist commercial progress and town improvement. The membership comprises 55 business firms in the bridge-head business district. To avoid overlapping the work of any county-wide group the association limits its membership to those who are actively engaged in business in Rosslyn.

The first action last night was to vote to incorporate. B. W. Spille, president, designated John E. Fowler to prepare the necessary papers.

Traffic Plans Proposed.

A report on street improvements was read and the president announced he will appoint a committee to urge the county supervisors to expedite the resurfacing of several streets in the Rosslyn area, in particular, the rebuilding of the Georgetown - Alexandria pike from Rosslyn to the Arlington Reservation.

The committee on police and fire protection, C. T. Merchant, chairman, offered traffic control regulations which were recommended and will be submitted to the supervisors. The plans cover a 15-mile limit and a two-hour parking ordinance on the Military road and the Lee highway within the Rosslyn limits.

The health and sanitation committee was instructed to seek means for the cleaning up of the area along Railroad avenue.

To Study Park Plans.

The association voted that a special meeting be held to study plans of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission relative to Rosslyn, and that Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, executive officer of the commission, be invited to attend. An officer of the association denied the association has taken any action changing its attitude to the present park plan as expressed recently in a letter to the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce.

After the meeting, the directors held an executive session and, acting under instructions, reaffirmed its stand on the park project, the objection being against the present plan of financing, and the elimination of access to the river for commercial development.

Harry K. Green, commissioner of revenue, and his deputy, C. Benjamin Laycock, leave for Richmond tomorrow to attend the annual revenue commissioners' meeting, called by C. H. Morrissett, State tax commissioner. Mr. Green, under the Byrd administration, was chairman of a State commission to study the Virginia tax laws and to make recommendations for reorganization of the State tax system. Many of the recommendations by the committee, headed by Mr. Green, became law and the entire tax code of the State was revised. The reorganization of the Virginia tax department, under Gov. Byrd was one of the progressive moves of his administration. The present tax system of the State is looked upon as being one of the most modern in the country. The State commissioners of revenue are required annually to assemble in Richmond to study taxation and to receive instructions from the tax commissioner, C. H. Morrissett.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Henry Clay School at Lyon Park will hold its monthly meeting in the schoolhouse tonight at 8 o'clock.

BRADYS TO BE TRIED IN ANNAPOLIS COURT

Seat Pleasant Bombing Case Date Expected to Be Set Within Few Days.

SEVERANCE IS GRANTED

Trial of Lawrence Leroy Brady and Herman Brady on charges of murder ni connection with the Seat Pleasant bombing of New Year's Day yesterday was ordered removed from the circuit court at Rockville to the Anne Arundel Circuit Court at Annapolis. The court is now in session at Annapolis, and a date for the trail is expected to be set within a few days.

The removal was ordered following the filing of a petition by State's Attorney J. Frank Parran, of Prince Georges County, in charge of the prosecution, which alleged that the Brady brothers could not get a fair trial in Montgomery County because the residents of th ecounty had followed a previous trial of Leroy Brady in which the jury disagreed very closely. The earlier trial lasited a week.

Defense Seeks Early Trial.

Chief Judge Hammond Urner and Judge Robert B. Peter, sr., were on the bench at the hearnig on the petition for removal yesterday.

Frank Hall, representing defense counsels asked the court to order the removal to Annapolis in order that the case might be tried within a short time and so that the locale would be more convenient to the witnesses, most of whom live in Prince Georges County. Attorney Hall also asked that the brothers be recommitted to the custody of the sheriff of Prince Georges County in order that they might be near their relatives until time for the trial. Both pleas were grantde.

Both brothers were present in court. Leroy has asked for a jury trial and Herman for a trial by the judges, thus separating the trials. The case was removed from Upper Marlboro to Rockville at the request of defense counsel.

Prosecutors May Change.

J. Wilson Ryon is associate prosecution attorney and the defense is represented by M. Hampton Magruder, State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer and Frank Hall. The action in Montgomery County was assisted by State's Attorney Robert B. Peter, jr., for the prosecution and Albert M. Boulc for the defense. If the case is not set for trial before January 5, State's Attorney Parran will go out of office and Alan Bowie will become State's attorney for Prince Georges County and direct the prosecution.

The bombing of the home of John Hall in Seat Pleasant resulted in the death of aNomi Hall Brady, 18-year-old expectant mother, secret wife of Herman Brady, her sister and brother, and maimed several other members of the Hall family.

Crash Separates Parents, Children

Elders, Ignorant of Wreck, Continue Auto Journey; Youngsters Stranded.

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Dec. 10.—An automobile crash on the Richmond and Petersburg turnpike at Colonial Heights last Friday separated a son and daughter from their parents and other members of the family. The party was en route from Margate, N. J., to Fort Lauderdale, Fla. When the car in which William Dutton, 16, and Nellie Dutton, 12, were riding was wrecked their parents continued on their journey, unaware of the accident.

M. Barnett, of Margate, who was driving the car which was wrecked, can not understand why the parents of the boy and girl, who are stranded, have not tried to locate them. The children are worried over what has become of their father and mother.

The boy and girl are being cared for by Dan Gregory, of Colonial Heights. Barnett is stopping at Petersburg. Efforts to communicate with the stranded children's parents have proved unavailing.

Opinions Delayed In Rail Tax Case

Judges Postpone Decision on $2,500,000 Appeal in West Virginia.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 10.—A delay in delivery of their individual opinions by the judges who heard the appeal of the Western Maryland Railroad from an increase of $2,500,000 in their tax valuation in West Virginia for this year has been granted at the request of State Tax Commissioner T. C. Townsend, of Charleston, who represented the State in opposition to the appeal.

The request for delay was made to give the tax commissioner opportunity to present a brief, it was stated. No date for rendering the decisions was announced.

The railroad, in hearings at Keyser and Elkins, presented testimony and argument supporting the appeal, and the State countered similarly. The railroad also attacked the basis which the State uses for computing the valuation.

Special to The Washington Post.

Orange, Va., Dec. 10.—Orange County will probably have a school of aviation in the near future, according to a recent announcement by Warren Holladay, son of Judge and Mrs. H. T. Holladay, of Rapidan. It is Mr. Holladay's intention, should public interest justify such a move, to start a school offering flight and ground instruction.

Both Mr. Holladay and his wife are licensed pilots. In the past six months he has flown across the continent three times. Mrs. Holladay, who is a prominent horsewoman, as well as an aviatrix, returned a few days ago from New York City, where she recently underwent a serious operation.

PARK ACTION SOUGHT FOR FAIRFAX COUNTY

Chamber of Commerce Will Ask Appointment of Planning Body.

COMMITTEE IS NAMED

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce at its regular monthly meeting appointed a committee, composed of George F. Harrison, of Herndon; W. S. Hoge, jr., and Edward C. Gibbs, of Mount Vernon, to appear before the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors and urge adoption of the Ball bill, which was passed by the last session of the State Legislature, providing for the creation of a Northern Virginia Park and Planning Commission.

This act provides for a commission composed of nine members, one each appointed by the local authorities of Fairfax and Arlington Counties, one from the City of Alexandria, the others to be appointed by Gov. John G. Pollard, two from each county and city involved. When the bill was under consideration by the State Legislature, Fairfax and Arlington Counties acted in favor of creating the commission but Alexandria City refused to commit itself. Now that annexation proceedings have been disposed of, it is believed Alexandria might assume a more favorable attitude.

Parkway Plan Opposed.

A great deal of opposition was voiced at the meeting to the proposed George Washington Memorial Parkway, as provided in the Capper-Cramton bill, especially as it affects Fairfax County. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, was present and outlined the Federal Government's program. He stressed the fact that, under the law, State or county governments would be required to furnish one-half of the cost of the land for the parkway and that, upon receiving the assurance that this money would be repayed within eight years, the Federal Government would immediately advance the funds to the county, interest free.

He also stated that while his commission is willing to cooperate with the representatives of the local governments, it could do so only in an advisory capacity, unless the provisions of the Ball act were ratified by all three jurisdictions and a commission appointed with legal authority to enforce its decisions and money furnished to finance its work. The cost of the proposed parkway on the Virginia side of the Potomac River would be approximately $7,500,000, of which the Federal Government would pay half, and maintain the park after completion, without cost to the counties.

Protests Heard.

A large delegation of the citizens of the Wellington and Acturus and Snowden neighborhood were present and protested against forcible seizure of their homes by the Government for park purposes, and ask the chamber to assist them in maintaining their rights. Their petition also stated that the status of their communities is being injured by the uncertainty of Government plans. Several others protested against Fairfax County losing control over its entire waterfront, from Great Falls to Mount Vernon. The petition, as well as the one from the Rosslyn Business Men's Association, was ordered filed with the committee on parks of the chamber.

A protest was ordered filed with the State highway commission against the present practice of removing gravel shoulders along the Richmond-Washington highway and replacing them with dirt for seed. The chamber has placed itself on record of favoring the beautification of highways by proper planting, but it did not think this should be done in such a manner as to endanger the lives and property of motorists, as this road is already considered too narrow for the volume of traffic it now carries.

Seek College Site.

Upon the requests of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce for cooperation in securing the location of the proposed Virginia Liberal Arts College for Women in this section of northern Virginia, the committee, composed of Capt. Thurlow White, Mrs. E. D. Vosbury and Arthur H. Buell was reappointed. This committee reported that several desirable sites in Fairfax County had been located, but activities had been discontinued upon receipt of information that the commission locating the college would consider no propositions unless they were accompanied with gifts of land and buildings, as the State already owns several institutions which can easily be converted.

The secretary of the chamber was instructed to take up the matter of protecting several curves on the Columbia pike, with the Arlington County Board of Supervisors, as the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce has not replied to the request of the Fairfax body for cooperation.

Herbert Williams, a member of the county school board from Providence District, reported that the board is considering plans for improvement of schools in Mount Vernon District, and it is hoped that before long some solution can be worked out with the citizens of the district so that the erection of new school buildings can be financed. Special thought is being directed to one at Franconia, where work can be started next spring if favorable cooperation is obtained from the citizens.

Municipal distribution of water to the citizens of the town of Falls Church, by water tanks, has cost the town $146.08, since the service was inaugurated on September 8, according to the report of Councilman J. V. Turner, submitted to the town council. A total of 96,276 gallons of water distributed to the residents has cost $1,065.50 and the receipts have amounted to $919.42.

The greater part of the loss was sustained at the beginning of the distribution, the report held. The 1-cent-per-gallon charge was not sufficient at that time to completely meet the cost of distribution, Mr. Turner said, until the method of handling the water had been systematized and the citizens had cooperated with the tank wagon drivers by securing containers large enough to expedite service.

A few persons had moved from town without settling their water accounts and some water has been furnished without charge to the public schools, Mr. Turner also stated, adding that since the cold weather began the demands for water have greatly increased, and at the present time the distribution service is self-supporting.

Mayor L. P. Daniel has submitted to the council two emergency ordinances. The first provides for issuing permits to make excavations for gas-main installations, requiring bonds to secure the town against damages and providing for fines on failure to comply with the ordinance. The second calls for adoption in Falls Church of the gas-fitting regulation now in effect in the District of Columbia, with the towns committee on roads substituted in the regulation, in place of the District of Columbia Commissioners. The ordinances are being considered by the council committee on laws, public order and property.

Miss Sara E. Thomas, Fairfax County home demonstration agent, will attend tht meeting of the Floris 4-H Club this morning, where she will give a demonstration on making Christmas candies. This afternoon she will attend the social given by the Home Demonstraton Club at Burke. Tomorrow morning she will attend the meetings of the 4-H clubs at Woodlawn and Fort Humphreys. Tomorrow afternoon the 4-H clubs at Potters Hill and Lorton will be visited, the subject for discussion being "Giving Successful Christmas Parties."

The Northern Virginia Association of Past Matrons and Patrons of the Order of the Eastern Star, will meet tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. Lorin Magarity, at McLean.

The Ladies Aid Society, of the Church of the Brethren, Oakton, will hold a special meeting today at the home of Mrs. Edith Miller. The members of this society will pass the day sewing for the Fairfax County public welfare work, which is under the direction of Mrs. Louise S. Manghum.

The Ladies Aid Society, of the Crossman Methodist Church, Falls Church, will meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Merritt Pope.

The Women's Club of Falls Church will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Joseph L. Crupper, in Washington. Mrs. Henry Knowles has charge of the program.

Woman Finds Snake Napping Under Stove

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Dec. 10.—Mrs. Simon Snyder was preparing breakfast for her husband today, when she observed what appeared to be a coil of rope beneath the gas stove.

She started to pick it up, when it wiggled, and slipped from her hand. She got a broom and called her husband, who dispatched a foot-long copperhead snake.

How the reptile, one of the most poisonous in this section, reached this city from the mountains which that species inhabits, is a mystery.

Sites Being Sought For FishHatcheries

U. S. Commissioner Looks Over Suggested Lands in West Virginia.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 10.—United States Commissioner of Fisheries Henry O'Malley and the chief of the division of fish culture, Mr. Leach, were in this county today and saw various suggested sites for a Federal fish hatchery, made possible by a $75,000 grant by Congress last year. They were shown about the county by members of the local branch of the West Virginia Wild Life League.

The project is the same as that the fisheries representatives hoped to establish at Leetown, Jefferson County. They said their plans were balked there by what they regarded as impossible prices for land.

The fisheries officials would not commit themselves as to their impressions on Berkeley County sites. After the trip they went to the Leetown section for another inspection. Bass and trout would be raised in the hatchery.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MAJ. TUNNEY.

(Gene Tunney, retired undefeated heavyweight champion, has been appointed major on the staff of Dean Wilbur L. Cross, Governor-elect of Connecticut.)

HARK! Hark! The bands are playing,
Oh, hear the people cheer!
Through traffic wildly swaying
They gather far and near;
The big parade is starting,
Oh, hear the blare and din!
For Trumbull is departing
And Cross is going in.

II.

Whose is that noble figure
Astride that charger there
With massive shoulders bigger
Than any mortal pair?
A hero, tall and happy,
He now commands the scenes—
Make way—and make it snappy!
For here comes Maj. Gene!

III.

"Hooray," the crowds are yelling,
"Three cheers!" goes up the cry,
The figure so compelling
Is holding ev'ry eye;
His manner seems so hearty,
His face so young and keen—
The idol of the party
Is gallant Maj. Gene.

IV.

"Hooray," they yell, "for Tunney,
The champeon of the world!"
As down the street so sunny
The banners fly unfurl'd;
The Horse Guards get no mention,
The Foot Guards march unseen,
And no one gets attention
Excepting Maj. Gene.

V.

The State Militia passes
And no one seems to care;
The statesmen and their lasses
Get just a vacant stare;
The generals all grumble
And pass with color green
For no man gets a tumble Outside of Maj. Gene.

VI.

"Hey, Gene!" the crowds are crying;
"There's Tunney! Wotta man!"
And pretty girls are sighing
As lovesick girlies can;
The Pundits Club then bellows,
And Phelps from a machine
Cries, "Altogether, fellows,
A cheer for Maj. Gene"

VII.

And when the day is finished
And all the pomp is o'er,
And cheering has diminished
And music is no more,
Dean Cross in indignation
Remarks in tones quite sad,
"'Twas some inauguration
This James J. Tunney had!"

THE SENATE MUSE.

"ONCE to every man and nation
Comes the moment to decide
In the strife of truth with falsehood
For the good or evil side.

"But the case presents no problem
To the White House Engineer;
He appoints a big commission
To report some time next year."
—Senator Norris in the Congressional Record.

GENE TUNNEY will wear the gold braid of a major on a governor's staff next year, and it would seem up to Jack Dempsey, if he wants to stay in the picture, to become a Roxy usher.

Possibly that poison gas sweeping Europe is coming from those Russian conspiracy trials.

The House votes, 166 to 54, to continue poisoning the alcohol supply. This shows that there is little chance of Congress' becoming as unanimous for the idea as the bootleggers.

It is probable that those Russian conspirators will ask a new trial on the ground the radio hook-up was incomplete.

Man Heard on Five Charges in Prince Georges Police Court.

IS FINED ON ONE COUNT

Charged in Prince Georges County Police Court at Hyattsville with five offenses yesterday, Decatur Johnson, colored, received four sentences of six months each, and a fine of $25 on the fifth charge. About fifteen other traffic and speeding cases were tried, and fines imposed totaled about $200.

Johnson, who lives on K street near South Capitol street, was accused of driving under a revoked permit, driving while drunk, unauthorized use of an auto, and assault and battery. He will serve six months in the Maryland House of Correction on each of these charges. He will also pay $25 for reckless driving.

Chase of Six Miles.

The man was arrested after a chase of about 6 miles, during which he was pursued by State Policemen Carl May and C. W. Cubbage, and Albert Anderson, chief of police of Hyattsville. He was not stopped until the rear tires on his car had been shot.

Sarah Matthews, a colored woman, told the court that she had asked Johnson to park her car for her, instead of which he hit her and drove away in the machine. This gave rise to the assault and battery and unauthorized use charges.

The case of Jesse James, colored chief of police of North Brentwood, who was arrested in a raid Sunday night and charged with illegal possession, was continued for a week.

Brown, with three half gallons, and Gantt, arrested by Chief Anderson, had seven half-gallons in his possession. Walter Davis, jr., was fined $50 for possession of one-half gallon.

Charging that his wife, Helene Summers Roemer, had remarried without first divorcing him, Gottfried J. Roemer, of Capitol Heights, yesterday filed suit in Prince Georges County Circuit Court for absolute divorce. They were married in 1910, and have a 19-year-old son.

The man's petition states that in 1929, after his wife had been separated from him for twelve years, a license for her marriage to Santiago Ariz was taken out in Newark, N. J., and later returned to the clerk's office, showing that the marriage had been performed. Since that time, Ariz and Mrs. Roemer have lived together in Washington, he continues. Although separated, the Roemers were still man and wife when she married Ariz, he says.

The couple was married in Boston. One child, Charles Austin Roemer, was born and is in the custody of the man. He asks permission to keep the child. Leroy Pumphrey and Leonard A. Block are Roemer's lawyers.

Violet Josey filed suit yesterday for absolute divorce from Victor H. Josey through her attorneys, I. Q. H. Alward and Alan Bowie. She charges that the man, who married her in 1919, abandoned her in Del Ray, Va., in 1927. There was one child, Ronald V. Josey.
